Backs CIO Plan for Wage Disputes

FORD OFFER SPURNED
CIO turns down Ford offer of 12.4 per cent raise; calls it a "mockery." CIO's Reuther and General Motors' Wilson exchange some words—and some grins. Stories on page 8.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 [Special]—President Truman touched off an explosion in congress today with the declaration that fact finding boards investigating strikes should "unquestionably" have the power to examine books of employers because, the President declared, a company's earnings "is relevant" in wage disputes.

In the face of management protests before his fact finding boards, Mr. Truman embraced the position of the CIO United Auto Workers' union that General Motors corporation be compelled to disclose its profits to establish its ability to pay a demanded 30 per cent wage increase.

"Unadorned Socialism"

"The proposal is unadorned socialism and only a short step behind communism," protested Sen. Moore [R., Okla.], whose comment was a sample of the opposition immediately aroused. "It is as unsound from labor's standpoint as from the investor's."

The President read his statement to a news conference and it was then sent to the fact finding board he appointed in the General Motors strike, where it was read as the board was in session with company and union representatives.

It came as a surprise to board members and disputing parties alike. Board Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison prefaced his reading of it with the comment that the board had been completely unaware of Mr. Truman's intention to issue it.

Union Boss Grins

As the reading proceeded, a wide grin spread across the face of Walter P. Reuther, director of the CIO-UAW. Charles E. Wilson, General Motors president, said it would not alter the company's stand.

Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the company, contended the President apparently was seeking to authorize the board to go into the price and profits question but that the decision whether to do so still rested with the panel. The board had not actually decided that the question should be considered. It recessed until tomorrow to reach a conclusion on the matter.

The President's formal announcement of his views on the subject came at the conclusion of a day during which Merritt had served notice on the fact finding board that Gen-

Doubt Supply Is Enough to Fill All Needs

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—Tire rationing will end on Jan. 1, Price Administrator Bowles announced tonight.

Bowles said the tire rationing program, one of the first to be instituted when the United States entered the war, can be terminated with the beginning of the new year because tire production has increased steadily during the last two months and for this quarter will be about 11 million. Production has increased particularly in passenger car tires, in which the shortage has been most acute, he said.

The office of price administration and the civilian production administration agreed previously that rationing could be lifted when tire output reached the 11 million quarterly level. John D. Small, civilian production administrator, advised Bowles that production of passenger tires will approximate 4 million in December, and estimated that 66 million passenger tires will be manufactured in 1946.

Can't Meet All Needs

Holders of tire purchase certificates issued under the rationing program will have thru Dec. 31 to turn them in to dealers and obtain passenger car or truck tires before unrationed sales begin. After tomorrow, no additional ration certificates will be issued by the OPA except in emergency cases.

Bowles warned that ending of rationing does not mean there is a large enough supply of tires to meet all demands. He asked all motorists who can wait for new tires to do so until supplies increase.

Care Still Needed

"For many months it will remain important that motorists continue to do everything possible to avoid excessive wear and tear on tires," Bowles said. "There will be many who will have to wait to get tires."

The government's prohibition on spare tires for new automobiles will continue, along with restrictions on white side wall tires and tire exports to assure motorists the maximum number of replacements. Bowles said that price control over tires will continue also and will be "closely checked."

Tire rationing began Jan. 5, 1942. Tire stocks in dealers' hands were frozen by the government the day after Pearl Harbor.

CHICAGO INVENTORY GOOD

Rae E. Walters, regional director of the office of price administration, said yesterday he had been hoping for the end of tire rationing. He said that Chicago's inventory of tires had been well maintained during the critical periods. The last inventory, as of June 30, showed, Walters said, that Chicago had on hand 106,158 passenger car tires, 20,895 small truck tires, and 26,021 large truck tires.

MOTHER, BABY DRAGGED BLOCK BY CAR AND LIVE

After alighting from a Vincennes av. street car at 76th st., with her son, Kenneth, 17 months old, in her arms, Mrs. Doris Adams, 26, of 7544 Stewart av., last night crossed in front of the car and slipped on an icy rail as it started.

The car bumper caught her coat and dragged her along just clear of the spinning wheels until Motorman Alex Hodowanic, 35, of 5425 Kenmore av., stopped at 75th st. He said he had not seen Mrs. Adams fall or heard her criers, but he investigated because "I thought something was wrong."

Mrs. Adams, with the baby tight in her arms, was still fast to the bumper. "I was almost frightened to death by the terrible noise of the wheels," she said. Physicians at St. George's hospital said the baby suffered a severe bump on his head. His mother, suffering gravely from shock, also was bruised.

'STRANGERS' FLY IN BIRD COLONY

Feed Starving Birds

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 20 (AP)—A ton of grain for birds facing starvation because of the heavy snowfall was dropped over wooded areas of St. Louis today by members of the humane society and volunteers of the civil air patrol.

Even the bird population is shifting these days. Many regulars in Chicago's winter bird colony are poorly represented, if at all, while some new feathers belonging to arctic dwellers are showing up here for the season.

The probable cause of the unusual movement is food shortages, said Leo K. Couch, assistant chief of wild life research of the fish and wildlife service of the department of interior and president of the Chicago Ornithological society.

Seeking food here, just as Chicago birds have evidently gone south on the same quest, are such strangers to the area as an elder duck and snowy owls. Couch said the elder duck, commonly seen on both coasts, had spent two or three days in the lake off Belmont harbor this week and had probably gone out into the lake now for the winter.

Usually Stay North of U. S.

The snowy owls are arctic birds that almost never come as far south as the United States, but they are around this section for the winter. And the pine grosbeaks, which generally winter north of this area, are here also.

Of the regulars, Couch said, apparently there were fewer birds of all kinds except the seagulls. The seagulls are just as abundant as ever.

Flickers and song sparrows are in the forest preserve and juncos are in the preserve and parks. Downy and hairy woodpeckers are here as are bluejays, but Couch said he had had no report of a cardinal since the snowstorms began. Brown creepers haven't been seen since fall and the robins are nearly all gone.

Only Two Types Seen

Paul E. Downing, 835 Waukegan rd., Highland Park, who has banded 10,000 birds in 10 years, reported he had noted a distinct drop in Highland Park's winter bird groups and said he'd seen no bluejays in weeks.

At the forest preserve's trailside museum at Thatcher rd. and Chicago av., River Forest, it was reported that few birds except English sparrows and crows had been observed taking the daily food offerings.

Mrs. Amy Baldwin, 6335 Kimbark av., member of the Illinois Audubon society and of the Ornithological society, added the American crossbill, short-eared and long-eared owls, and sapsuckers to the list of birds seen recently.

Labor Trouble Forces Santa to Quit Singing in the Bathtub

BY THOMAS MORROW
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Flint, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special]—Santa Claus got slugged during the present labor controversy in Flint.

This came to light as Santa and three assisting elves remained mournfully silent in a local department store window to the considerable disquiet of the Flint junior set. Sant's earlier efforts had fetched a large following to his lair.

Santa—a mechanical Santa— sat in a bathtub, scrubbed his back, sang, and exchanged loudspeaker persiflage with his elves. The elves, equally mechanical, performed homey little chores like handing Santa the soap.

Police Chief Acts.

Then one morning the cheery ablutions halted. Santa sat sadly in the tub, while the elves maintained a discreet silence. Inquiry disclosed that Police Chief James T. Byars, put in the lineup to hit for Scrooge, had quieted Kris Kringle because he was violating a city anti-noise ordinance.

Asked why the action was taken, Chief Byars first mentioned "head men of the CIO," then reversed his field and said the complaint came from an anonymous caller. He did aver, however, that the caller held it discrimination to allow Santa to giggle thru a loudspeaker while union sound trucks could not operate.

Next came to light the fact that Jacob Waldo, Flint director of the CIO political action committee, and Archie Myers, president of the AC CIO United Automobile workers local, were awaiting trial for violating the anti-noise ordinance. They were picked up while using a sound truck at the AC Spark Plug plant.

Public Is Angry

The public entered the controversy. Bitter letters began to pelt the local newspaper. One woman asserted via mail that the CIO should be content with removing Christmas from the children without taking a cut at Santa Claus. The city council began hearings to chisel a hole in the ordinance to relieve the legal laryngitis afflicting Santa.

Another acid fellow inquired if the Salvation Army lassies were not violating the ordinances, what with their pealing of bells and crooning of Christmas carols. As the Yule galloped up, however, Santa maintained silence, the elves sat sadly by with their soap, and there seemed to be no surcease.

The only strategy suggestion here held that the local Kris Kringles should throw together a union. Then, this school of thought held, they should comb out their beards and go out and picket the pickets at the AC plant.

'Foolish Words'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 20—An angry middle aged woman today grabbed Santa Claus by the beard in a Paris department store, and it took three policemen to separate them.

Santa Claus stood on the first floor in the middle of a big crowd, asking children, "Have you been good during the year?"

The woman rushed up, slapped his face, seized his beard, and cried: "Children of France, conditions are shameful. Why listen to these foolish words?" Store clerks tugged at the woman, but she held on to Santa. Then the police came. Children cried and screamed as they saw Santa Claus trying to protect himself.

TRUTH, THEY SAY: 4 PERFECT HANDS IN BRIDGE GAME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 20—Four Ottawa women bridge players remained unshaken today in their story that in a bridge game Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. F. V. Kent here each received a perfect hand after the cards were shuffled, cut, and dealt in orthodox fashion.

The women said they were so surprised when each received all 13 cards of one suit that they forgot to bid and the hand was never played.

According to an official bridge statician, the chance of getting four perfect hands in a bridge game is one out of 100,000,000,000,000,000,000.

SPRING SAILING OFF, GI'S TOLD BY WEDEMEYER

Marshall to Confer with Chiang Today

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 20 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer told American troops in China today that in view of President Truman's recent Chinese policy statement their return home would be delayed.

"As a matter of fact," he said in a radio address to his troops following a conference with Gen. Marshall, "I have had to cancel two ships this month as a result of changes in our evacuation plan."

The general said that until recently United States policy would have permitted the withdrawal of practically all American forces in China by the first of the year or by early spring, but this was not now possible in line with the President's statement.

Must Disarm Japs

The President said the United States had assumed a definite obligation in the disarmament and evacuation of Japanese troops from China, and that "the maintenance of peace in the Pacific may be jeopardized unless Japanese influence in China is wholly removed and unless China takes her place as a unified, democratic, and peaceful nation. This is the purpose of the maintenance for the time being of United States military and naval forces in China."

Simultaneously with Gen. Marshall's arrival from Manila today, a communist peace parley delegate in Chungking announced his side is ready with concessions for unity. He handed the national government a request for an immediate cessation of the fighting.

Will Go to Chungking

The Communist delegate, Lu Ting-yi, said the Communists no longer would insist that national forces withdraw to positions they occupied before Japan's surrender, but would agree that both sides stay where they are.

Marshall was believed prepared to exert every effort to bring the Communists into a unified government. He will go on to Chungking with Chiang. Marshall also may learn in Nanking the latest progress of Chinese-Russian negotiations over Manchuria.

CROWDS GREET MARSHALL

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 20—Gen. Marshall, America's special ambassador to China, is scheduled to go to Nanking tomorrow to present his credentials to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek after receiving a warm welcome here from thousands of Chinese who apparently regarded him as the man who can save China from civil war.

Marshall arrived at Kiangwan airport this afternoon after a flight from Manila and was greeted by ranking American army and navy officers, representatives of the generalissimo and an honor guard from the new Chinese 6th army.

As he stepped from the plane he shook hands with Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer and United States Minister Walter S. Robertson. After standing at attention while a band played the United States and Chinese national anthems he inspected the guard and then drove into the city.

Thousands Greet Him

Along the 10 mile route from the airport Marshall saw armed soldiers guarding the route at 100 yard intervals, Japanese troops now in labor battalions, and thousands of gallons of aviation gasoline stacked around the field jammed with American planes, many of them marked with the Chinese emblem.

But it was in the downtown area that he received the big reception. Thousands of Chinese lined the route. Women raised babies to see him pass, barefoot rickshaw boys rested against the cold pavement to gaze at him, and smartly uniformed boy and girl scouts stood at attention.

SUPREME COURT GRANTS HEARING TO YAMASHITA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—The Supreme court today decided to hear oral arguments on whether to intervene in the Manila military trial which sentenced Gen. Yamashita to death for condoning atrocities.

The justices issued a formal order which announced the court's desire to hear arguments in open court Jan. 7. The order said all action on the request by Yamashita for intervention in the military trial would be withheld pending the argument.

United States army lawyers who defended him at the Manila trial are expected to appear before the Supreme court to argue on his behalf. Other army lawyers will oppose Yamashita's request. The justice department also is expected to be represented by attorneys who will oppose the Yamashita petitions. The department earlier filed a brief with the court urging it to keep hands off the case.

The Supreme court last Monday granted a stay of execution to Yamashita after receiving from his attorneys a petition for review of a ruling by the Philippine Supreme court.

2 'Shanghaied' by U. S., Freed After 3 Years

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 20 [Special]—Freedom after nearly three years of internment was won today by two citizens of Guatemala who are among a group of about 180 Central Americans allegedly "kidnaped" and brought to the United States in a war time roundup of supposed nazi sympathizers.

Carlos Daetz Villella and Helmut Sapper were released in Federal court after habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Charles J. Vogel.

But no sooner were they freed than they were rearrested on charges of being in the United States illegally because they did not have visas, despite their contention that they were virtually "shanghaied" here rather than having come of their own volition.

Notifies Immigration Chief

That action was quickly canceled, however, after their attorney, George C. Dix of New York, telephoned to Washington, D. C., and talked to Ugo Carusi, United States commissioner of immigration and naturalization.

The two Guatemalans have been held with about 90 other Central Americans at the Fort Lincoln internment camp in Bismarck. Approximately the same number of other Central Americans are being similarly held at Ellis Island, N. Y.

It was asserted that all have been held without charge and that none had been given hearings until the present case here.

Villella's unusual experiences, considered typical of the lot that befell the entire group of 180, were disclosed by the Rev. E. J. F. Moeller, Protestant pastor of the internees at Fort Lincoln. He gave the following account of the case:

Educated in Germany

Villella was born in Guatemala of a native mother and a German immigrant father. He was educated in Guatemala, and, later, in Hamburg, Germany to which his family

DOMINICK INVADES NOTTINGHAM; WINS OBJECTIVE—BRIDE

NOTTINGHAM, England, Dec. 20 (AP)—Major objectives fell quickly today to Dominick Casciari, 22 year old former paratrooper from New Canaan, Conn., whose first post-war mission was to fly to England from the United States with "purpose matrimony" on his passport.

Soon after landing, Dominick won the consent of Ferdinand Blankley, a public works employe, to marry Blankley's pretty, dark haired daughter, Rita, 17. And Rita was wearing the diamond engagement ring that Dominick brought with him.

Blankley had told the paratrooper to "come and see me after the war" when Dominick asked for Rita's hand.

The wedding was set for "some time after Christmas."

UNO DELEGATES CENSURED BUT ARE CONFIRMED

Mrs. F. D. R. Among Those Approved

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and President Truman's other nominees for posts as American spokesmen in the new united nations organization were confirmed by the senate today after Mrs. Roosevelt's nomination had been protested in both houses of congress.

Mr. Truman's choice of former State Secretary Stettinius as American representative on the league's security council also brought criticism in the senate.

And the nomination of former Postmaster General Walker as an alternate in the league's general assembly came in for bitter criticism in the senate.

Salary $12,000 Year

Mrs. Roosevelt is to be a $12,000 a year member of the American delegation to the general assembly, which meets Jan. 10 in London.

Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.] told the house that he is "profoundly disturbed" by the selection of Mrs. Roosevelt. He said he did not believe her appointment would work for unity.

Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] commented that Vursell evidently feared the league would "develop into an international Eleanor club."

Bilbo Gives Reasons

Sen. Bilbo [D., Miss.] told the senate that 98 or 99 per cent of the people of his state would object to the appointment of the late President Roosevelt's widow, and that the reasons for voting against her were well founded. He said he would not take up the senate's time giving his reasons, but said he was going to publish a book on the subject in March.

Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] branded the new league "pure bunk," in a rebuke to Stettinius. Langer said: "I look askance at his connections, which I consider to be those associated with the rapidly declining system of special privilege, a kind of financial plutocracy which no longer is in tune with the age.

"I voted against the united nations organization because I considered it a phony foisted upon the American people."

Predicts Failure

Langer predicted that the league will fail more miserably than the old league of nations.

Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.], a leading internationalist, led the attack on Walker. Fulbright said American foreign affairs should be entrusted to men experienced in international relations, and argued that Walker has no experience to fit him for his new post.

But Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] and other administration leaders rushed to Walker's defense, as they had done in Mrs. Roosevelt's case.

Praises Mrs. F. D. R.

Among those who praised Mrs. Roosevelt was Sen. Taylor [D., Idaho], sometimes known as "the singing cowboy."

Taylor indorsed the league as a step in the right direction, but said he believes in a world government.

Confirmed with Stettinius and Mrs. Roosevelt were the others who will serve in the assembly: Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Sen. Connally [D., Tex.]. Stettinius will be senior member of the American delegation to the assembly, as well as the United States representative in the council.

Alternates with Walker are: Rep. Bloom [D., N. Y.], Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], John Foster Dulles, and former Sen. John G. Townsend of Delaware.

TWELVE TO TOUR U. S.

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 20—Bewildered by conflicting claims from cities in the United States and unfamiliar with the governmental setup, delegates to the united nations preparatory com mission tonight created a special interim committee on permanent headquarters for the new world organization with power to make an inspection tour of the United States to eliminate cities which appear to be undesirable.

This group, composed of delegates from 12 countries, will sift out all available evidence and choose half a dozen likely sites for the UNO capital. It will report its findings to the first session of the general assembly, which is scheduled to convene in London on Jan. 10. Sixteen American cities are candidates for the UNO site.

Get Four More Bids

Hearings ended today on petitions from American cities as a subcommittee listened to the presentation of cases for St. Louis, New Orleans, Cincinnati, and Ridgefield, Conn.

Composition of the interim group precipitated a lively discussion. Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, Yugoslav undersecretary for foreign affairs, who has been chairman of the subcommittee hearing the delegations from United States cities, proposed a committee of 10 composed of representatives from Australia, China, Cuba, France, Iran, the Netherlands, the soviet union, the United Kingdom, Uruguay, and Yugoslavia.

When the countries were announced, Awny el Khalidi, secretary of the Iraq legation in London, jumped to his feet.

"I should like to know why there has been no consideration for countries to the west or Iran," asked the delegate from Iraq. "I'll say for my country and other Arab countries, we are strongly interested in the matter."

Poland Gets Place, too

Nasrullah Entezam, former minister of foreign affairs for Iran, who was sitting next to the irate Iraqi delegate, said he would be willing to yield his place on the committee in order to satisfy his colleague.

"It isn't my intention to rob the delegate from Iran of his place on the committee," said Khalidi, "but are these gentlemen experts on America or something?"

P. J. Noel-Baker, British minister of state, suggested there wasn't much difference between 10 or 11 and so Iraq got a place on the committee. The soviet delegation said there wasn't much difference between 11 and 12, so Poland ought to be on the committee. Poland got on.

ARGENTINA SETS UP INSTITUTE TO FIX WAGE RATES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 20 (AP)—Argentina's military government today created a national institute to fix all workers' wages, ordered an annual bonus of one month's pay for all employes, and immediate raises for persons earning less than 1,000 pesos [$247] monthly.

The government agency, known as the national institute of salaries, ordered all employers to start the annual bonus system Dec. 31, but to make the salary and wage adjustments, covering the rise in cost of living, retroactive to Dec. 1.

A sliding scale of salary and adjustments gives workers earning 300 pesos a month an increase of about 25 per cent; from 200 to 400 a month, an increase of about 20 per cent; from 400 to 600, 10 per cent; from 600 to 800, about 5 per cent, while salaries above 800 would be raised to about 920 pesos. Household servants are excepted from the rulings.

COURT ASKED TO FREE JAPS IN YANK'S MURDER

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 21 [Friday] (AP)—The prosecution completed its presentation of war crimes testimony against Tatsuo Tsuchiya, former guard at a Japanese prison camp, today, and the defense immediately demanded acquittal on grounds the defendant had not been identified as accused.

The military commission trying Tsuchiya on charges of having murdered American Pfc. Robert Gordon Teas of Streator, Ill., was to hear arguments on the motion this afternoon.

Lt. Col. John Dickinson, chief of defense counsel, charged that prosecution affidavits from liberated prisoners of Mitsushima camp were confusing and conflicting and that the prosecution had not proved its case beyond reasonable doubt. He said two guards at the camp were dubbed "Glass Eye" by Yanks in their custody and that Tsuchiya had not been identified positively as the "Little Glass Eye" accused of Teas' murder.

QUILL READY 'TO SLUG IT OUT' TO WIN STRIKE

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Michael Quill, international president of the CIO transport workers union, said tonight that if American workers cannot get their "rights" in legislative halls "we will slug it out on the streets and in the factories."

Addressing a Columbus circle rally supporting the General Motors strike, Quill called the walkout "only the first round" in a struggle of American workers.

"We want to tell the American people and the powers that be, that in America we will not have the repetition of labor breaking which we had following the last war," Quill said. "Before we go back to starvation wages, breadlines, the Ku Klux Klan, and race riots, and if we cannot get our rights in a legislative way, we will slug it out on the streets and in the factories."

Addresses Club

Atty. Gen. Clark addressing Executives' club luncheon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Contempt for law engendered during prohibition now is reaping a harvest of black market operations and a wave of juvenile crime that makes previous youthful lawlessness look like pranks by comparison, United States Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Clark said yesterday at the Executives Club of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman.

He cited figures of juvenile crime, showing that persons under 21 years of age perpetrated 15 per cent of the nation's murders, 36 per cent of robberies, 51 per cent of burglaries, 34 per cent of thefts, 26 per cent of arson cases, 62 per cent of auto thefts, and 30 per cent of rapes.

More persons 17 years old are being arrested than any other age group, Clark asserted. He said crime among females under 18 had increased 198 per cent since 1939 and that for males under 18 homicides had increased 48 per cent, rape 70 per cent, robbery 39 per cent, assault 73 per cent, auto thefts 55 per cent, and drunkenness 101 per cent.

JAP CONFESSES MASSACRE OF 96 WAKE CIVILIANS

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 20 (AP)—The navy announced today Japanese massacred 96 American civilian prisoners on Wake Island in October, 1943, while expecting an invasion by United States troops.

The mass execution was charged by the war crimes commission at Kwajalein, where Rear Adm. Shigimatsu Sakaibara of the Japanese navy will go on trial tomorrow as the commander of Wake who issued the order. The announcement said Lt. Toraji Ito asserted in a confession that Sakaibara ordered the civilians killed. Ito committed suicide two days ago in a prison camp on Kwajalein.

Previously the Japanese had claimed that the civilians were killed by a bomb hit on an air raid shelter or were shot when they tried to escape from the prison camp.

CARS DELAYED, GIs CAN'T SPEND YULE AT HOME

Break for Patients

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—About 150 litter patients at Halloran General hospital, who thought they'd spend the first Christmas since the war ended in a hospital, are going home by train and plane for 12 day vacations with all expenses paid. A contribution of $15,000 by the Retail Associates, a group of retail and allied industries, thru the chaplain corps fund will make it possible for the soldiers to go by Pullman or air liner to join their families.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 [Special]—Bad weather which delayed the movement of rail cars today wiped out the last hopes of thousands of soldiers and sailors stranded in west coast ports for Christmas at home.

More than 1,000 coaches requisitioned from railroad's several days ago failed to reach the coast.

In Washington, D. C., an investigation of delays in transporting men landing at west coast ports was ordered by the senate's war investigation committee.

Public Hearings Today

It set public hearings for tomorrow and asked J. Monroe Johnson, defense transportation director, to appear as the first witness. Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] said the committee was concerned over the "bottleneck in transportation" which will prevent service men and women reaching west coast ports from continuing to their homes promptly.

The New York army port of embarkation announced that troops arriving there before noon Saturday can expect to be home Christmas unless they live in the west or distant parts of the south.

To hurry men and women on their way, officers said, the normal processing time is being sliced to a minimum.

Planes Forced Down

For some 20,000 men who are expected to reach New York late Monday or Tuesday at least part of the holiday will be spent going thru formalities attending their return and the granting of furloughs.

Two giant aerial troop carriers whch took off from Dayton, O., for Seattle, Wash., to speed midwestern veterans to their homes landed at Great Falls, Mont., because of weather conditions.

West coast cities are planning Christmas parties for the stranded service men. Army finance officers boarded all ships today and gave each soldier a $10 advance on December pay for spending money if they go ashore.

Movies and entertainment were arranged for ships and docks.

An "invite him home for dinner" campaign was started by cities and newspapers. The purpose was to give the veterans an opportunity to spend the holiday in an American home, even if not their own.

Soldiers reaching ports here expressed different reactions to the transportation tieup.

"Same Old Game"

Corp. A. L. Holzman of Long Island, N. Y., said, "It's part of the same old game. Hurry up, hurry up, take it on the double; then wait, wait, wait."

Sgt. Joseph D. Standlee of Vernon, Tex., was happy. "We're so used to sitting around in overseas harbors waiting to get off transports," he said, "that it's a treat to be able to get off here at all. It's swell again to see ladies with shoes on."

The backlog of veterans stranded here was placed at 50,667 today. This marked an increase of 15,133 over yesterday. About 3,000 soldiers were moved out by rail, but this was 1,000 below the normal flow.

1,681 in Quarantine

The air lines had been carrying out 300 a day but the number dropped to 100 today because of the weather.

The army ordered Christmas in quarantine for 1,861 men aboard the troop ship Grundy, which debarked one man ill with smallpox at Astoria, Ore. The vessel was ordered to put in at Portland, Ore., where it will be under quarantine until the day after Christmas.

Delay in the construction of 1,200 government troop sleepers, expected to be ready by Dec. 1, was given as one of the causes for the shortage of railroad cars. C. E. Peterson, vice president in charge of Southern Pacific passenger traffic, said strike conditions were holding up delivery of the cars.

Elected

State's Attorneys Tuohy (left) and Daniels congratulating each other on their election yesterday.

The Illinois State's Attorneys association yesterday passed a resolution approving and commending Henry D. Lewis, Warren county state's attorney, for his prosecution of Richard [Dickie] Sells, 13, who was sentenced to serve 50 years in prison for the murder of a 78 year old woman in that county last September. The case was aired by the association Wednesday.

One of the resolutions adopted by the association before adjourning approved a committee to be formed to examine the Illinois criminal code and prepare amendments and revisions for action at the next meeting to be held shortly before the next legislature convenes.

Lee E. Daniels of Du Page county was elected president of the association to succeed Lyle R. Wheeler of Havana, Mason county. William J. Tuohy, Cook county prosecutor, was elected secretary and treasurer, and Thomas Sweeney of Taylorville, Christian county, was chosen first vice president.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., REPORTED SITE OF UNO CAPITAL

Despite rumors that Hyde Park, N. Y., the home of the late President Roosevelt is to be the site of the capital of the united nations organization, both Mayor Kelly and Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes said yesterday that they had not given up hope that Chicago may be chosen by the united nations preparatory commission.

The rumors that persisted here yesterday were that Hyde Park would be chosen, not only because American state department officials favored a seaboard location, but also because many Europeans felt that site should be selected as a tribute to Roosevelt.

The plan, it was reported, is to establish temporary headquarters in New York City while an entirely new city is being constructed near or on the Roosevelt estate.

FRENCH COURTS FALL BEHIND IN DIVORCE RUSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 20—The biggest divorce rush in the history of France is jamming French courts already overtaxed by collaboration trials. Today it was announced that 3,000 divorce cases were handled in the Paris area alone during November.

To ease the pressure on Paris magistrates who so far this year have granted 20,000 divorces, twice the number last year, a specially enlarged conciliation section has been organized and is working overtime to reunite married couples.

Divorce petitions are filed by about 500 persons in Paris each week. Returning French prisoners figure prominently in divorce petitions.

ARMY TO DECIDE SOON ON GIVING UP DOUGLAS SITE

City Expects to Get It for an Airport

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—The army air forces said today that a decision as to whether the Douglas air field near Park Ridge, Ill., will be declared surplus so that the city of Chicago can acquire it for a municipal airport will be reached and announced "reasonably soon."

The AAF did not disclose definitely when the decision will be made. Washington headquarters said the announcement will be made in Chicago.

Meanwhile, Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], who with Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green has been attempting to cut the official red tape delaying action on the Douglas site, reported he has been informed by the war department that everything possible is being done to expedite a final decision so the city can act.

Survey Being Made

Brooks said the war department is making a survey of what can be declared surplus at the Douglas plant, which turned out four engined C-54 planes during the war. At one time, the plant buildings were declared surplus, but the war department retook possession last month. The air field never has been released as surplus.

Brooks said he understood the AAF plans to use the buildings for storage. This would permit cancellation of several leases on storage space in the Chicago area and consolidation of most of the storage in the Douglas buildings, the senator said.

When Mayor Kelly was in Washington last month in connection with acquisition of the Douglas air field, he agreed to war department proposals that AAF shops and hangars be kept on the field even if the city takes it over for an airport. At that time, Kelly said the acquisition by Chicago was "practically settled," and that the Douglas site could be obtained at nominal cost. Kelly said that once the field is released by the AAF to the surplus property administration, the SPA would grant Chicago's claim without question.

Official Pledges Help

Arthur W. Manley, chief of the airport section of the SPA's real estate division, today, pledged his active coöperation in expediting Chicago's acquisition of the Douglas field. He explained, however, that the SPA can do nothing until the AAF releases the site as surplus. He said he understood that the AAF has delayed releasing the field because it is still being used for military purposes, but that a decision could be expected before long.

Manley said he has been in close contact with Chicago city representatives regarding the Douglas air field, and that he has received the city's plans for a new air terminal there.

A huge St. Bernard dog, bought by Herbert Block, 23, of 1950 W. 34th pl., an ex-army sergeant, three days ago as his own Christmas present, nearly caused tragedy yesterday.

The dog, Don, weighing 200 pounds attacked Sharon Murray, 7 of 3641 S. Damen av., as she went into the basement to play with him. The child was in the care of her grand aunt, Mrs. Mary Bogda, 62, of the 34th pl. address, who also is Block's grandmother.

Mrs. Bogda ran to Sharon's aid and she also was attacked by the St. Bernard. Mrs. Bogda finally beat off the dog with a stove poker. She was bitten on both hands. Sharon was bitten in the face, back, and shoulder. Both victims were treated by Dr. Holmes Wills, 4394 Archer av. The dog was taken to the city pound.

BRITISH WARN U.S. TO WATCH STEP IN AIR LINE DRIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 20—An editorial in the weekly magazine The Aeroplane, leading English aviation weekly, says that America's drive for world trade is aggression pure and unashamed and warns the United States to watch its step.

Answering the charge that Britain is more interested in blocking America's commercial air line expansion than in providing the world with fast, inexpensive transportation, the magazine says that England wants "order in the air" and will not have the world's air routes turned into a "gigantic international gold rush."

"When Pan Am [Pan American world airways] tried to start fare cutting competition in the North Atlantic it was told plainly that we stood for economic operation with a minimum expense to the taxpayers of all countries," the editorial said.

Britain put forward at the Chicago conference last year a fair and reasonable plan to govern world air lines, the editorial continued, but failed to persuade Americans of the sense of this argument.

SENATE PASSES BILL CONTINUING V-12 PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—Some 20,000 V-12 naval reserve students in 66 colleges and universities would be able to continue schooling at government expense until July 1 next under legislation passed by the senate today and sent to the White House.

Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.] told the senate that unless the measure was approved these V-12 students must quit their studies on March 1, in the middle of school terms, or pay their own way.

Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] at first blocked approval, saying it was unfair to army students. After lengthy pleas from both Republicans and Democrats he withdrew his objection.

MAYOR PLEDGES SPEED ON NEW AIRPORT BUILDING

Mayor Kelly promised yesterday that construction on the new terminal building at Chicago airport will proceed with all possible speed when the weather moderates sufficiently for steel to be erected on the foundations already prepared.

Passengers in the present terminal, long since overgrown, are competing for standing room. The building has seats for only 21 persons. The lines have warned that virtually hopeless jamming of passengers, and possibly operational delays in loading and unloading aircraft, are foreseeable within three months, when the first new four-engined Douglas transports are put in service on domestic routes.

No Labor Shortage

"There is no argument about it, we know that we have got to have the building, and we are going to have it," Mayor Kelly said. "It would have been up by this time were it not for the difficulties we had in getting priorities last year, and in securing materials once we had the priorities.

"I have talked with the building trades involved, and have been assured the city will be given all the necessary bricklayers, carpenters, and other building men required. There should be no delay because of labor shortage.

Steel Is Assured

"Most of the steel required now is on hand. Some basic, heavy pieces are still undelivered, but we are assured by the steel company supplying it that the material will be delivered early next month. We are told we will get it even tho the threatened steel strike materializes."

The mayor said he hopes to have the new terminal in use by June 1.

Predicts Action at Douglas

Recent advice from W. S. Symington, chairman of the surplus property disposal board, the mayor said, indicates that the army may be ready to relinquish Douglas airport some time in January.

Once the airport is released to the board, the mayor said, it can be bought by the city with little delay, and condemnation proceedings will be started immediately against surrounding property needed to expand the base to the 5,000-odd acres which will become the main air terminal.

Under the stepped-up-schedule, four-engined flagships will take off from New York every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday; from Washington every Wednesday and Friday, and from Chicago every Monday.

U. S. BATTLESHIP SPEEDS FOR N. Y. THRU DYING GALE

Washington Battered by High Winds

ABOARD THE U. S. S. WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 [Delayed] (AP)—The battleship Washington picked up speed today as gales of hurricane force subsided in the mid-Atlantic.

During the height of the storms the big battlewagon was battered by winds which reached a velocity of almost 90 miles per hour. This cut the ship's speed to a little more than one knot. Some equipment was smashed by waves which climbed more than 100 feet, topping the ship.

The Washington originally was scheduled to dock Friday at New York, but present indications are that she will not make port there until late Saturday or early Sunday.

1,000 VETS ABOARD

The navy said that the Washington, en route from Europe with more than 1,000 veterans aboard, had not been endangered by the buffeting she took.

Augusta Reaches Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH, England, Dec. 20 (AP)—More than 1,100 United States troops arrived today on the storm damaged cruiser Augusta, glad to be out of one of the worst gales "that anybody aboard ever saw" but disappointed that they won't be home for Christmas.

The Augusta put into a Portsmouth dockyard for repairs to her damaged starboard bow. The storm was so bad the ship had to lay to for two days before she could be turned around.

Ships Endangered Off Canada

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 20 (AP)—The British escort carrier Begum and the American freighter Mary Pickersgill were in distress today off the Canadian shore, where a swirling snowstorm was swept into the Atlantic by winds of gale force.

Three other ships, driven ashore earlier, were bufeted by the sea. The fate of two others was undetermined.

The Begum bucked heavy seas in an effort to reach Newfoundland. The 7,210 ton Mary Pickersgill fought toward Halifax at nine knots.

Shipping circles still did not know the whereabouts of the United States freighter Pierre L'Enfant, reported by Boston a week ago to have sent out a plea for assistance. The ship was bound for Europe.

The Greek freighter Dimitrios Chandris, which relayed an SOS Tuesday, was reported taken in tow by an American vessel.

END TESTIMONY ON TRANSIT PRICE OFFER ON DEC. 28

All testimony on the fairness of the price which the Chicago metropolitan transit authority proposes to pay for the Chicago Surface Lines and the elevated system—75 millions for the street car properties and 12 million plus for the "L"—is to be finished Dec. 28 in the federal District court of Judge Michael L. Igoe, it was announced in court yesterday. At that time a date will be set for legal arguments, on completion of which Judge Igoe will begin considering the submission of the offer to the present investors. He must certify that the proposed deal is fair. Several investing groups have assailed the price, which would leave them nothing for their equities, as too low. Testimony on this point has been conflicting.

REDS PUBLICIZE GEORGIAN PLEA FOR TURK AREA

Strategic 180 Mile Strip on Black Sea Sought

MOSCOW, Dec. 20 (AP)—Demands that Turkey cede a strategic 180 mile stretch of her Black sea coast to Russia were published prominently today as the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, and Russia conferred again on problems vital to world peace.

American Secretary Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Foreign Commissar Molotov met for two hours and 20 minutes, starting an hour earlier than usual at 3 p. m. [7 a. m., Chicago time] and adjourning at 5:20 p. m.

The demands for the area, reaching 180 miles southwest of the Russian oil port of Batum to Giresun, and stretching inland as deep as 75 miles, were made in a letter from two intellectuals of the Georgian soviet socialist republic, where Generalissimo Stalin was born.

Appeal to "World Opinion"

The writers, S. R. Djanashia, doctor of historical science, and N. Berdzenishvili, both members of the science academy of the Georgian republic, declared:

"We appeal to world opinion about the situation of our ancient land, taken by Turkey.

"We are not talking about some small territorial dispute. This concerns the seized cradle of our people—a crime which has cut in two our living national body. The Georgian people must get back their land."

The letter demanded that Turkey turn over to the Georgians the districts of Artvin, Ardahan, Oltu, Tortrum, Ispir, Bayburt, Guemuesane, Giresun, and Trabzon [Trebizond].

Seized in 16th Century

The newspapers Izvestia, Red Star, and Pravda published the letter, and said it had been printed earlier in a communist newspaper at Tiflis, the Georgian capital.

The letter traced the history of the Georgian peoples for 2,000 years, declaring that "in far antiquity the Georgian people lived, toiled, and struggled on this territory, creating new centers of civilization and government."

In the 16th century, the letter said, the Turks seized southern Georgia after a bitter fight.

"Georgia has seen many conquerors," it added. "By rights the Turks have deserved the title of the worst of them. They brought only death and destruction."

In 1921, the letter said, the Turks invaded southern Georgia and occupied the southern section of Batum. It charged that under Turkish rule geographical names were changed and historical monuments ruined.

moved. After finishing school there in 1931, Villella worked for a Hamburg exporting firm. In 1933 he returned to Guatemala to assist the business of his father, who accompanied him, and lived there until his strange encounter with authorities.

In December, 1942, he was arrested by Guatemalan police, and was told he was to be sent to the United States. But he was released when transportation arrangements failed. In January, 1943, Guatemalan authorities rearrested him and explained the action was on the demand of the United States government.

Villella's lawyer was told by the Guatemalan police director that no one on earth had the power to defend him and that if he insisted on his legal rights he would be kidnaped and forcibly taken to the United States.

Removed by Soldiers

Villella's uncle, an American citizen, was told by the American minister what "Washington had demanded" and that nothing could be done about it.

On Jan. 16, 1943, Villella and others were taken to an airport by the Guatemalan police and turned over to United States soldiers who loaded them into an army transport plane and flew them to San Antonio, Tex. There an agent of the immigration service told Villella he had entered the United States illegally and could be imprisoned for it.

From San Antonio he was sent to an internment camp at Kenedy, Tex. While there he was told that the Guatemalan government had asked the United States to take charge of him and the others. Several attempts were made to obtain his release, but without success.

In September, 1944, he was among a group moved to Fort Lincoln when the Kenedy camp was closed. The Guatemalan government twice asked for his release, but without results.

Deportation Order Stayed

Last August about 9 of the Central Americans were ordered deported to Germany despite the fact all are citizens of South American republics. Court proceedings in New York resulted in their being held at Ellis Island.

Altho no officials could be found who would talk about the government's side of the matter, it was recalled that many German born or German connected residents of South America were agents of the nazi government. Records of German firms and other information showed that many innocent appearing business men actually were spies for the German government.

Whether this was the contention in the cases of the Guatemalans was not made known but it was assumed that efforts to keep members of the group away from their native countries, by interning them here and trying to deport them to Germany, were based on the belief a resumption of their former activities would not be favorable to this nation.

It was believed in unofficial quarters, however, that the Federal court action here today would result in the release of other men held in the Fort Lincoln internment camp, or at least a wholesale filing of applications for writs of habeas corpus.

CAPT. AUGUST BURNIER WILL GET SILVER AND BRONZE STARS TODAY

Capt. August Burnier, president of the Dairy Employes' union, local 754 of the AFL teamster's union, who joined the army as a private in September, 1942, despite the fact that he was married and had two children, will be awarded the silver star and the bronze star today at the headquarters of the 6th service command, 20 N. Wacker dr.

Capt. August Burnier

While serving as company commander of the 22d infantry, 4th division, in Germany, Burnier lost a leg when he stepped on a land mine. He now is a patient in the Vaughan General hospital. Recently he was reelected president of the union, the office he held when he joined the army.

The awards will be made to Capt. Burnier for meritorious services beyond the call of duty. One will be given him for rescuing some of his fallen men while the company was under fire.

STUDY OF POLIO SAYS FLIES HAD NO MAJOR ROLE

No evidence exists that flies or other insects played a major role in spreading any of the infantile paralysis cases which developed in Chicago last summer, a health department report on a neighborhood block study of the disease said yesterday.

Results of the survey, directed by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health board president, reaffirmed previous findings in a rural Alabama epidemic that patient to patient contact is responsible for transmission of 80 per cent of all cases.

The report, published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association, among other observations, also noted that polio in Chicago was found to be 90 per cent contagious in victims from 1½ to 3½ years old, but less infectious in older groups. Paralysis, it said, occurred in only about one out of six cases here. Since Jan. 1 the disease in Chicago has caused 19 deaths and struck 252 other persons during what has been classified as a nonepidemic year.

BRITAIN TO TEST FRATE SERVICE GLIDERS TODAY

LONDON, Dec. 20—A step toward establishment of commercial glider service will be taken in Britain tomorrow when two transport command Halifax bombers take off at Tarrant Rushton airport on an experimental flight, each towing a Hamilcar glider capable of carrying an eight ton load. The gliders will be fitted with radar equipment to facilitate blind landings. It is reported that if the experiment is successful the transport command intends to extend glider frate service by stages between England and India.

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S THREAT TO QUIT OVER REDS TOLD

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—American Broadcasting company correspondent Larry Tighe reported today from Tokyo that Gen. MacArthur and the Russians had disagreed over which of the Japanese islands soviet forces would occupy, and that as a result Russians will not participate in the occupation at all.

Furthermore, Tighe said, MacArthur told the state department yesterday that if he were not let alone, and if Russia were allowed any further participation in occupation affairs he would resign.

[President Truman said in Washington that Gen. MacArthur had not threatened to resign, and that he did not believe MacArthur had made any such statement.]

"First the Russians wanted to bring an army over here,'" the correspondent asserted. "MacArthur said no, he would permit them to bring one division. But they insisted that they be allowed to occupy Hokkaido, northernmost of the main islands. MacArthur again said no, with the implication that if the Russians ever got into Hokkaido they'd never be dislodged.

News to State Dept.

"MacArthur offered instead to let the Russians into southernmost Kyushu, which would put American troops between them and the occupying force. Then the Russians said no. MacArthur's answer to that amounted to 'all right. Don't send an occupation force; we don't need it anyway.'"

Tighe said tonight in another broadcast that Russia not only has dropped all plans to send occupation forces to Japan as the result of the disagreement, but also has disapproved similar employment of Australians. Tighe said he obtained the information from a very reliable source.

As a consequence of Russia's disapproval he said MacArthur has issued an order to cancel the scheduled departure of Australian soldiers for Japan.

General Denies Disagreement

Later, Tighe broadcast Gen. MacArthur's denial the supreme allied commander and the Russians have disagreed heatedly over occupation policies.

In Washington, the state department said it had never heard of the disagreement. Officials expressed surprise at Tighe's report and said Russia never had shown any interest in sending occupation forces to Japan.

Shintoism Cleans House

TOKYO, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Japanese press today reported that a plan to give Shintoism the status of a peaceful cult has been formulated by the board of shrines on the home ministry. Gen. MacArthur earlier ordered state supported, militaristic Shintoism abolished.

It said the plan would be submitted to the cabinet shortly.

BYRNES, BEVIN JOIN IN TOASTS WITH MOLOTOV

MOSCOW, Dec. 20 (AP)—United States Secretary of State Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Bevin, and Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov drank a round of toasts tonight to the friendship and collaboration of their countries.

Attending a diplomatic reception given by Molotov and his wife at Speridonifka palace, where the three ministers have been meeting daily this week, Byrnes and Bevin joined Molotov in the toasts drunk in champagne and vodka.

Molotov proposed the first toast and it was to Byrnes' health. This was drunk and was followed by many more.

When the party was over Byrnes was asked if he found the pace in Moscow tiring. He replied: "Yes, it is a stiff pace, but after all I was trained in the United States senate. Brother, that is a real school."

RESCUERS PAY '$2,000,000' FOR 3 MARINE FLYERS

Reds of China Wine and Dine Chicagoan

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 20 (AP)—Three more survivors of United States marine plane crashes were brought here today by a rescue team which was fired upon three times by unidentified snipers.

The rescuers persuaded Chinese communists to accept a reward of $2,000,000 in virtually worthless Japanese puppet currency for the safe deliverance of the airmen.

In contrast with six marine flyers who arrived here yesterday and reported they were robbed and kept prisoner by communist forces, the three who returned today said they were wined and dined by the communists.

Chicago Lieutenant Back

Today's arrivals were: Second Lt. Wesley Sizoo, 10228 Lafayette av., Chicago; his mechanic, T/Sgt. Norbert J. Krolicki, Detroit, Mich., and 2d Lt. Robert E. Blount, Independence, Kas.

Sizoo's plane was one of three which crashed Dec. 11 on the way from Okinawa to Tsingtao.

Blount was one of two survivors of six marine planes which crashed in a snowstorm Dec. 8 over the Shantung peninsula.

Blount said the other survivor, who previously was reported to have suffered a broken leg, actually had only a gashed knee. He is receiving medical treatment by the communists.

Gets Parting Gifts

Sizoo said the communists had given him a case of brandy and a toothbrush as parting gifts.

The rescue party, which made the trip into the interior by jeep and on horseback, included army Capt. Fred E. Hubbard, Green Bay, Wis.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 21—Landing of the Pilgrims

THE story of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth comes to us shrouded in the mists of legend and tradition. However, this much is certain. In the final month of 1620 a sturdy group of zealously religious Englishmen and Englishwomen, searching for a place in the new world where they could live and worship according to the dictates of their consciences, founded on the Massachusetts coast near the 42d parallel of north latitude the first permanent white settlement in New England.

It is also known that they left Plymouth, England, the previous September in the 180 ton Mayflower bound for a point on the North American coast south of the Hudson river. It is conjectured that foul weather prevented accurate navigation. At any rate the Mayflower made its landfall in November on the New England rather than the middle Atlantic coast and a combination of shoal water and adverse winds made it impracticable to go any farther south.

Thru late November and early December parties from the Mayflower explored the coasts of Cape Cod and of the mainland. The place finally decided on for a settlement was a sheltered area on Plymouth harbor, where streams of fresh water fell into the sea.

On Dec. 21, so the story goes, a small boat carrying 17 persons landed there. The place was found to be satisfactory and a few days later the Mayflower, which had been anchored afar off, brought over the remaining immigrants.

The group which thus began its struggle with the hostile wilderness consisted of about 53 men, 18 women, 20 boys, and eight girls. One of the children, Oceanus Hopkins, had been born at sea. Another, Peregrine White, was born on the Mayflower after the ship had reached the New England coast.

HOMMA ACCUSED OF WITNESSING MARCH OF DEATH

MANILA, Dec. 20 (AP)—Broadened charges against Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma accused him today of having been a personal witness to the Bataan death march and of responsibility for a second death march of American prisoners in the Luzon mountains in 1942.

Lt. Col. Frank E. Meek of Caldwell, Ida., who will prosecute Homma before an American military commission starting Jan. 3, said five new specifications had been filed against the conqueror of the Philippines. They state that Homma, lolling in his automobile, actually watched the march of the starving prisoners on Bataan.

Later more than 100 sick American prisoners were forced to serve as pack animals for Japanese supplies in northern Luzon and were pushed over cliffs when they wavered. Homma is accused of being "utterly unscrupulous" in the surrender of Gen. Wainwright, using the American commander as a hostage to try to force other units to surrender.

FINNS DEBATE YULE CELL FOR 8 IN WAR TRIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 20 — The state prosecutor today demanded that all eight defendants in Finland's war responsibility trial be held behind bars during the suspension of proceedings over the Christmas holidays. After 3½ hour's deliberation, the court still had not decided the issue.

The proceedings were to have been suspended this afternoon, but the unexpected deadlock made it necessary to call an extra session for tomorrow morning. Upon the court's decision may rest the future of Finnish-soviet relations. Premier Juho K. Paasikivi said in a speech recently that Moscow considers the trial a test of Finland's good intentions.

The opinion of the allied control commission, which has taken a hand in the proceedings on two occasions, is expected to weigh heavily in both tomorrow's interim decision and the final verdict.

REJECT MOVE FOR AUTONOMY OF AZERBAIJAN

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 19 (AP)—Parliamentary supporters of Premier Ibrahim Hakimi today shouted down a proposal for changes in the Iranian constitution to allow for negotiations with the national government of Iranian Azerbaijan.

The proposal, submitted by minority leader Dr. M. Mosadegh, would in effect have granted the semi-autonomy already proclaimed by insurgent leaders in Tabriz, capital of the northwestern province which has been occupied by the Russians since 1941.

Mosadegh suggested reorganization of the entire Iranian government, as a federation of "partly autonomous" states.

ADMIRAL BARES NAVY SUSPICION OF HAWAII PERIL

Felt It Was '50-50' Japs Would Attack

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—Adm. Richmond K. Turner, navy chief of war plans at the time of Pearl Harbor, declared today he estimated in late November, 1941, that there was a "50-50 chance" of an imminent "heavy raid" on Hawaii by Jap naval forces.

He told the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee he based this estimate on "very significant" developments detected by United States intelligence about Nov. 26 or Nov. 27, 10 days before the Jap attack.

At that time, he said, there was a sudden drop in radio communication among Japan's naval vessels, and the Japs changed their naval code. This indicated, he continued, that the entire Jap fleet planned major operations.

Two Moves Indicated

It indicated to him, Turner continued, that a large part of the fleet was heading either for a "covering" operation of Japan's mandated islands in the Central Pacific, or for Hawaii to attack.

"I thought," he told the committee, "that there was a 50-50 chance either that we would get a heavy raid on Hawaii or that the Jap fleet would deploy in the mandates."

His statement astonished members of the committee and its counsel, William D. Mitchell, who was questioning Turner at the time. Mitchell observed that Hawaii was never warned it was in such danger from Japan.

The house and senate, meantime, voted the committee an extension to Feb. 15 for its inquiry. Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] told the senate the committee could not possibly report by Jan. 3, as instructed originally. Barkley said he believed all the evidence could be taken by Feb. 15, but that more time might be asked in which to prepare a report.

Duty To Initiate Warnings

In earlier testimony today, Turner explained it was his duty, as war plans chief, "to initiate and prepare" messages from Washington to Adm. Kimmel, naval commander at Hawaii, and other overseas fleet units, to warn them of any threats of war.

Reminding him of this testimony, Mitchell observed that a Nov. 27 "war warning" to Kimmel from Adm. Stark, chief of naval operations, did not mention Pearl Harbor as even a possible point of attack. After Turner admitted he prepared the warning, Mitchell said:

"That warning speaks of an indicated Japanese attack against the Philippines, Thailand, the Kra peninsula, or possibly Borneo. If you thought there was a 50-50 chance of an attack on Hawaii, why didn't you at least mention it in preparing that message?"

Kimmel Instructed

"The message," Turner replied, "was directed to Adm. Kimmel and told him to execute a certain defensive deployment. In my opinion, that fully covered the situation at Hawaii. The purpose of mentioning the other possible attack points was to indicate to the fleet commanders the nature and direction of the major Jap war drive."

Then, he asserted, he had thought 10 days before the attack that the chances of the Japs hitting Pearl Harbor were "at least 50-50."

"Well," Mitchell commented, "we have found a lot of thinking among military and naval officers about defending Hawaii against air attacks up to about Aug. 1, 1941. But we haven't heard any witness yet who thought late in 1941 that there was any 50 per cent chance of an actual Jap attack on Hawaii."

Turner retorted that this had been the opinion "all along" of high naval and army officers in Washington.

Confers with Ingersoll

The witness did not say whether he ever submitted his "50-50" estimate to Adm. Stark, chief of naval operations, or Stark's deputy, Adm. Royall E. Ingersoll. He testified, however, that he and Ingersoll had a conference of more than an hour on Dec. 5, 1941, to discuss what should be done, if anything, in the way of additional warnings to Adm. Kimmel and Adm. Thomas C. Hart, commander of the Asiatic fleet. No war warning had been sent out since the Nov. 27 message.

"We [Ingersoll and Turner] came to the conclusion," the witness said, "that everything had been done that ought to be done."

The two officers then went to see Adm. Stark, and all three agreed Kimmel and Short needed no further information, as they had been told Nov. 27 to alert their commands, the admiral continued.

Turner's discussion of the probability of a Jap thrust at Hawaii arose when he was questioned by Mitchell about the "disappearance" of a Jap carrier task force in late November, 1941, from our observation and intelligence units.

He then recounted the virtual radio silence and change of the Jap code about that time, and indicated that our intelligence actually lost track of most of the Jap fleet, except for that portion in the China sea.

The witness said the "defensive deployment" assigned to Kimmel in the Nov. 27 message as "WPL 46" called for definite steps by the Hawaii naval commander.

Plan Calls for Defense

This plan he explained, called upon Kimmel to prepare to defend his base, capture the Caroline and Marshall islands, keep sea lanes open, sink Japan-bound shipping, and set up restricted sea zones. The steps were to be preparatory, in the event war came.

Turner said he "assumed" Adm. Kimmel, after getting the Nov. 27 war warning, would send "most or all" of his fleet to sea in a "defensive deployment" instead of keeping it in Pearl Harbor.

Records show that the army's Nov. 27 warning to Hawaii, of which the navy sent Kimmel a copy on Nov. 28, warned against taking any overt act that might give Japan an excuse to make war. This instruction was inserted on direct orders from President Roosevelt, according to previous testimony by Gen. Marshall.

Thought Fleet at Sea

Turner was not asked today whether the sudden putting to sea of most or all of the fleet prepared for battle might have been construed as an overt act.

He asserted that for days before the Pearl Harbor attack he assumed the fleet was at sea.

Turner told the committee earlier that he thought war with Japan was unavoidable by July, 1941, when, he recalled, the United States placed an embargo on shipment of war materials to Japan.

"I thought that action made war with Japan inevitable," he said.

Pact Made with British

Other highlights of today's hearing included:

1. Disclosure that Adm. Hart made an agreement on Dec. 6, 1941, with British Adm. Tom S. V. Phillips, commander at Singapore, to enlarge the harbor at Manila for use as a base for the British battle fleet then at Singapore. The arrangement, approved by Stark on Dec. 7, the day of the Jap attack, was based on the theory that the two nations, preparing joint war plans, needed a large naval base north of Singapore.

2. Adm. Turner said he and Adm. Stark were not aware before Dec. 7, 1941, that Adm. Kimmel did not have his own facilities to intercept and decode vital Jap messages disclosing Japan's war intentions. Previous testimony has shown the contents of these intercepts were not sent either Kimmel or Maj. Gen. Short, army commander at Pearl Harbor, before the attack.

Confusion in High Command

3. Confusion existed among the naval high command in Washington as to what navy division was responsible for sending Kimmel and other commanders intelligence information and evaluations of possible war plans of Japan.

Adm. Wilkinson, head of naval intelligence, has told the committee his office assembled intelligence data, but was not authorized to send it to overseas commanders.

"Winds" Message Unseen

4. Adm. Turner said he never saw an original or a copy of a Japanese "winds execute" message, containing the phrase "east winds rain" which, under the Jap code, meant war with the United States. Secret testimony given by two other naval officers and recently released, was that such a message, included in a Jap broadcast, was intercepted by the navy on the night of Dec. 3 and given to navy chiefs and the White House on Dec. 4.

Questioned by Mitchell, Turner said he never saw this "winds" message and does not think it existed.

"Weather" Message Read

He said Adm. Leigh Noyes, chief of naval communications, called him on Dec. 5 and said, "The weather message is in." Asked by Turner to read it, Noyes reported it said, "North wind clear," his account continued.

"North wind cloudy" under the Jap code was to mean war with Russia. There was no "north wind clear" designation in the code.]

"I told Noyes that that wasn't the one, and he then agreed and hung up," Turner said.

Turner said he first saw the first 13 parts of Japan's crucial war note of Dec. 6-7 on the night of Dec. 6. This message, in 14 parts, instructed Jap envoys in Washington to break relations with the United States.

Message Shown to Knox

An intercept of the first 13 parts was translated Dec. 6. Turner said a naval officer brought a copy to his home about 11:30 that night. The officer, he continued, said the message had already been shown to Navy Secretary Knox, Adm. Ingersoll, and Adm. Wilkinson.

"As long as they had seen it, I didn't think it was my function to take any action," the war plans chief told the committee.

Turner said he reached his office on the fatal Sunday, Dec. 7, about 11 a. m. He did not come because of the war crisis, he testified, but because Stark called him at home and asked him to prepare a letter to Adm. Hart.

CHARGES ARMY MISLED PUBLIC ON SURPLUSES

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—The senate war investigating committee thru Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] rebuked the war department today for issuing a "misleading" statement to the press on the amount of the vast supplies of civilian goods the army is holding from the market.

Mead told the senate the army had been planning to store a billion dollars' worth of goods needed in the civilian economy, some of which would have been kept until 1970, until the committee began its campaign to compel the army to release unneeded surpluses.

Mead's revelations followed the army's recent promise to make 400 million dollars' worth of surplus civilian goods available to the public by Jan. 1. This promise was a reversal of the army's stockpiling policy exposed by the committee.

Cites Blanket Figures

Mead accused the army of telling the press recently that it had only a 3.7 months' supply of blankets on hand when it actually had enough to last until June 30, 1949.

The war department's announcement, which listed a number of needed civilian items along with blankets, was based on stocks in depots in the United States. Mead said it "neglected to state" that in addition, the army had vast quantities of the same items in posts, camps, and stations in the United States and in depots abroad.

Mead said the committee had been unable to find any one in the war department who would take responsibility for issuing the announcement. He added:

"The public is entitled to know all the facts and not be misled by half truths."

Order Issued Sept. 14

Mead said the order to store a billion dollars' worth of civilian goods, some for a quarter of a century, was issued by the war department last Sept. 14. Transportation of the goods to storage, he said, would have cost 150 million dollars. Another 150 million would have been required to recondition and prepare the goods for storage, and storage costs would have been about 14 million a year.

The army's storage plans were revised by a board appointment Nov. 5—after the committee had begun its inquiry. This board was headed by Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, who won fame as an American commander in Europe. The Hodges board recommended release of the 400 million dollars worth of goods, and the department approved.

Examples of Retrenchment

Here are some examples of cuts which Mead said the Hodges board made in the reserves the army had intended to accumulate:

Crawler type tractors, from 4,231 to 317. Service boots, from 27,323,000 pairs to none. Pocket watches, from 3,091 to 69. Wool blankets, from 54,071,000 to 1,849,000. These were planned reserves, not stocks on hand, but the present stocks of many of the items are large.

Among the surpluses declared are 1,574 crawler type tractors, 771,000 pairs of service boots, two million blankets and 82,000 flashlights.

BRITISH ADVANCE IN AREA OF JAVA SUMMER CAPITAL

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 20 (AP)—Trouble spots in northwest Bandoeng were hammered for an hour by British artillery today and then infantrymen advanced into that sector of the Java summer capital. The Dutch government information service said a subsequent three pronged infantry push into the sector to search for hidden weapons was virtually unopposed.

A Dutch naval bulletin said Indonesians from Java had landed on Billiton Island, 200 miles north of Batavia, and were using captured Japanese boats and arms in conducting "pirate" operations against native craft off Billiton. Other Indonesians were reported to have appeared in Netherlands Borneo about 150 miles inland from Balikpapan, and to have hoisted the red and white banner of the unrecognized Indonesian republic.

ROOSTER LOSES HEAD, BUT KEEPS FEET ON GROUND!

Fort Johnson, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP)—A headless rooster, owned by two partners in a poultry business, was still alive tonight, five days after its decapitation.

Cornelius Goderie said he and his partner, Harold J. Collins, chopped off the rooster's head last Saturday, preparatory to selling it, but the bird jumped to its feet and continued to strut about the yard.

Goderie said a poultry expert feeds the bird by dropping chicken mash with warm milk into the esophagus. The rooster's motor centers apparently were uninjured by the hatchet.

CHANGES MIND ABOUT JAIL AND ASKS PROBATION

After a heart-to-heart talk with Warden Frank Sain of the Cook county jail, Harold J. Vaughan, 22, of Detroit, Mich., changed his mind about preferring jail to probation and asked Judge John P. Barnes in Federal District court to give him a chance to behave himself outside of prison yesterday. He had pleaded guilty Tuesday to stealing an automobile and when Judge Barnes offered him 2 years' probation or a year and a day in prison, he decided to go to jail. He told the court yesterday that Warden Sain had promised to get him a job and a home and that with that help he could live up to the terms of probation. Judge Barnes appointed an attorney to advise Vaughan and continued his case until today.

LET TRUSTEES RUN RHINELAND, RUHR, SAYS FEA

Would Remove Arms Firms from Germany

BY WILLIAM STRAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—A Germany of the future "entirely dependent" upon the rest of the world for economic survival, including fulfilment of minimum civilian needs, was envisioned today in a report to congress by the foreign economic administration.

The agency, soon to be abolished, urged permanent dismemberment of pre-war Germany with the Ruhr and Rhineland to be turned over to an international trusteeship. In this way Germany would be incapable hereafter of "once again unhinging the security of Europe," the report said.

The report was submitted by H. H. Fowler, chief of the FEA's enemy branch, during testimony before a senate military affairs committee. He emphasized that the proposals were "purely advisory' and cannot be regarded as an official statement of United States policy.

Given to State Department

Fowler said the report also has been turned over to the various policy making branches of the government, including the state department which is assuming many of the former FEA functions. It was prepared under an order issued by the late President Roosevelt for studies to be made while the war was still in progress on the future control of Germany's capacity to make war.

Members of congress expressed surprise at the sweeping character of many of the recommendations. They said the revolutionary proposals are in keeping with the philosophy of former Treasury Secretary Morgenthau who has urged that defeated Germany be made purely an agricultural nation to guard against another European war.

The chief FEA proposals were:

1. A military disarmament program designed to stop direct production of arms, ammunition, aircraft, and implements of war.

Would Remove the Plants

2. All industrial facilities specializing in the production of these items to be removed from Germany.

3. Elimination of governmental institutions which organized and planned for war.

4. Elimination of all governmental or private organizations for aircraft production or experimentation.

5. Elimination or control of such industries as light metals, petroleum, rubber, electronics, ball bearings, automotive, iron and steel, and solid fuels.

Requires Drastic Action

"The achievement by German economic and industrial disarmament will require drastic action over a substantial period of time designed to eliminate Germany's power and capacity to make war and, thru controls, prevent its redevelopment," the FEA asserted.

The report added that the effect of control measures should be to make impossible arms production, make Germany "entirely dependent" on the outside world in supplying minimum civilian needs and to prevent excessive stockpiling.

International control, said the FEA, should "destroy German economic and industrial domination of Europe."

The elimination of laboratory and testing facilities needed for aircraft development was urged, as was international control of civilian flying in Germany, likewise scientific facilities of possible use in the development of atomic energy.

The FEA urged that full scale occupation of Germany not be given up until the elimination of war plants, war industries, and continued control measures for raw material production can be established.

DANES ANGRY AT ENGLAND OVER PACT ON TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 20—An increasing bitterness toward Britain was expressed in Denmark today after the new government disclosed the terms of a trade agreement former Foreign Minister Christmas Moeller contracted.

Moeller accepted an immediate cut in Danish export prices and pledged Denmark to a further reduction until the British dominion level was reached. Under the agreement, Denmark in trading with other nations must maintain the same prices as contracted with Britain without a corresponding freeze on prices of goods bought by Denmark.

Import prices have increased while Danish food products are sold at decreasing prices not only to the British but to all nations. Danish farmers maintain that the agreed export prices are unprofitable. The government is planning to tell Britain that a revision in the trade agreement is necessary.

ALLIED TRIBUNAL TOLD OF FAKED RAIDS BY 'POLES'

Reveal Order for Border 'Incidents'

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 20—Mass murders, merciless killings in the name of science, and homicide in the interest of political intrigue were documented before the international military tribunal today in the final session before the Christmas recess. When the major war crimes trial is resumed on Jan. 2, the United States prosecution will present further evidence asking a declaratory judgment of criminality against the Gestapo and its associate group, the SD, secret police group of the SS [elite guards].

Faked border raids which supplied dead "Polish" soldiers as "evidence" of violation of the German frontier were engineered by the Gestapo just before the German invasion of Poland, an affidavit from Alfred Naujocks, a Gestapo official asserted. Naujocks said he led an attack on a German border radio station at 8 p. m. Aug. 31, 1939—a few hours before the German army swept into Poland. He said concentration camp prisoners had been drugged, dressed in Polish uniforms and then shot by the Gestapo near the border to "prove" that Poland was the aggressor.

"Practical Proof" Sought

Naujock's affidavit said he was ordered by Reinhard Heydrich [The Hangman] to get "practical proof" of the attack "by Poles for the foreign press, as well as for German propaganda purposes." The raid leader said 12 or 13 condemned men were provided for the border "incidents."

"My instructions," Naujocks said, "were to seize the radio station [near Gleiwtiz on the border] and hold it long enough to permit a Polish speaking German to broadcast a speech in Polish that the time had come for conflict between the Germans and the Poles, and that Poles should get together and smash any Germans from whom they met resistance."

The 20 high Nazis in the prisoners' box, all threatened with death penalties, were seen to shrink from only one narrative, a doctor's report of two hours of dying agony by three victims of an experiment with poison bullets.

Five concentration camp prisoners were each shot in the left thigh with a small caliber bullet loaded with poison crystals. Two of the bullets passed thru the leg and the subjects showed no symptoms of poison. The other three died slowly.

Children Annihilated

Captured official papers revealed the complaint of an official from the reichscommissar against the burning of men, women, and children herded into a barn because it wasted man power needed for slave labor. The annihilation of the inmates of a children's home was contained in a self-lauding report of a task force commander to his superior officer.

An account of a task force raid on a Ruthenian village was contained in the civil commissioner's complaint to his superiors against police battalion 10. The commissioner wrote to his superior that the peace and productivity of his community had been destroyed by the badly managed elimination of Jews.

The battalion encircled groups herded into the streets and began shooting and clubbing them, without first excusing White Ruthenians and those Jewish craftsmen essential to local industry.

"Persons who were shot worked themselves out of their graves, sometimes after they had been covered," the commmission wrote.

Divorce Is Tipoff

Fred Hoff, 38, a supervisor for the Foote Brothers Gear company, 5225 S. Western av., was charged with bigamy yesterday in a complaint issued in Superior court by Judge Edwin A. Robson, who assailed the general apathetic attitude toward the crime of bigamy when it crops up in divorce matters.

The complaint was signed by Hoff's wife, Marie, 37, of 2834 S. Springfield av., who has a suit for separate maintenance pending.

Mrs. Hoff's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, said the second wife, Bernice, 22, of 4512 S. Rockwell st., a former employee of Hoff, obtained a divorce before Circuit Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg on the ground that Hoff was still married to his first wife.

Judge Robson then called in Asst. State's Attorneys John Phillips and Collins Fitzpatrick, who listened to Mrs. Hoff's story and had her sign the complaint for Hoff's arrest.

"Bring him in here Dec. 27," the court said, "when I will sit as an examining magistrate."

HUSBAND FORCED TO SUPPORT BOY HE DOUBTS IS HIS

Judge Peter H. Schwaba in Superior court yesterday told Joseph Sowa, 31, of 1321 Portland av., Chicago Heights, a former sailor, that he would have to comply with an order to pay his estranged wife, Josephine, 26, $25 a week for support of her 9 month old son, Kenneth, no matter how he felt about the baby's paternity.

Sowa appeared before Judge Schwaba with his attorney, Samuel A. Rinella, on a contempt citation obtained by his wife, who alleged that he was $100 in arrears.

Sowa asserted that he did not believe he was the father of Kenneth, who was born 11 months and 18 days after Sowa left for overseas, tho Judge Frank M. Padden had ruled that Sowa was the father. Sowa's suit for divorce, charging adultery, and his wife's cross-bill for separate maintenance will be heard before Judge Schwaba on Jan. 7.

SOLDIER FREED IN SLAYING OF WAR PRISONER

Monterey, Cal., Dec. 20 [Special]—Corp. James O. Provost, formerly of Lafayette, La., was cleared by a court martial last night on a charge of murder in the shooting of a German prisoner of war he was guarding at near-by Fort Ord on Dec. 3.

The verdict of not guilty was returned after Provost testified the prisoner, Richard Mangold, attempted to seize his rifle while he was guarding prisoners working in the Fort Ord soldiers' club. He also declared Mangold had made menacing remarks in German.

Two civilian employees at the fort testified they saw Provost pursuing the prisoner down a stairway, his rifle leveled. After Provost shot Mangold, he told the civilians, they testified, that the prisoner tried to seize his gun.

NORTH CHICAGO ASKS NAVY LAND IN HOME CRISIS

Mayor John P. Dromey of North Chicago yesterday proposed that the navy assist in relieving an acute housing shortage by turning over to his city Camp Robert Small in the Great Lakes Naval Training center for a civilian housing center.

In messages to Senators Brooks [R.] and Lucas [D.] and Rep. Church [R., 10th], Mayor Dromey said the camp now is "only partially used" as a marine separation center. He said he believed that it would require only minor alterations to accommodate 300 families.

As an alternative, Mayor Dromey suggested the navy might convert the camp buildings into homes for navy personnel now residing in North Chicago and neighboring towns.

URGES AMERICA TO REVISE HARD GERMAN PEACE

Alexander B. Maley

Four means of immediately straightening out the muddle in Germany caused by the application of the Morgenthau "hard peace" plan were suggested yesterday by a Chicago man, a former military intelligence officer who crossed the Rhine with the first Yanks and remained to see the mistakes made under occupation policy. He said he hoped his suggestions would help form public opinion to demand revision of Morgenthau's "vengeful, impractical terms."

A lieutenant commander assigned to naval intelligence, Alexander B. Maley, 1701 N. Park av., served in Germany under army intelligence and with the office of strategic services. In these capacities he had wide opportunity to observe military government in the conquered nation.

Urges People to Speak Up

"Morgenthau [Henry Morgenthau Jr., former secretary of the treasury] has written the epitaph of western democracy," Maley said. "One man, Morgenthau, is dictating the fate of 60 million people. I hope the American people will come quickly to realize what is taking place in Germany and will speak their minds."

Measures should be taken at once to make American policy conform to German ideas of fair treatment and to impress the defeated people with the spiritual values of democracy, Maley said.

"We must realize that 80 per cent of the Germans were betrayed by 5 per cent," he said. "The other 15 per cent coöperated with the 5 per cent. Instead of trying intelligently to deal with the non-Nazis on a constructive policy, we are categorically condemning the whole nation."

Offers Four Point Remedy

Maley's suggestions for immediate application were:

1. Restore the postal service.
2. Reëstablish organized religion.
3. Study and revise all directives sent from Washington, D. C., to the military government.
4. Settle on a policy of coördination with the French, particularly in the province of Wurttemberg.

Besides the ordinary benefits of mail service, postal communication with the United States would make it possible for American relatives of Germans to send food packages, Maley said. "This," he added, "would not only prevent starvation, but would simplify things for the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, which doesn't seem to have the least idea of its job, anyway."

Blames Errors on Washington

Mistakes in the occupation were blamed by Maley on directives issued from Washington, particularly the joint chiefs of staff directive 1067, which embodied the Morgenthau terms.

"These should be studied and revised in the light of our experience in occupation," he said. "The American people are big enough to retract and start over."

Shooting Inquest

Mrs. Dorothy Henderson, slain boy's mother, and Mrs. Dorothy Baker (right), mother of Michael Baker, who shot playmate, consoling Michael at inquest.

Deputy Coroner Chris McGarigle yesterday criticized parents who permit their children to have access to deadly weapons. The criticism was made at an inquest into the death of Robert Henderson, 13, of 4826 Princeton av. The boy was shot while his best friend, Michael Baker, 13, was showing a pistol to him in the Henderson home.

Michael's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Baker, cried indignantly after hearing the criticism: "Why, we don't even allow the children to play with cap guns." Her son testified he got the death weapon from his brother, Robert, 14, who said he got it from George Friedman, 19, of 4928 S. Wells st.

Friedman told police he bought the gun from another young man several months ago. A verdict of accident was returned by the coroner's jury in young Henderson's death.

REVEALS HITLER VETOED SUICIDE GLIDER SQUADS

OBERURSEL, Germany, Dec. 20 (AP)—Plans for a "suicide squadron" of fanatical German glider pilots, conceived in a last desperate attempt to make the allies sue for peace, were revealed today. Hanna Reitsch, nazi aviatrix, told the story to American counter intelligence investigators at the internment camp here where she is officially described as a "guest."

A specially designed Messerschmitt 328, originally intended for a fighter or bomber plane, was to be used as a piloted glider with a 2,000 pound bomb-torpedo attached, she said.

Tests killed some ace German pilots and disclosed many faults in the plan, the aviatrix said, leading top nazis to discount the idea time after time until it was too late to put it into practice. The aviatrix said Hitler opposed it on the ground "it is not in keeping with the character of the German people."

Austria Elects Renner President of the Republic

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 20 (AP)—Dr. Karl Renner, a peasant's son, was elected president of Austria by the new parliament of the second Austrian republic today. The result of the secret ballot was announced as unanimous. Dr. Renner took the oath immediately. He will swear in Leopold Figl, his successor in the chancellorship, and members of Figl's new government.

DOCTORS REPORT PATTON TAKES A TURN FOR WORSE

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 20 (AP)—Gen. Patton today contracted a respiratory infection, taking a turn for the worse. Tonight's medical bulletin said "his general condition is not satisfactory." Army sources at the 130th station hospital, however, said "there is no cause for alarm" and no immediate indication that the partly paralyzed Patton might be contracting pneumonia.

The evening medical bulletin said Patton's "general condition is not satisfactory due to excessive bronchial secretions which embarrass respirations and make feeding difficult." An earlier bulletin had said the cause of the bronchial secretions had not yet been determined, and that Patton spent an uncomfortable night.

Hospital authorities described the bronchial secretions as "respiratory infections," and said the general had neither a heavy cold nor bronchitis. Patton's neck was broken in an automobile accident a week ago Sunday. His temperature was below normal at 6 p. m., standing at 97.6 degrees, his pulse was 58, and respiration 26.

COLLEGES FACE CRISIS AS VETS FLOCK TO STUDY

Enrollment of 600,000 Expected by Fall

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—The United States is headed for the greatest educational jam in history as thousands of returning war veterans swamp colleges and universities with application for enrollment.

Already 125,000 veterans, financed under the GI bill of rights, are in college classes and 207,000 others have applied for entrance.

Dr. Francis J. Brown, staff associate of the American council of education, predicted in an interview today that more than 600,000 will be in colleges and universities by next fall.

30 Per Cent Are Married

"This is creating a university crisis," said Dr. Brown. "Thirty per cent of veterans are married. Ten per cent have children. This is in sharp contrast to the situation before the war, when the great majority of students were single.

"The housing problem is the greatest problem at present, but we hope legislation pending in congress will be approved and will help the situation. It provides 167 million dollars for moving temporary war and defense housing to regions of greatest need."

Dr. Brown said "big name" universities, and those in large urban areas, were the first to be filled by returning GIs, who are entitled to $50 a month if single and $75 if married while enrolled in schools or in training programs.

Increase Sent to Truman

A bill to raise these allotments to $65 and $90 went to President Truman yesterday for his signature. In addition to his subsistence allowance, the veteran is given his tuition and certain other expenses.

Such institutions as Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, and Brown are nearing the limit of their normal capacity, but if additional housing becomes available normal capacities can be increased substantially. Yale joined with Columbia in declaring they have no capacity limits where GIs are concerned.

While some of the smaller colleges have not been affected by the rush of students, and report subnormal enrollment, all probably will be filled by fall, educators agreed.

They expect the previous peak of American college enrollment of 1,400,000 students in 1930-'40 to be exceeded by at least 25 per cent.

At the veterans' administration it was reported 9,591 veterans are taking on-the-job training, under terms of the GI bill, in addition to those enrolled in school classes. The percentage of one-the-job trainees is expected to increase, a trend that followed the World war.

EX-WAR FLYER, ANOTHER'S WIFE SLAIN IN STREET

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 21 [Friday] —(AP)—A discharged army air forces lieutenant and his woman companion, mother of two children, were shot to death early today on a city street here, Allentown police reported.

The victims were Benjamin Clifford Bowman Jr., 25, of Williamsport, Pa., and Mrs. Madeline Barnak, 21, Allentown.

John Barnak, 30, who Chief of Police Wayne Eliot said was the estranged husband of the slain woman, was taken to police headquarters for questioning. Police said he was found in bed at his home and denied knowledge of the shootings.

Police said Bowman was shot in the head, Mrs. Barnak in the chest. Barnak is being held without charge for further questioning, police said.

REPORT BRITAIN READY TO SIGN PACT WITH SIAM

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Informed quarters today predicted that Great Britain would sign a peace agreement with Thailand [Siam] before Christmas despite a United States request for delay until its views have been made known.

A foreign office spokesman said the government was "puzzled" by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson's statement yesterday that the state department had requested a delay "while discussions with the United States are proceeding." The British were reported to have notified the United States of its demands but no question of naval or air bases was reported involved.

Hector McNeil, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told commons that Britain will require Siam to make restitution for damage and loss caused to British and allied interests.

Hardware Store Burns; Lodger in Rear Missing

George Lutz, 80, was reported missing early today after fire destroyed the rear half of the Joseph A. Kroll hardware store at Herscher, 15 miles southwest of Kankakee, Kankakee county. Lutz lived in a rear room and heated it with a kerosene stove. The fire threatened other stores in the town business section before it was brought under control by Kankakee and Cabery firemen.

WISCONSIN VETS GET EDUCATION SERVICE CREDIT

Tests Determine Gain Made During War

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 20 [Special] —Veterans who return to Wisconsin as adults and wish to continue educational careers broken off when they were in grade school or high school are getting a break from special measures adopted by the Wisconsin school system.

This was established by a survey here today which confirmed a recent report from government education specialists in Washington, D. C., that Wisconsin is one of three states "courageously" tackling the problem of dealing with returning GIs who lack credits to enter colleges or universities. The other states are Connecticut and Florida.

The Washington report said that among service men thruout the nation 4 million never got past the eighth grade and another 5 million never finished high school.

"Poorest Job" Cited

It commented that most states are doing a "pretty fair" job with the veteran coming back to resume an interrupted college career but that the country so far has done "our poorest job on the boy who needs it most."

The Wisconsin plan, now in effect thruout the state, involves the granting of high school credits to returning soldiers up to a maximum of two full years of high school work on a basis of travel, experience, and studies while in service, it was explained by William C. Knoelk, principal of West Division High school here.

Knoelk has played a leading part in the Milwaukee school system's investigation of veterans' educational possibilities. He said in an interview that the Wisconsin plan has been approved by leading colleges and universities of the state and nation and that credits awarded under it are recognized by such institutions.

Principals Give Tests

Knoelk said the keynote of the plan is a test administered to the returning soldier by his high school principal. This test, known as GED [general educational development] has been devised to disclose the educational progress made during years in the service.

Under it, Knoelk explained, a GI who had half a year of high school might be found qualified to return as a junior and another who left high school after two years might be deemed ready to enter college.

All returning Wisconsin soldiers arbitrarily are considered to have had the equivalent of an eighth grade education whether or not they actually have eighth grade diplomas, Knoelk said. This leaves the question of determining where they are to be fitted into the secondary school system up to the high school principal.

Winter Tonight

Winter, with its accompanying snow and cold weather, will begin officially in the Chicago area at 11:05 p. m. tonight, the weather bureau said yesterday. With winter comes the shortest day of the year. Forecasters reported that minor snow flurries in central, eastern, and some southern states would permit snowbound cities to dig themselves out for the first time in several days.

The Chicago area in the last five days has had the longest consecutive period on record of temperatures below zero, Forecaster H. L. Jacobson said. Temperatures, he said, will range from zero this morning to 15 degrees above in the afternoon.

A mass of cold air, forecasters said, is now moving in from central Canada and will hit the Dakotas and Minnesota tonight. It may hit other central states late tomorrow.

U. S. RESOLUTION ON JEWS ANGERS 2 INDIA PAPERS

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 20 [Reuters] —The resolution passed by both houses of the United States congress favoring unrestricted Jewish immigration into Palestine "may well prove the proverbial spark which may light a conflagration in the middle and near east," the nationalist Bombay Chronicle said today.

Stating that the resolution would cause dismay and amazement thruout the world, the paper added: "The fact that the decision was taken in spite of President Truman's directive and while the Anglo-American commission has not even begun its work shows how violently the pro-Jewish pendulum is swinging in America." The Times of India said: "Those genuinely concerned about the future of Palestine will unreservedly condemn the United States senate's action."

NAVY TO RETURN WRIGHT, HERZL TO BOARD TODAY

Wright and Herzl Junior colleges, which the navy will return to the school board today after operating radio and radar schools there during the war, will be reopened in February for second semester students.

Supt. of Schools Johnson said yesterday that the organization of faculties for the two schools is under way and rehabilitation of the buildings will begin next week. The school board must reëstablish laboratories, set up school equipment, and remove facilities which the navy installed.

A crew of 50 men will work in the schools after Jan. 1 until they are ready for classroom use, John Howatt, school board business manager, said. Howatt said the navy would return Manley High school to the school board on Jan. 19.

LORDS AT PARTY FOR DAUGHTER OF U. S. ATTACHE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 20—The younger set, 400 strong, turned out last night for the first post-war debutante party in the ballroom of the Dorchester hotel for Miss Susan Pearl [who gave her age as "twenty-ish"], daughter of Col. Warren Pearl of the United States embassy, and his wife, noted for their lavish pre-war parties costing thousands of dollars. Miss Pearl's coming out party was scheduled originally for 1940, but the advent of war postponed it.

Detectives examined the invitations of the guests who formed in line at the door to bar gate crashers. Of the select group invited, which included a scattering of the younger lords and ladies, two-thirds were in uniform. A buffet dinner—mostly fish sandwiches—was served in one of the ballrooms.

Dancing was in another ballroom. The punch bowl was full from 9 p. m. until 2 a. m., when the orchestra went home—but it was not vintage champagne as in the days of old. Mrs. Pearl, in 1933, gave a party at the Hurlingham club for 1,500 guests. Col. Pearl is the public health surgeon attached to the embassy.

STATE VFW HEAD CHARGES SICK ARE DISCHARGED

Paul Branks, Illinois commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, charged yesterday that doctors at army and navy separation centers are encouraging sick and disabled soldiers and sailors to seek discharges even tho the medical officers know many such service men require continued hospitalization for tuberculosis and other infirmities.

The medical officers, Branks alleged, seemingly are motivated by a desire to get the soldiers and sailors off the government pay rolls and into custody of the veterans' administration, where the army and navy will no longer be responsible for their care. As a result of this "alarming trend," Branks asserted, only emergency accommodations are available at Hines.

John Kane, assistant manager at Hines, said it is true the hospital is operating at full capacity. But many of the institution's beds, he explained, are occupied by recently admitted veterans of World War I. No marked trend in applications for admission from recently discharged World War II. veterans has been noted, he said.

WILEY, SOFTENED BY YULE SPIRIT, RIPS HANNEGAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.], moved, he said, by the Christmas spirit of good will and charity towards all, arose in the senate today to deliver some observations on Postmaster General Hannegan who is also chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Sen. Wiley

Sen. Wiley said his remarks would be mild because of the Christmas season. After he had finished, several senators were heard to express curiosity concerning the tenor of his address if he had not been restraining himself. Sen. Wiley said:

"Mr. Hannegan on Nov. 17 made a speech at French Lick, Ind., in which he attempted to vilify the Republican party, its members, and me in particular. I consider it an honor to have been the target of a mud slinging attempt by this individual.

Moved by "Charity"

"He entitled his address 'Thoughts and wishes of the man in the street.' Were this not the Christmas season, I might be tempted to declare that Mr. Hannegan, standing in the muck, is at too low a plane to know the thoughts and wishes of the man in the street.

"But moved by a spirit of Christian charity, I might say that I hope Mr. Hannegan's mudfest is not a preview of his party line in 1946. If it is, Mr. Hannegan will find that in attempting to befoul his opponents, he has instead further blackened himself and his own party.

"Thus, more certainly than ever, his party will be automatically swept up and away by a righteous electorate in next November's collection of the Democratic garbage which has been accumulating for 12 years.

"I hope for the sake of the country that the 1946 campaign will be more fair than he indicates. Perhaps this is mere wishful thinking, considering his past record and that of the odorous city machines which he represents.

Party Poses as Santa

"It is fitting to discuss Mr. Hannegan in the Christmas season because his party has been posing as an imitation Santa Claus for over a decade with the people's funds. His party has been saddling the common man with the greatest debt, the most malicious restrictions and regimentation, the most treacherous snooping ever known in our history.

"It wants to turn the people's eyes from the 300 billion debt, the domestic corruption, the ineptitude, the waste, the failure to secure cooperation, stability, and industrial peace. His party had best look to its own defense for the righteous wrath of the American people is rising, the tide is turning and the prodigals, spenders, grafters, and chiselers will be swept from the offices they have befouled."

TRUMAN WANTS EMPLOYERS TO SHOW RECORDS

Supports Stand of CIO in Wage Disputes

Text of Statement

The text of the President's statement follows:

"In appointing a fact finding board in an industrial dispute where one of the questions at issue is wages, it is essential to a fulfilment of its duty that the board have the authority, whenever it deems it necessary, to examine the books of the employer. That authority is essential to enable the board to determine the ability of the employer to pay an increase in wages where such ability is in question. Ability to pay is always one of the facts relevant to the issue of an increase in wages.

"This does not mean that the government or its fact finding board is going to endeavor to fix a rate of return for the employer. It does mean, however, that since wages are paid out of earnings, the question of earnings is relevant.

Promise of "Secrecy"

"The detailed information obtained from the books of an employer should not be made public. Such a disclosure would place the employer at a disadvantage with respect to his competitors. But the fact finding board should unquestionably have the right to examine the employer's books where it deems it necessary in order to make up its own mind as to whether a demand for increase is justified and to make public all findings based on such information that it deems relevant to the controversy.

"That is one of the things I meant when I stated in my message of Dec. 3, 1945, to the congress:

"'The board should be directed to make a thoro investigation of all the facts which it deems relevant in the controversy.'

It's "Nothing New"

"This is nothing new. There are many instances where the books of corporations are opened for inspection to representatives of the state and federal governments and where the information so obtained is used solely by such officials to carry out their functions.

"To confer the right to examine books is one of the main purposes of granting subpena power to the fact finding boards. I trust that the congress, which is the only body authorized to grant such power, will do so quickly.

"In view of the public interest involved, it would be highly unfortunate if any party to a dispute should refuse to coöperate with a fact finding board."

In pleading for exclusion of the profits and prices issue, Atty. Merritt had termed the matter "entirely irrelevant" to the hearing since General Motors was "not pleading poverty or inability to pay."

He contended the union had demanded highly technical and confidential information on the company's financial position which would have to be based on speculation and prediction on future conditions.

If such information were given, Merritt added, the union could well suggest that the company operate its business differently to save money or otherwise attempt to influence management operations.

Concludes His Argument

"We say to this board," Merritt argued, "that in the light of national wage price policy, in the light of our anti-trust policies which forbid alliances between capital and labor in respect to prices or market controls, we should not be pressed to acquiesce in any other position than we have taken."

Sen. Moore said the proposal that fact finding boards in the automobile and oil refinery labor disputes use a profit and loss yardstick for fixing wages presages what may be expected if congress passes the President's bill to create permanent fact finding boards.

"It is the opening gun for an indirect socialization of all industry," he continued. "The division of profits thru the medium of wages implies a proprietary interest. The proposal is as unsound from labor's standpoint as it is from the investor's. If wages are to be fixed on the basis of past high earnings in certain units of industry, then what is labor's position in those units with small earnings or even losses?

"The Only Yardstick"

"The only yardstick by which the true level of wages may be properly determined is the productive value of the wage earners. In a free economy wages must be commensurate with the productive value of the employe. Whether the employer's earnings are large or small is one of the competitive hazards of private enterprise. If labor is to insist that earnings in this or that case are to be the factor on which wages are to be determined, then labor must be willing to take the good with the bad and be willing to reverse the principle in cases of small earnings or losses.

"The suggestion is not only economically unsound but it is wholly impractical. The factor of earnings as a wage yardstick would mean that everybody would want to work for the man who was making money and no one would work for the man who was not making money.

System of Enterprise

"Of course, if we are to adopt the theory of the corporate state in which the units of all industry are to be operated as a single government enterprise, then it might be possible to measure off a percentage of earnings as wages.

"But so long as we maintain a system of private enterprise, with wholesome inter-unit competition of industry, the fixing of wages on the basis of earnings is wholly impractical and tends to the socialist objective of reducing all to a common level."

The impact of the President's statement on the fact finding panel he appointed for the oil industry was not immediately apparent. It had been in recess until tomorrow morning, when it is scheduled to announce its decision on whether to consider profits and prices. Eleven oil companies are involved in a dispute with the CIO Oil Workers' union, which demands a 30 per cent wage increase. Pure Oil, one of the companies involved, had previously indicated it would not participate if the profit factor is considered.

CIO ANNOUNCES SETTLEMENT OF INDIANA STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 (AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO-United Automobile Workers, announced today the settlement on a "satisfactory basis" of a strike in Muncie, Ind., which was seriously affecting the production of Studebaker, Willys-Overland, Packard, Hudson, and Nash automobiles and Ford, International, and Dodge trucks.

The strike, in the Warner Gear plant of Borg-Warner corporation, had been in progress nearly eight weeks. The plant manufactures transmissions. About 1,800 workers were affected.

Thomas said the agreement, ratified "overwhelmingly" by UAW-CIO local 287, provides for a 13 cent an hour increase to "nonincentive" workers, a greatly improved vacation pay clause, an improved seniority clause, improved grievance procedure, and earnings for production workers at an average of approximately $1.50 an hour.

PICKETS LET OFFICE WORKERS GO INTO FACTORY AT FLINT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Flint, Mich., Dec. 20—Office workers of the struck AC Spark Plug plant moved thru CIO picket lines today unmolested except for boos.

Thinned picket lines circled near the plant gates but left a path for workers to pass. This action by the UAW plant local supported a pledge of peaceful picketing made in court to avert issuance of a restraining order.

Flint authorities believed that the danger of violence, imminent for two days, has been averted unless some hot head throws an unauthorized punch. The Flint flare-up came Monday when the union withdrew its agreement that office workers, maintenance men, and management might enter the plant.

Tightening of picket lines and exclusion of these workers came as union officials made the charge, denied by the company, that production workers were being taken into the plant. The issue has no bearing on the demand for a 30 per cent raise.

BROTHERS DRINK, THEN FIGHT IN HOME; ONE DIES

Henry Repinski, 25, a dishwasher, died in County hospital of a skull fracture last night, after he and his brother, Walter, 22, engaged, police said, in a fist fight in their home.

Henry Repinski

Walter Repinski

Walter told police that he, his brother, and Mrs. Lillian Grube, 50, of 854 N. Paulina st., spent several hours drinking wine, whisky, and beer. Detectives reported that Walter and the woman were so intoxicated they could not be questioned.

Neighbors said both brothers had drunk heavily since the death of their father several weeks ago.

HUNTER TELLS PROBLEM AFTER KILLING MOOSE

Tony Remick, owner of the Lilac Lodge, 22d st. and Wolf rd., Hillside, who just returned from the Thunder bay district in Ontario with a 1,000 pound moose, confided yesterday that in moose hunting it isn't killing the moose that's difficult; it's getting it back to civilization.

"Take this moose," he said. "I shot him, naturally, along the shores of a lake 100 miles from anywhere. In fact, that's where everybody shoots moose.

"Now you can't pick up a 1,000 pound moose and tote it on your back, so I had to walk miles to a logging camp, borrow a team of horses, and drag the moose thru the woods to a road. Its next ride was on a lumber wagon; then, when the roads got better, a truck, and finally I got it in my car."

Remick said he spent two and a half months in the Thunder bay district.

4 DEAD IN ALTON FROM DRINKING POISON ALCOHOL

Alton, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP)—Deputy Coroner Ben F. Staten said tonight three persons were dead and five others seriously ill as a result of drinking denatured alcohol. All were employed at the East Alton plant of the Western Cartridge company.

The dead:

Cecil E. Grosnoe, 46, Alton, who died in a hospital here this afternoon; Fred Weller, 37, Jerseyville, Ill., who died in another Alton hospital tonight; James W. Crider, 33, Wood River, Ill., who died last night, and J. L. Gerdes, 39, Bunker Hill.

CIO HAS WORDS WITH G. M.; ALSO A GRIN OR TWO

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—Here are high spots from a verbal exchange between Charles E. Wilson, head of the nation's largest manufacturing corporation — General Motors—and Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the striking CIO-United Auto Workers, America's largest union, before the President's fact-finding panel, several hundred newspaper correspondents, and spectators:

REUTHER—We asked for a horse and you offered us a rabbit.

WILSON—Thirteen and a half cents is not exactly a rabbit.

REUTHER—Compared with what you people are keeping, it is less than a rabbit.

Concerning the Books

WILSON—I don't see how we can get anywhere, Walter, when you insist on seeing the corporation books.

REUTHER—You don't know what I've said, you haven't been there in the negotiations.

WILSON—I read the blame things.

REUTHER—We've got to get the first team back in there and sit down and talk about it. Let's try to get some of that good will back in our collective bargaining. Come back in there like you used to do and put your feet up on the table and get down to negotiating.

WILSON—It's our heads that are on the table.

REUTHER—Bring in the first team and let's go to work.

A "Brief Statement"

WILSON—I want to make just a brief statement [gripping a yellow paper before him]. The union representatives and the corporation representatives have agreed that this is not an ordinary collective bargaining matter. Looking back thru the years, I have felt that relations between General Motors and the union had been steadily improved. If this had been just an ordinary collective bargaining matter, we would have been able to settle this ourselves. I personally feel very bad about this strike. I don't like the idea of 175,000 General Motors men and women walking the streets in the snow before Christmas. Nor do I like General Motors being singled out as a guinea pig. I didn't think we had it coming to us on the basis of our past relations.

REUTHER—We don't like the strike either. Our people are not receiving unemployment compensation or strike benefits. They are making a tremendous sacrifice. You wouldn't conciliate. You wouldn't arbitrate.

"We Can Settle It"

WILSON—If you can pull it down to the basis of a matter between the General Motors corporation and the union, we can settle it. But I don't know how we can handle the problems of the whole country.

REUTHER—Come in and get your feet wet.

WILSON—I don't think I could possibly contribute anything.

REUTHER—I think you're far too modest.

The white haired corporation president leaned across the shiny walnut conference table which separated the company side and the union's side in the fact-finding hearing, watching Reuther.

The great green walled conference room was still, the audience aware of the weighty issues affected by the interchange. Reporters scribbled feverishly.

An Occasional Grin

Wilson's eyes widened at times during the exchange and occasionally he turned to Board Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison with a grin, expostulating.

Finally Wilson's right hand personnel chief, Harry W. Anderson, blurted in Reuther's direction: "I can be there at 10 a. m."

Thus the groundwork for possible resumption of negotiations was laid. The meeting tomorrow at 10 had been suggested by Reuther, who said he would ubmit a list of local union demands, requested by the company, at that time.

But the union was prepared, too, to talk wages on a national scale as well, Reuther said.

WAC BRINGS PET DOG AS SHE RETURNS TO U. S. FROM PACIFIC

Captain Kidd, a three month old terrier brought to the United States from New Guinea by S/Sgt. Mildred Abolt, 661 Sheridan rd., Chicago, wasn't quite sure yesterday whether his fur coat was warm enough for the snow and cold weather of his new home. The dog, born at Finschhafen, New Guinea, arrived on the U. S. S. La Porte at Seattle, Wash., with the Chicago WAC. Sgt. Abolt gave the puppy his name because of a hook in the end of his tail which, she said, "made him nothing but the pirate he is."

CIO TELLS FORD ITS PAY OFFER IS A 'MOCKERY'

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 (AP)—The CIO United Automobile Workers today told the Ford Motor company its 12.4 per cent wage rate increase offer was a "mockery" and asked that discussion of the wage problem be separated entirely from other issues in the current dispute.

Formally rejecting the Ford offer, amounting to 15 cents an hour, the union took exception to virtually every condition the company coupled with its proposal and challenged several management contentions.

It said bluntly that "we do not believe the company faces loss of $35,000,000 in 1946," and that Ford "stands to profit by many millions of dollars" in the market ahead.

The Company's Stand

The Ford management had claimed that without a wage increase and under established retail prices it stood to lose $35,000,000 next year. The proffered wage rise would cost an additional $33,000,000, the company said.

Negotiations between management and union were adjourned until Jan. 8 following a half hour meeting today. Richard T. Leonard, UAW-CIO Ford director, said both parties had agreed to "think over their problems during the Christmas holidays" and that the union position at the next meeting would be that wages alone should be discussed.

"Freeze" Proposal Attacked

The union letter assailed a management proposal that the union agree to seek no further wage increase for two years even if OPA permitted higher car prices.

The UAW-CIO described the offer as "totally inadequate," adding:

"It would not raise wages to a point where Ford workers could meet the present high cost of living. Nor would it contribute sufficiently to the increase in purchasing power that is required if we are to avoid a disastrous breakdown of American economy."

"As you know," it continued, "the union has fought very hard against price increases because we already have too much inflation and any further rise in prices threatens a breakdown of our economy.

"Suppose the powerful manufacturers' lobby does succeed in destroying OPA controls. Such success, or even partial success, by the high price lobby, would inevitably bring a fearful rise in the cost of living. We obviously cannot undertake to shackle our membership so that they are bound not to seek relief in such an eventuality."

NLRB GIVES FIGURES ON STRIKE VOTE OF ELECTRIC WORKERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—The official strike vote tabulation today showed CIO-United Electrical Workers voted nearly 15 to 1 at General Motors corporation to join the picket lines of their associated CIO-United Auto Workers.

The national labor relations board, releasing the figures on the strike vote of Dec. 13, said United Electrical Workers at General Motors balloted 4,417 to 314 in favor of striking in support of a $2 daily wage increase.

At Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the vote was less than five to one—38,066 to 9,562. At General Electric the union voted six to one to strike—55,055 to 9,771.

UNION SECURITY ARBITER NAMED IN WINDSOR ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 20—Justice Ivan C. Rand of the Supreme court of Canada, today was appointed by Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor, to arbitrate the union security issue in the dispute between the Ford Motor company of Canada in Windsor and the UAW-CIO.

This appointment came immediately after the workers, out since Sept. 12, voted to return to work. Rand is to arbitrate the union security issue within five days, if possible, after he starts. Then the two parties will negotiate a collective agreement. If these negotiations break down on any point, he will return and arbitrate on such point.

NLRB CHARGED WITH TRYING TO DESTROY CRITIC

Threats to Labor Paper, Advertisers Bared

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—The national labor relations board was accused today in a house speech by Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] of a deliberate attempt to drive out of business an Indiana labor publication because it criticized the CIO and the labor board.

If the NLRB obtains a "cease and desist" order which it is now seeking against the Labor Digest, published monthly at Indianapolis, a precedent would be set, Hoffman said, whereby any newspaper in the United States could be prevented from printing news of labor disputes or editorially commenting on any labor union in an unfavorable manner.

Called Act of Revenge

"This is an almost incredible story of an attempt to muzzle a free press," Hoffman told the house. "But I am furnishing the proof in numerous exhibits for the record. The only conclusion that can be drawn from the facts is that the NLRB, revengeful because of criticism, and wilfully misinterpreting and maladministering the Wagner act, is aiding political friends and terrorizing all who might oppose its methods and purposes."

Evidence introduced into the record by Hoffman revealed that Miss Dorothy Craig, a field examiner for the NLRB, visited numerous employers thruout the middle west and wrote letters to others, with the apparent purpose of frightening them into withdrawal of advertising in and subscriptions to the Labor Digest.

Could Ban Advertising

Newspapers could not accept advertisments from General Motors, now engaged in a dispute with its employes, Hoffman said, under the interpretation of the Wagner act sought by the NLRB in the Labor Digest case. Nor could they editorialize or print a news story regarding the General Motors strike which could be interpreted as unfavorable to the union.

As recounted by Hoffman, the facts in the case follow:

The CIO United Furniture Workers of America sought unsuccessfully from 1942 to 1944 to organize some 100 employes of the Jasper Desk company, Jasper, Ind., a community of about 5,000 population. Ninety per cent of the workers belonged to an independent union and were cold to the CIO organizers.

Miss Craig, representing the NLRB, advised the CIO organizers in 1944 to file a complaint accusing the company of unfair labor practices.

Critical of Both Unions

The Labor Digest, published and edited by Norman A. Zolezzi, was printing articles critical of the CIO and also of Miss Craig's activities. Zolezzi is chairman of the board of trustees of the Federated Unions of America, founded in 1916, which is opposed to both the CIO and AFL.

The CIO complaint, filed at NLRB headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., in August, 1944, accused both the Jasper Desk company and the Labor Digest of unfair labor practices. The newspaper was charged with "a campaign of vilification of bona fide labor organizations and favoring an employer dominated labor organization."

Investigation of this complaint was turned over to Miss Craig. In January, 1945, she wrote a number of letters to firms which advertised in and subscribed to the Labor Digest. Among these was the H. A. Douglas company, Bronson, Mich., of which Miss Craig demanded whether or not subscriptions to the newspaper were paid for by the company and whether it had placed ads in the publication.

She Tours Two States

Miss Craig also toured Indiana and Michigan, visiting other firms which were reported to have subscribed to or advertised in the Labor Digest. She informed the Holland Furnace company that it had no right to pay for subscriptions to the Labor Digest in the name of their employes. She was determined, she said, to break up the "racket" of the publication.

Zolezzi appealed to Rep. Hoffman, asserting the NLRB was "trying to scare all of our advertising accounts and our subscribers because we try to speak the truth to labor."

"Can you give us any help against these Gestapo tactics?" he asked in a letter.

NLRB Denies Charges

In response to an inquiry from Hoffman, H. A. Millis, chairman of the NLRB, on last March 6 denied that the board or its agents was "engaged in any campaign to embarrass any legitimate publication or to in any way prejudice it." When a complaint was lodged with the board, it had to be investigated, he noted, and Miss Craig was merely conducting an investigation.

"I have never understood that it was an unfair labor practice for an industry to buy advertising in any publication," Hoffman wrote Millis. "In reality, are you not trying to cut off the revenue of the Labor Digest so as to aid CIO in its organization campaign?"

On Nov. 12 last, Zolezzi advised Hoffman that Miss Craig had widened her activities, "calling upon our advertisers thruout the middle west and threatening them, by inference, with the displeasure of the NLRB unless they stopped advertising the paper."

The publication was then served with a notice of a NLRB hearing in which it was made co-defendant with the Jasper Desk company and charged with "distributing propaganda calculated and intended to interfere with the freedom of choice of representatives for collective bargaining." The complaint was signed by William F. Guffey, regional director of the NLRB.

Seeks to Enjoin Paper

A "cease and desist" order was prepared by the NLRB which the Labor Digest was asked to sign without contesting the charges. This order would enjoin the paper from soliciting or collecting funds from the Jasper Desk company "or any other employer" or "interfering with, restraining or coercing the employes" of the desk company "or any other employer in the exercise of the right to self-organization. The publication refused to agree to this order.

"That order, if issued and enforced," Hoffman told the house, "would prevent any and all newspapers published in the United States from soliciting funds from any employer or from any advertiser, if that publisher, using those funds to publish, sell, and circulate its newspaper, gave space to news stories or made editorial comment or permitted a columnist to make comment upon the activities of any labor union which had a dispute with an employer.

Free Press Right Cited

"Hundreds of publications thruout this country daily express opinions and publish news stories which influence or at least are designed to influence employes in the exercise of rights guaranteed to them by the Wagner act. That is only the exercise of the right to publish a free press.

"But the board would deny that right to the press. Clearly, the congress had no intention to make it unlawful for any newspaper, which was not the employer of any of those engaged in a labor dispute, to make comment upon the facts or the merits of the claims of those engaged in that dispute.

"All those papers which have accepted the advertisments of General Motors are acting either directly or indirectly in the interest of General Motors, an employer. Under the interpretation of the act, as followed in this case, every newspaper publishing one of those ads, or a news story which could be interpreted as detrimental to the interests of the union, is guilty of an unfair labor practice.

"Will the press of this country awaken to this situation?"

Margaret Walsh, chosen queen of Shriners hospital, accepting $26,000 check yesterday from E. Edwin Mills, chairman of the board of governors.

While dozens of eager eyed youngsters, all physically handicapped, looked on, their elected queen, pretty Margaret Walsh, 7, of Bloomington, Ill., accepted a check for $26,000 yesterday at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, 2211 N. Oak Park av.

The check ceremony was held in a Christmas decorated room in the hospital. Every child who could attend was present. Very soberly little Margaret, who is bedridden, accepted the big check from Art Gullickson, and E. Edwin Mills, chairman of the hospital's board of governors.

The check represented proceeds from the 1945 annual Shriners' circus, held at Medinah Temple. Gullickson is general chairman of the circus committee. The next Shrine circus will be held March 1 to 17, 1946.

TRUMAN FROWNS ON SUBSTITUTE FULL JOB BILL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—(AP)—President Truman set out today to rescue his so-called full employment bill, terming a house substitute unacceptable.

He disclosed that he has made an appeal to a joint congressional committee for quick enactment of a measure passed by the senate, which he said meets the essential characteristics of his program.

He made public a letter to the chairman of a joint conference committee considering the much amended employment bill, expressing hope congress will adopt legislation "substantially in the form passed by the senate."

Version Unacceptable

The house version stripped the measure of its goal of "full employment" and substituted a reference to a high level of employment. This measure, the President told a questioner, is unacceptable.

At the same time, the chief executive disclosed he will speak out forcibly soon on a congressional proposal to transfer the United States employment service back to the states over his opposition.

In his final news conference before Christmas, Mr. Truman also said he wants Navy Secretary Forrestal to remain at his post at least for the present, despite their differences over army-navy unification.

Won't Muzzle Navy

The President declared that despite his own commitment to a merger of the army and navy into a single department of national defense, no effort will be made to muzzle navy officers who disagree.

His only insistence, he told questioners, is that naval officers opposing the merger make it clear that they are expressing their personal views and not those of the administration.

When a reporter asked if Forrestal is trying to resign, the President replied that he had been trying to resign ever since last April. He hopes, he added, that Mr. Forrestal will not resign at an early date.

APPEALS COURT IN 2-1 RULING UPHOLDS LIFE SENTENCE FOR HAUPT

The sentence of life imprisonment and $10,000 fine for Hans Max Haupt, father of Herbert Haupt, executed nazi saboteur, was confirmed in a 2 to 1 decision yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Haupt had been convicted of treason in two District court trials, the death sentence meted out in the first trial being reversed on appeal. Yesterday's affirming opinion was written by Judge Evan A. Evans and concurred in by Judge Otto Kerner, with Judge J. Earl Major dissenting.

Answering the contention of Haupt's attorney that overt acts alleged by the government were not proven by testimony, Judge Evans declared the evidence "persuasively supports the contention that the overt acts here were done with a knowledge and with an intent to betray this country in time of war and to aid the enemy, Germany. The jury could hardly have found other than the defendant was proud his son was a German saboteur."

KIDNAP HOAX MOTHER FREED IN $2,500 BAIL

Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 20 (AP)—Pretty Rose Carlan, described by a District court judge as an "exhibitionist," was home again tonight with her sailor husband and 3 year old son—released on $2,500 bail on a murder charge in the death of her baby, central figure in a kidnaping hoax.

The red cheeked, stocky, 23 year old mother who set off New England's greatest "kidnap hunt" when she reported 6 months old Ronnie Carlan missing on Nov. 24, was released in $2,500 bail and returned to her home, where the infant's body was found last Friday hidden under a built-in cupboard.

She had admitted saying she invented the kidnap story because she did not want any one to think she had neglected the baby, who Medical Examiner William J. Brickley reported, died of asphyxiation following a fourth attack of pneumonia. She said she found the baby dead when she came downstairs to her flat from a party in her mother-in-law's apartment.

"It's going to be tough to keep the family going after I get out," said Haudenshild, who worked at railroading, press-operating, and odd jobs before he entered the army.

"I love kids," he added. "I'd like to have a hundred of them. So would my wife.

BARES U. S. DEAL TO SHARE LAKES' FISHING RIGHTS

Pact Would Give Canada Voice in Control

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20—The United States is secretly negotiating a treaty sharing control over the fishing industry in the Great Lakes and their connecting waters with Canada, Rep. Weichel [R., O.] told the house today.

"Nearly 80 per cent of the fish resources and fish food production of the Great Lakes is produced by Americans in American waters of the Great Lakes," Weichel asserted. "Yet, at the present moment, the department of state is carrying on secret meetings to give control of the entire industry to an international commission composed of three Americans and three Canadians.

"The administration apparently wants to give away our natural resources under the guise of protection. The waters of the Great Lakes, the lands thereunder, and wild life therein, belong to the adjoining states, up to the international boundary line.

Would Affect Lake Michigan

"The treaty is being negotiated in the name of the President and the king of England, acting for Canada. England, under the treaty, could vote as to the boundaries between our own great lakes. Lake Michigan, lying solely within the United States, would be affected."

Weichel introduced a resolution ordering the state department to stop the negotiations.

The commission is directed to draft a plan for "the effective management of the fishery resources of the Great Lakes" and may make regulations fixing open and closed seasons, open and closed waters, and the size limits for each species of fish which may be caught.

Has Its Own Lakes

"Canada itself has great inland lakes," Weichel said. "Fish from these lakes is destined mainly for the American market. The Canadian members of the commission may be expected to vote for regulations on open and closed seasons and the size limits of fish which will benefit the fishing industry on the Canadian lakes over which, of course, Canada retains sole control."

While the United States members alone, under the proposed treaty, would exercise control over the fishing industry in Lake Michigan, provisions in the treaty, Weichel said, make it necessary for them to consider "the necessary interdependence" of the other lakes. Thus Canada would have a voice in regulation of fishing in Lake Michigan, he contended.

760 GET COURT AID OF PUBLIC DEFENDER IN '45

Public Defender Francis T. McCurrie reported yesterday that his office represented 760 defendants in the Criminal court in 1945, compared with 646 in 1944.

No death penalties were imposed in 1945 on defendants represented by the public defender. McCurrie reported that 570 were found guilty and that of 425 handed penalties other than probation, 282 were sent to the penitentiary, 104 to the county jail, 29 to the Bridewell, four to insane hospitals, and six to the women's reformatory.

The public defender represented 22 defendants in jury trials in the year; 205 cases were contested without a jury, and 428 were uncontested bench trials.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Tom P. McKievick, 5116 N. Racine av.]

THE QUESTION

Do you have any idea that would help ease the housing situation in Chicago?

WHERE ASKED

75th st. and Stony Island av.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Louise Flesher, housewife, 4924 Magnolia av.—There are many large apartments in the city that are occupied by only two or three persons. In many instances, these apartments could be converted into three room kitchenettes that would house three times as many persons.

May Shearin, film inspectress, 2112 North av.—Many newlyweds would be satisfied to rent just a small one room apartment, if they could find it. Hundreds of single girls who rent apartments could move into a room with a family or could share their apartment with another girl. This would help a lot.

Florence Noven, contract clerk, 5434 Ingleside av.—Every single girl should marry a single man who has a home and the problem would be solved; or the bachelors should marry girls who have apartments. That would make many nice bachelor apartments available.

Pearl Tullin, inspectress, 4535 N. Paulina st.—For a period of two or three years I think owners of buildings should permit tenants to rent rooms in their apartments, if they have rooms to spare. Many people who live in hotels would be glad to move into a private home or apartment, if it were in a nice neighborhood.

Joe Baron, shipper, 660 Roscoe st.—All over the city there are large basements in apartment buildings that are not being used to the best advantage. It would be inexpensive to create more basement apartments in buildings that are suitable for this type of abode. All that space is wasted now.

Edward Safier, salesman, 2626 Lake View av.—Why couldn't the general public subscribe to building bonds just as they did to war bonds? Now that materials are available, huge building projects could be financed thus. After a period of years, all the bonds could be paid back with interest.

N. U. Woman Will Lead San Salvador Expedition

Dr. Margery Carlson of the botany department of Northwestern university left by plane yesterday to lead a scientific expedition into the tropical mountain jungles of San Salvador, Central America. The three month expedition, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Museum of Natural History and Northwestern university, will collect Central American flora.

PRUDENTIAL LIFE PLANS TO INVEST IN HOUSING HERE

Chicago housing authorities headed by Ald. Moss [5th], chairman of a council subcommittee, were told late yesterday that the Prudential Life Insurance company is ready to spend a considerable part of 300 million dollars on the purchase of land and development of garden type apartments in the city.

The assurance was given a housing meeting in the offices of the Chicago Plan commission, 20 N. Wacker dr., by Donald Humes, Chicago real estate manager for Prudential.

"The company's rarin' to go," was the way Humes put it. Another meeting between those in authority for the city and the company, including representatives of the company from New York, was set for Jan. 6.

Other Companies Active

Ald. Moss said he and his committee on a recent trip to New York learned that the Metropolitan Life and Equitable company are investing large sums in the purchase, building and management of apartments. Metropolitan in New York and Los Angeles spent nearly 250 millions, he said, and Equitable has large projects either built or under way.

The Prudential company, Humes told those at the meeting yesterday, including Miss Elizabeth Wood, chairman of the local housing authority, has been granted the right by the New Jersey legislature to invest 5 per cent of its holdings in real estate.

Building Sites Discussed

Chicago areas which the company may acquire to build on were discussed, Moss said, and Humes appeared favorable to at least several of these.

"The company is particularly interested in building garden type apartments of 50 to 500 units to the block," Moss said. "Humes places no limit on what the company expects to spend in Chicago and we hope for a good slice of the 300 million here."

Humes said the company has set up its own board to work with architects in communities and that quick action may be expected once agreements and plans have been made.

BLONDE WITH 3 MATES HELD ON GI PAY CHARGES

A blonde who admitted she had married three men in the last three years and was collecting army allotment checks from two of them was held in jail in Michigan City, Ind., yesterday. She gave her name as Rose Mary Lee and listed her marital career as follows:

In 1942 she married a soldier, Clifford Elkins, in Corinth, Miss., and since then has been getting a government allotment as his wife. In 1944, using the name of Mary Cortez, she married another soldier, Lester Payton, in Dayton, O., and has been receiving an allotment as his wife. Late in the same year, after Payton was sent overseas, she married Robert Lee in Vincennes, Ind. Lee is now in the Indiana State prison serving a term for auto banditry.

Chief of Police Joseph Wolf of Michigan City said the woman was arrested for questioning when her current companion, Malcolm Hoover, 29, was seized for investigation of several check forgeries. She is being held for federal authorities, who have been notified of her admissions of the allotment frauds.

WOMAN LOSES $300

Miss Lorine Sweeney of 2452 Hollywood av. told police yesterday that she lost her purse containing $300 near 612 N. Michigan av.

Tugwell Given U. of C. Post; Island Says Good Riddance

A Planning 'Expert'

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Rexford Guy Tugwell, governor of Puerto Rico, an original brain truster of the New Deal, yesterday was appointed director of the University of Chicago's new program of education and research in planning. President Ernest C. Colwell said Tugwell's duties at the university would begin July 1. Tugwell's island administration has been stormy, drawing repeated demands by Puerto Rican leaders for his removal.

Tugwell's Career Stormy

Tugwell was taken into the Roosevelt administration from Columbia university as assistant secretary of agriculture in 1933.

After stormy years as undersecretary of that department, Tugwell faded from the political arena in 1937 to head New York City's planning commission. First appointed chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico in 1941, he became governor later that year. The next year he was accused in congress of trying experiments in national socialism.

The new planning program at the university that Tugwell will direct will be opened Jan. 1. It will be conducted in coöperation with the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Public Administration Clearing House, and other agencies such as the American Society of Planning Officials, the International City Managers association, the American Municipal association, and the National Association of Housing Officials, the announcement stated.

Work in New Field

Dean Robert Redfield of the university's division of social sciences, explained that "planning has become increasingly important in government from the local to the federal level, but planning agencies, public and private, have had no professionally trained personnel available."

He said the educational program "covers a broad fundamental field including geography, history, economics, political science, sociology, and technical training in statistics, cartography, administration, law, and other specialized fields."

Puerto Rico Glad

Jose Ramon Quinones was a very happy man yesterday.

Jose R. Quinones

"In fact," said Jose Ramon Quinones, who came here from Puerto Rico to attend the American Farm bureau convention in Hotel Sherman, "this news is the finest Christmas present my island could receive."

The news that brought a beam to the round, swarthy face of Mr. Quinones was the announcement that Gov. Rexford Guy Tugwell, who has been governor of Puerto Rico for several years, will leave the island and join the faculty of the University of Chicago in July.

An Eyeful of Tugwell

"Chicago, except for your terrible weather, is such a fine city," said Quinones. "The coming city of America—you know what I mean—progressive. I wish you no ill will, but I am so glad you are going to get that man—and please, for goodness sake, keep him!"

Quinones described Tugwell's regime in Puerto Rico as "monkey business."

"What would you think," he asked a reporter, "if carpet baggers, and I mean carpet baggers, came into Chicago from other states, took over floors of hotels, paid themselves higher salaries than your educated people, and then tried to take away everything you had earned and saved?

Latin Ill Will Created

"That creates ill will toward America, and remember: Everything done in Puerto Rico is reflected thruout Central and South America."

When Quinones compared Tugwell's island experiments in state farms with the state farms system of Russia, he was asked if Tugwell had ever called any Russian farm advisers to Puerto Rico.

"Why should he?" was the reply. "We already had Tugwell."

3 SETS OF TWINS BORN IN STORM AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP)—Reported thriving today at Millard Fillmore hospital are three sets of twins born during the last two days of a five-day blizzard that had deposited as much as 68 inches of snow in the Buffalo area when it ended Tuesday.

Mrs. Joseph Thielman of Cheektowaga, who came the longest distance, said her husband drove her to the hospital and they "had a hard time."

The others, Mrs. Robert Huefner and Mrs. Jack Kleinclaus, both of Buffalo, said their husbands were not able to get their automobiles started when the moment came to leave. Mrs. Heufner's brother lent his car for the emergency, and the Kleinclaus's were driven by a friend.

Tavern Owner Fined $105 for Having Slot Machine

Louis Vecker, owner of a tavern at 103d st. and Ridgeland av., Worth township, was fined $100 and $5 costs yesterday on a charge of keeping a gambling device. He was arrested Dec. 16 by county highway police after they found a five cent slot machine in his tavern. The fine was imposed by Justice of the Peace Henry Pendl at the Bedford Park county highway police station.

TRAVELING CASE SOUGHT AS CLEW IN LANGE DEATH

A red leather traveling case bearing the initials L. A. L. was sought by Albany Park police last night as they pressed their search for the killer of Lawrence A. Lange, 36, who was found stabbed to death Dec. 12 in his apartment at 3146 Wilson av.

Capt. Thomas Kelly said evidence indicated the murderer had removed the case from a closet before fleeing the apartment. The case was the smaller one of a two piece matched set of luggage purchased by Lange before he visited Florida recently.

Analysis yesterday established that stains on an envelope turned in to his company office by a cab driver the night Lange was slain were made by grease and not blood, as at first believed.

$5,000 FIRE IN BOWLING ALLEY

Fire blamed on a cigaret caused $5,000 damage early yesterday to bowling alleys in the Victory Recreation club, 824 E. 47th st.

DESPAIR FOR TWO 'BLUE BABIES'—JOY FOR ANOTHER

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 20 (AP)—Joy and despair went hand in hand today at Johns Hopkins hospital.

The joy was for an orphan, Bonnie Stewart, 2, of Orlando, Fla., who was ready to leave the hospital any day now as a healthy child. A month ago tragedy loomed over her for the third time—she was marked for the early death of a "blue" baby. Her father was killed last March on Iwo Jima. Her mother was murdered a year ago.

Saved by Two Doctors

But the genius of Dr. Alfred Blalock, professor of surgery at the hospital, and Dr. Helen B. Taussig, head of the cardiac clinic of Johns Hopkins pediatrics division, saved her. The child's grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Heath, is to take her to Orlando.

The despair was for two other "blue" babies who left the hospital today. Dr. Taussig had decided that Phyllis Keller, 8, of Mansfield, O., and Suzie Anello, 6, of Philadelphia, Pa., must go home because the surgical miracle which helped Bonnie would not help them.

Can't Help Them All

Only certain "blue" baby cases can be helped by the Blalock-Taussig operation.

Carol Ruth Winter, 3, of New Providence, N. J., is one who may be helped—her operation is scheduled tentatively. Janice Marie Hayden, 2, of Michigan City, Ind., was nearly finished with Dr. Taussig's exhaustive tests and an operation date was expected to be fixed in her case soon.

Two other "blue" babies operated on this week are recovering but Judy Hackman, 2, of Buckley, Wash., is not making the progress doctors expected.

DELIVERY OF ALL YULE MAIL BY 24TH PROMISED

Delivery of all Christmas parcels by Christmas eve was promised yesterday by Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen. Extra trucks will be added to the delivery fleet Sunday to speed the service, Kruetgen said, and if the railroad delivery service does not break down, the platforms should be clean Christmas morning. If they are not, employes will be called back to make deliveries on Christmas day, Kruetgen said. So far, receipts of incoming parcel post are running 6.3 per cent higher than last year. First class mail dipped 1 per cent below last year's receipts.

Promises to Make Good $1,800 Theft of GI Foods

Gilbert R. Johnson, 48, of 4236 Greenwood av., was placed on probation for three years yesterday after he promised Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court that he would make restitution for the $1,800 worth of canned goods he stole from an army warehouse where he had been superintendent.

POLICE GUN DUEL SURVIVORS PUT ON PROBATION

Two young men who survived a gun fight with police last Oct. 19, when two of their companions were killed, were placed on probation yesterday by Judge Charles E. Byrne in Felony court, who said neither of the pair had previous police records. Both were found guilty Dec. 11 of assault to murder. They are Charles Sineni, 17, of 2858 Taylor st., who was placed on probation for three years, and Philip Puzzo, 18, of 1111 S. Mozart st., who got two years' probation. Another of their companions, Frank Randazzo, 26, of 1047 Belden av., was sentenced to 3 to 6 years in prison at the previous hearing. The three were captured in a chase in which Charles DeCola, 19, and Victor Puzzo, 16, were killed.

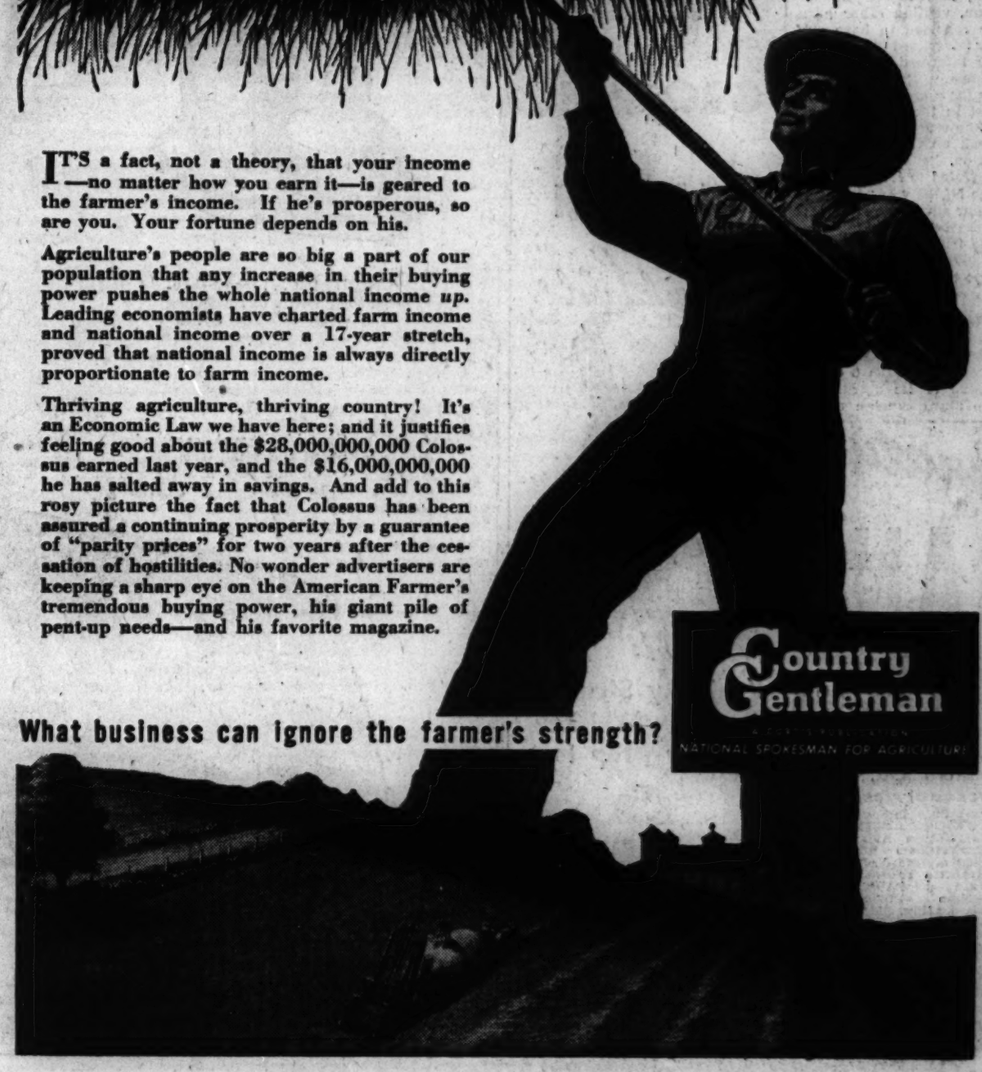
Colossus of the Cross Roads
...your fortune depends on his



IT'S a fact, not a theory, that your income—no matter how you earn it—is geared to the farmer's income. If he's prosperous, so are you. Your fortune depends on his.

Agriculture's people are so big a part of our population that any increase in their buying power pushes the whole national income up. Leading economists have charted farm income and national income over a 17-year stretch, proved that national income is always directly proportionate to farm income.

Thriving agriculture, thriving country! It's an Economic Law we have here; and it justifies feeling good about the $28,000,000,000 Colossus earned last year, and the $16,000,000,000 he has salted away in savings. And add to this rosy picture the fact that Colossus has been assured a continuing prosperity by a guarantee of "parity prices" for two years after the cessation of hostilities. No wonder advertisers are keeping a sharp eye on the American Farmer's tremendous buying power, his giant pile of pent-up needs—and his favorite magazine.

What business can ignore the farmer's strength?

EUROPE'S RICHEST LOOT

The British program of taking over the Ruhr mines and industries is defended as a means of preventing the Germans from rearming.

That is the merest subterfuge. It was no accident that the Ruhr, which was conquered by American troops, was turned over to the British for occupation. The Ruhr is the richest prize in Europe, containing, as it does, the continent's most valuable natural resource. Here are found plentiful deposits of high grade coal, close to Europe's best iron ores, in the midst of Europe's densest concentration of population, and in a region admirably served with rail and water transportation. The British are seizing private property that is worth billions of anybody's money, and taking it without even a pretense of compensating the owners.

This is, of course, the grossest kind of a violation of international law, and the phrase is not being used in any loose sense. What Britain proposes to do is directly and specifically forbidden in the second Hague convention to which Britain, all her allies including this country, and all her enemies were signatories. In Article 46 of the section dealing with "Military Authority over the Territory of the Hostile State," the treaty says "Private property cannot be confiscated." Article 53 underlines the point by saying that any private property taken during an occupation "must be restored and compensation fixed when peace is made." The British may seek to defend their program with a lot of pretty words, but the plain fact is that they are taking private property, by force, in violation of the law they themselves helped to formulate and freely accepted. The right word for that offense is thievery and the right word for one who commits it is thief.

Britain's prosperity was built on her own coal industry, but many of her mines are now exhausted and few of the rest are properly equipped for efficient production. The morale of the British miners is shockingly low. Man for man, they have produced less coal than the miners of the Ruhr. The Labor government is committed to nationalizing the British industry and has just introduced a bill in parliament for that purpose. As the Labor party is heavily indebted to the miners for political support, the Labor government when it gets the mines can't very well drive the men to work harder. The miners want, and no doubt will get, higher wages without correspondingly increased production.

That is one of the real reasons why Mr. Attlee proposes to take over the German mines. He could find other ways, and lawful ones, of preventing a German rearmament, but there is no sure way to knock off the Ruhr competition except to control it thru ownership. With the Labor government in possession of the German mines as well as the British, he can see to it that his political followers get the wages they voted for.

Meanwhile the propaganda trial at Nuernberg goes ahead and by calling attention to the undoubted sins of the nazi leaders distracts attention from the present acts of the victors. When the dust settles, we shall find a British-American band of looters in possession of the Ruhr industries and exploiting German workmen who will be held down by the bayonets of the occupation forces. Americans may well wonder whether this is what their sons fought and died for.

AMERICA'S SHAME

The state department, having confessed that this country shares equally with Britain the responsibility for the present war in Java, now seeks to dodge some of the blame. Our government, as Ambassador Halifax asserted, did join in authorizing the expedition to Java, but it was undertaken with a view to disarming the Jap garrison and not to killing the Javanese patriots. The murders, it appears from this, were not premeditated. The plea would be more impressive if our state department had made even a feeble protest to London against the outrage.

This country was born in the closing years of the 18th century because American patriots were willing to risk their lives, their fortunes, and their honor in just such a struggle for independence as the Javanese are making today. Now, in the middle years of the 20th century, America, for the first time, is exerting its influence actively on the side of imperial enslavement. We have played a part in condemning Poland and the Balkan and Baltic states to the loss of their liberties, but in these instances we could find excuses for our conduct on the more or less plausible ground that Russia had acted without consulting us and was in no mood to yield to any objections from us. In Java we have no excuse. We could have stopped the whole ugly business by saying no; instead Mr. Truman's representatives on the combined chiefs of staff said a shameful yes.

It is hoped that congress will make haste to force a reversal of the official policy. It is too late to save the lives of the murdered patriots, but it is not too late to rebuke the misguided sycophants in Washington who have brought this disgrace upon our country.

More particularly, it may not be too late to forbid Mr. Truman to send any American forces to Java to join in the murder. Both houses of congress have voted authority to his representative in the united nations security council to send American troops into battle without a declaration of war. There are minor differences in the two resolutions, however, which remain to be compromised. The Javanese outrage stands as a warning which congress ought to heed. Plainly, the authority voted to President Truman is likely to be used not to protect the world's peace, as the propagandists pretend, but to enforce age-old injustices.

For 20 years now, and more, Americans have been told that the world's salvation depends upon American leadership in international councils. The assumption is that the nations of the world behave badly because of the lack of our wholesome guidance. They would follow it eagerly if we would join them in a program for maintaining peace, or so we have been assured. We now know that the whole theory is hogwash. Mr. Truman and his state department don't lead; they follow, ignominiously and shamelessly. What other meaning can be attached to the American indorsement of the imperial crime in Java? What other meaning can be attached to the American vote in the united nations preparatory commission against allowing the colonial peoples to voice their grievances thru spokesmen of their own choosing?

CHAMPAGNE TALK AND A BEER AIRPORT

Chicago keeps talking all the time about becoming the air traffic center of the universe. Meanwhile we keep jamming passengers thru a terminal building at the existing municipal airport which would be no great credit to the T., P. & W. railroad.

The talk, it happens, is sound. Chicago does have a magnificent future as an air transport center. But unless we do something more than talk, and do it quickly, realization of that future is going to slip away from us.

Ninety per cent of the potential passengers on transoceanic planes that may fly out of Chicago have never made a flight. Ninety-nine per cent of them have never made an international flight. Travel habits, once formed, are hard to break. If we are not ready to accommodate the passengers when they are ready to fly, and the air lines are ready to carry them, they will take passage thru other, more enterprising cities. Chicago's prospects, now bright, will be dimmed permanently, if they do not vanish.

C. R. Smith, chairman of American Air Lines, made this clear in his speech before the Association of Commerce Wednesday. Our problem of air terminal facilities isn't one to be solved a few months or a few years from now. It's on our back right now. The existing municipal terminal building is disgracefully inadequate and already overcrowded. In 90 days, as air line schedules begin to increase with new equipment, the place will become a complete madhouse.

A new terminal at the municipal port is the first item of business. We've been talking about it for years. It was hoped to have it finished last fall. As it is, the foundations are in, which, as things have been going in this town, is nearly miraculous. Blame for failure to have it ready cannot be laid at any one door. The city and the air lines had difficulty in coming to an agreement on plans. Priority trouble delayed it.

Steel is now available. The city budget, however, provides salaries for the staff of the new building only from June 1 on, an indication of the expected date of completion. That's too late. That date can be beaten. Difficulties will have to be overcome, but they can be and must be. April 1, rather than June 1, should be the goal.

Air travel is now and for a few years will remain more or less a luxury business. Passengers are sensitive to the first impression they get of a city thru its airport terminal, its restaurant, and other facilities. Chicago, as Mr. Smith said, can funnel the bulk of trans-Atlantic air travel from the western United States thru its airport if it provides proper facilities. It's not going to get that traffic with its present ratty terminal building.

The terminal at the present airport is, of course, the immediate but minor problem. The major problem is the early completion of the new airport at the Douglas site. Mr. Smith voiced another warning on this project. "It can't be ready before it is urgently needed, no matter with what speed you operate," he warned the Association of Commerce members.

It must be conceded that the planning of a major improvement such as this can't be done overnight. New York spent several years planning its new Idlewild airport and, even so, emerged with a field which in a number of respects, but particularly its location, is far from ideal.

Mayor Kelly has received assurances in Washington that the army will relinquish the Douglas site to the city. That, however, will provide less than 1,500 acres of a needed 5,000. The rest must be purchased or, if necessary, condemned. Chicago can't stand, at the Douglas site, a repetition of the disgraceful boondoggling that delayed expansion of the Cicero avenue airport for years.

Fortunately the legal problems presented are fewer at the Douglas site and the city's powers probably greater. Once it is held that condemnation is for a proper purpose the city should be able to get immediate possessions and let the courts fix damages at their leisure. There is no reason to wait for the army to yield title to start acquiring additional property. That should start at once.

Talk of finishing the Douglas airport two years, or three years, or five years from now is not only silly, it is also fatal to Chicago aspirations in the field of air commerce. Tentative plans have already been prepared. Those plans should be in firm enough form to start construction as soon as weather permits. Twenty months, which would give two full outdoor construction seasons, should be set as the absolute maximum period for opening of the airport.

It is easy enough to say that that can't be done. It has to be done. If that is once realized it may be done. THE TRIBUNE pledges full support to the doers and short shrift to the talkers. We're tired of talk and so is the rest of Chicago.

This triangle that involves Charley McCarthy, Bergen and the new wife raises a pretty question: Who's to sit in whose lap?—Detroit News.

STARS AND NAMES

On Christmas eve a constellation in the northwestern sky [Cygnus, the Swan] displays a Latin cross of stars, almost geometrically exact, standing upright on the horizon. Its low position is a handicap to observation by laymen, except among dwellers in the wide open spaces, but astronomers often speak of this inspiring omen, which is popularly called the Northern Cross. Five stars form this figure; the brightest, Deneb, stands at the head of the cross.

* * *

There is a large region on the map of Africa that was named after Christmas. It is Natal, a province in the Union of South Africa, whose coast was first observed on Christmas day, 1497, by Vasco da Gama, Portuguese navigator, and therefore called by him Terra Natalis [Land of the Nativity]. Its pronunciation has not been Anglicized and, therefore, is not like the same word in "natal day."

Christmas occurs as a family name, and altho there are few Christmases in comparison with the Smiths, Joneses, Browns, and Johnsons, they can hardly be called rare. Fifteen are listed in the Chicago telephone directory.

If the Star of Bethlehem was an astronomical fact, it may have been a "nova" [new star], whose sudden flaming in the sky marked its death throes. Astronomers are quite familiar with "novas." Such sudden incandescences, which soon disappear, are believed to be caused by the explosion of stars that had been invisible. These stellar catastrophes are undoubtedly accompanied by atomic disintegration. If real, then the Star of Bethlehem was the first recorded chain reaction of shattered atoms.

Christmas Shopping, Old Style

The fortnight before Christmas, frivolity invaded our small town "Fair" store. A bevy of high school girls spent their vacations with us as salesladies. They turned our store topsy-turvy. We were deviled by a flood of questions and banterings. Constantly we had to wind up the Swiss music boxes for them. If a waltz tune coincided with a slack period, some shameless miss would pirouette along the aisles, swinging long skirts, with thrilling glimpses of white cotton stockings. Thru Yuletime our usually masculine place was twittery, giggly, and all a-flutter.

Ah, yes, those were chaotic, disturbing, but gay fortnights, for we youngsters much bemused by feminine wiles, especially at home-going time, when we selected girls to be escorted to their front gates. I seemed to get the ones who lived farthest away, but likely I thought them the prettiest. For this service in gallantry we expected and received a not too unwilling kiss at the gate—a very discreet kiss, however, because a slight movement behind the lace curtain of the darkened parlor would be either Pa or Ma, or else [ghastly thought] big brother.

SECOND SYMPHONY

(To Jan Sibelius, on his 80th birthday.)

Your own white northern land has faced harsh foes,
And there have been distorted shadows seen
Along the whiteness of the Finnish snows.
But still, responsive pines rise, brave and green;
Still over every fierce vicissitude
The urgent, cleansing pine-filled wind can sweep,
Sprayed by the salt of northern seas, and brood
With furious cosmic tenderness. Men keep,
Thru all the conflicts that the heart must face,
When minds are troubled by harsh elements
And each distorted shadow leaves its trace,
Some strength to lift themselves from hard events—
Exultant that the spirit's wings are free
To rise on stronger winds of destiny!

Speaking of old time eating places, how about this one? Over the door of the closed Palisade hotel on S. Clark st., south of the former site of Hinky Dink's Workingmen's exchange, a faded sign reads:

"Rooms 20c and 25c. Weekly rates. Free breakfast and supper."

Christmas shopping, 1945, may be recorded as downtown Chicago's battle of the bulge: Snow, human swarms, juggernaut traffic, and perils at every street crossing.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. R. G. F. writes: "My husband enlisted in the army five years ago. He served for a year and a half in the Pacific theater, then returned to the United States and became a B-24 pilot. He then was sent to the European theater. He was there a year and flew 35 missions and was missing in action for a time. He has 131 points and now is on terminal leave. He wants to reënlist as a master sergeant. Can he be sent overseas again?"

Men who enlist or reënlist for three years will be assigned at their option to their present organization, any arm or service of their choice, and to either the European, Pacific, China theaters, Caribbean defense command, or Alaskan department. Enlistment or reënlistment for assignment in the United States for men now serving will be limited to those who enlist or reënlist for three years in their present organization. If your husband reënlists as a master sergeant he may retain his reserve commission.

Mrs. K. S. M. writes: "For how long does a technician fourth grade, 40 years old, have to reenlist after he is discharged from the army?"

Men 40 and over must have a minimum of five years of active service before they can be reënlisted in the army if they have been discharged, but there are no age restrictions on reenlistment of men now serving. Men within the age limits may be reënlisted in their present grade if they apply for reënlistment within 20 days from date of discharge and before Feb. 1, 1946.

HEART DEFECTS AT BIRTH

WHEN a newborn infant takes its first few breaths the skin loses its duskiness and livens up to a fresh pink hue. Should the lungs fail to expand, such a change could not take place but occasionally a purplish color persists in spite of adequate respiration. The child is referred to as a "blue baby" and a defect in the pumping machinery must be suspected.

Several weeks after conception, the heart begins to take form, starting as a single tube and ending as a highly specialized organ with four chambers. In addition, arteries and veins develop, which connect with the circulation in general including the lungs. By the fifth month, contractions are audible with the stethoscope.

During any stage in the growth of this apparatus, the process may not continue as it should. Only three chambers may be created instead of four, or the partition between the auricles or ventricles may remain incomplete. Thus the venous blood mixes with the arterial instead of passing thru the lungs for purification. The valves may be damaged or the entryway into the large vessels, leaving the structure, narrowed. This interferes with the passage of vital fluid and the pump has difficulty in expelling an adequate amount. Now and then these arteries and veins join just outside the heart. This, too, causes the blood to blend so that the tissues fail to obtain properly prepared nourishment.

Sometimes the structures are reversed, with the organ situated on the right side instead of the left. This may be associated with similar variations elsewhere with the liver or stomach also transposed. The condition is seldom of any consequence, so long as function is not disturbed.

These disorders have various manifestations. In many, the skin and lips are not blue; in others, the phenomenon is exhibited only during exertion. Some have delicate and pale complexions, and are of a tall, slender build. Delayed puberty is not unusual. The fingertips and even the toes may undergo a peculiar transformation. They gradually come to look like clubs due to thickening at the ends. As a rule, these cases are recognized by listening to the heart and detecting certain telltale signs under the X-ray.

The outcome and symptoms depend on the type of lesion and its magnitude. In the more extensive, especially if vital areas are involved, there is little chance for survival beyond the second year. The majority of the remainder are on a par with any one having cardiac trouble such as results from rheumatic fever. Discomfort in breathing may be present in addition to attacks of dizziness. Many have a high red blood count which in itself adds to the cyanotic appearance.

Most victims should avoid overexertion as well as infections of the nose and throat. Rest, digitalis, oxygen, and sedatives are used when necessary. In those in whom a connection exists between the aorta and pulmonary artery [patent ductus arteriosus], surgery has been effective. Many sufferers have actually been converted by this procedure from hopeless cardiac cripples to completely well individuals.

NECK GLANDS

M. H. M. writes: I have been troubled lately with the glands in my neck and throat. Periodically the one under my right ear swells and is painful, and those under the chin are nearly always swollen. What causes this?

REPLY

There are numerous glands in this area and it is important to know which are involved. The origin may be an inflammatory condition in the teeth, throat, or ears. If the salivary structures are acting up, a different type of infection or a blockage may be responsible. Occasionally, there is enlargement of the carotid body, a nerve structure next to the large artery leading to the neck. With all these possibilities, don't you think an examination is in order?

NOT LINKED

V. B. writes: Do cold hands and feet go with anemia?

REPLY

Not "steady," but we see this disorder occasionally in anemia. Other causes are more common.

CALM LAWYER

W. E. R. writes: Is a pulse of 67 to 71 too low for an attorney?

REPLY

At rest, or when fighting a case? This rate is within the normal range.

ONLY INDIRECTLY

Mrs. L. D. writes: Is diet of any value in ulcers of the legs?

REPLY

No; except in rare instances of malnutrition. Circulatory disorders are common causes.

'Twas the Night Before Nothing

[Known in the Pacific as "The Christmas Carol of 1945"]

It's a month before Christmas and all thru the service
Not a damn man is moving and we're all getting nervous.
Great plans and new systems are evolved every day,
Releasing three men; making two million stay.

For Georgie the "Marshall" and his nautical mate
Are defending Pearl Harbor just four years too late.
Our dear little Brehon is no longer lonely,
For his pineapple Pentagon has Standing Room Only.

Of course, they have reasons to keep us all here,
For as long as we stay they won't have to fear
That they'll lose one or two of their so-perilous stars,
Or their eagles and oak leaves revert to gold bars.

Now Joe Doaks, the welder, is filled with delight,
For Joe's twenty-six and "too old to fight";
Thus to draft this old man would be quite a crime
So he marches all day in a long picket line.

Our Tony Pazotta has jumped on a plane
[Tony plays football and has a big name],
But poor Brown, the private, will just have to wait;
He's only a father and can't draw a gate.

For all good little officers who polish their bars
Santa's not wearing whiskers but three silver stars,
The recruiters are screaming, "Let's join in the fight!"
And to all who will listen we say:
"BARNUM WAS RIGHT!"

Evergreen on a Knoll

A traveler who identifies himself only as Harold was returning to Chicago from Evansville, Ind., the other day when, gazing out the train window, he had the sensation that the train was standing still and the landscape fleeing before his eyes. Past him came a seemingly endless panorama of rustic scenes—snug little farm cottages, broad fields stripped of their produce, sleepy villagers, ice-fringed streams, and wooded slopes blanketed with snow.

Suddenly he saw a wooded slope rising from a creek. Upon it a few small evergreen trees stood out against the snowy background like emeralds upon ermine. A sharp nostalgia welled up in him at the sight, for he remembered how, as a boy, he used to accompany his father at this season to just such a spot to bring home for the Christmas tree a small evergreen such as the ones there on the knoll.

Back it all flooded—the joyous anticipation of going with his father to the timber a few miles from home to hunt for a shapely evergreen sapling, or failing to find one, to shinny up a larger conifer and top it; the triumphant voyage home to install it in the seldom-used parlor; the proud feeling experienced by him and his brothers in later years when commissioned by their father to go to the woods and bring home a tree by themselves.

And then came the day when Christmas trees became scarce in that neighborhood. No tree? Christmas was not Christmas without one. But the boys had forgotten the resourcefulness of their father. He brought out saw, hammer, and nails. Soon, out of a piece of 2 by 2 lumber and a couple of crossed boards he produced a skeleton tree. To this he nailed small branches cut from cedar trees in the front yard. There it was, ready to be trimmed, to the boys' eyes the most beautiful Christmas tree they had ever seen because it was the spontaneous creation of a father who could not bear to see his children disappointed.

In the giving of such joy, the traveler reflected as the landscape subsided and his train raced into a metropolis filled with silvered balsams, tinsel, artificial snow, and bright baubles made on an assembly line, lies the true spirit of Christmas.

DEMOS GONE GAGA

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 9—Derivation of the word demagogue: demos meaning people and gaga meaning New Deal. Since 1933 this country has been governed by what T. R. christened the "lunatic fringe," which constitutes such a triumph of democracy that one cannot much blame Mr. Stalin for not being sold on it. Merely to state our actions and beliefs builds up a case of lunacy:

In the face of all history, we consider a vast excess of expenditures over tax collections as "not meaning anything."

We furnish great inflationary pressure to our financial system by pumping it full of deposit money resulting from government debt, then count it as part of some mystic concept known as "gross national product." This monetization of destruction is called "war prosperity" by Mr. Truman and dangerous savings by our treasury department.

As if we had not wasted enough at home, we insist on giving money away, under pressure of blackmail threats stating what other countries will do to us; and without even bothering to determine whether we are in a position to make such gifts.

We shout down with emotional claptrap any one who tries to tell us our first concern should be the United States, while we turn the destiny of our country over to men beside whom Benedict Arnold was a piker.

With tremendous pent up demand, with buying power lying idle in the banks, with jobs crying to be done, we pay unemployment compensation to our neighbors, who refuse to work at the highest wage rates in history. We suffer a shortage of tires because that union refuses to work more than 35, or is it 36, hours? We sit idly by while a combination of labor leaders, politicians, and OPA burocrats shut down auto production; paralyze building; produce barely enough coal to keep us from freezing [thus leaving industry short]; threaten the vital steel industry; stop production of radios, washing machines, and refrigerators, to mention only a few.

We take everything without a murmur, while nobody could have killed our reconversion up to now, or discredited our successful system better than the combination mentioned above.

We know better. Each of us knows we must live within our income. Men who would not support their wives' families to 42d cousins cheerfully stand for vast gifts to foreign countries, to be paid for in their and their sons' sweat and blood. We allow pressure groups to stall our economic machine and support them in idleness while they do it.

Why? I wish some one would tell me.

HE WANTS HIS CUT

Cicero, Ill., Dec. 18—Three cheers for Gen. Brooks upon his speech against the huge loan to Britain. Those screwballs in Washington must be nuts to make a loan under such conditions. We poor ex-service men must pay interest on only two grand, and the red tape we must go thru is like a third degree. If they can give dough away like that let them toss a few grand our way, free from red tape and interest.

DISGUSTED

TRANSPORTATION HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 9—I have noticed several times that service men and women are being left without travel facilities after being brought back from both Europe and the Pacific. No doubt it takes more than four years for the bright men in Washington to realize that it takes cars in which to travel and that they cannot be produced by the wave of a wand. These cars could have been made ready for the railroads during the time the war was going on and then sold to the railroads after the war. And they could have been decent cars for first class fighters, and not cattle cars such as have been built. But the government cannot do that now.

We do have an enormous number of planes in this country, and if public sentiment could be focused on this, the government would be forced to use them to transport the men and women who are stranded without transportation, thus getting them home for Christmas. President Truman has a private plane by which he can jump out to Missouri to see his mother, and a lot of the big shots have planes that they use on special trips. What do these planes do when they are not making these junkets? It would be fine to bring a few GI's home for Christmas.

JOHN T. DAVIS

CHRISTMAS LIBERTY

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 12—With the return home of many service men, and with the knowledge of others soon to be home, this will be a most happy Christmas for many families. However, those still in training centers, army and navy schools, etc., scarcely deserve to be forgotten. A little sympathetic action on the part of the brass hats would make it possible for many of these to spend Christmas at home.

By allowing liberty the Monday between the week-end and Christmas day, four days would be available for trips home. A request by the President that railroads and other transportation companies carry no passengers except service men or their families on the way to get together, I believe would be granted.

SCHOOL BUDGET UP 7 MILLION TO $78,879,654

Provides Wage Increase for 8,000 Teachers

The board of education's tentative budget for 1946, released yesterday, set up an appropriation of $61,751,740 for educational expenditures, an increase of $4,498,948 over 1945.

Altho it is not specified in the budget, much of the increase is scheduled to boost the pay of 8,000 elementary school teachers and other employes in the lower income brackets. Increases for skilled employes covered by union contracts are provided.

$150 Raise Expected

Under a special account, the budget sets up $3,800,000 additional for salaries and other expenses in 1946. An annual salary raise of about $150 a year for grade school teachers is expected to be approved at budget hearings.

The building fund appropriation is set at $10,683,089, or $155,174 more than the 1945 appropriation. The free textbook account is up $83,000 to $1,148,483. Total appropriations for all funds, including bond redemption and interest, amount to $78,879,654, or nearly $7,000,000 more than in 1945.

Board to Meet Wednesday

Tax levies to cover the appropriations are fixed at $72,456,273 against $69,248,717 for the current year. The levies will produce an estimated $65,210,646 after loss and cost of collection has been deducted. The board also has income from state funds, rentals, and other sources.

The school board will meet next Wednesday to receive the budget, and will meet almost daily as a committee of the whole until it is whipped into shape, James B. McCahey, board president, said. A public hearing is expected about Jan. 9.

The sanitary district yesterday adopted the 1946 appropriation bill and tax levy ordinance for a budget of $59,957,300. This is $504,000 greater than the figure in the tentative budget.

Dredging Fund Set Up

The principal increase was caused by the inclusion of $363,000 for dredging the north shore channel and $86,000 to operate the sewage pumping station at 73d st. and Stony Island av. which the district has taken over from the city.

The budget sets up a $10,469,975 corporate fund; a $23,369,363 bond and interest fund; $682,900 for employes' pensions; $25,359,161 for construction bonds, and $75,901 in the land damage fund.

Total tax levies for the 1946 budget are set at $16,992,747 against $19,286,000 for 1945. Thru a tax reduction ordinance enacted yesterday the board abated $247,000 of the 1945 tax levy. The budget will receive final approval of the board Dec. 27.

EXPECT COUNTY TO PASS BUDGET FOR 1946 TODAY

Cook county's 1946 operating budget, appropriating a total of about $25,800,000 for all purposes, is scheduled for final approval by the county board today.

In its original form, the budget called for a 10 per cent pay raise for all employes. Since the public hearing on the bills, this has been modified. The raise is not to be received by officials earning $7,500 a year or more. Others in the higher brackets will be given only enough percentage increase to bring their salaries to $7,500. Richard J. Daley, deputy controller, said the ruling would apply to only 14 officials.

Daley added that the nurses' home appropriation had been increased by $100,000 to $2,400,000. The home is operated by an association and furnishes nursing service for the County hospital.

STRATTON JOINS G.O.P. HARMONY STATE TICKET

Will Run for Congress; Rowe for Treasurer

BY GEORGE TAGGE

A Republican state ticket for 1946 was completed yesterday with the announcement that William G. Stratton will run for congressman at large. Also under the banner of the forces of Gov. Green will be Richard Yates Rowe, for state treasurer, and Vernon L. Nickell, incumbent, for superintendent of public instruction.

By getting Stratton into his camp, Gov. Green followed suggestions that this would be the surest way to avert a primary fight. From Okinawa came word from Lt. [j. g.] Stratton that he, too, would take the advice of friends and not buck Green's choice for state treasurer.

Stratton a Vote Getter

In 1944, Stratton made an independent fight against the governor's candidate for secretary of state, Arnold P. Benson, now state director of agriculture. Besides costing the Green camp a reported $400,000, the primary brawl weakened the G. O. P. for the losing battle in the fall against Edward J. Barrett, Democrat.

Stratton, son of the late William Stratton, Republican secretary of state, followed in his father's footsteps as a vote getter. In 1940, he got the largest vote for congressman at large ever given an Illinois Republican, and ran ahead of the ticket in winning for state treasurer in 1942.

Stratton a Dynamic Character

Stratton's appearance and manner are deceptive. They fail to reveal the dynamic quality disclosed by his performance record. On the street he would pass as younger than his 31 years, but there was nothing immature in his handling of hundreds of millions of dollars as treasurer. And he was serious in fighting New Dealism as the youngest member of congress.

His light banter has served as a foil for the world's eyes. His friends have often wondered why he chose to hide his interest in and considerable knowledge of economics and philosophy—perhaps exceeding that of any other active Illinois politician. Stratton's degree in political science was from the University of Arizona. His wife and two young daughters reside in Morris.

1948 Still a Problem

In his comeback Stratton will take his chances in the 1948 shuffle. Gov. Green turned a deaf ear to pleas that he assure his aid to the young man for a good spot on the ticket that year.

Stephen A. Day has already announced his candidacy for congressman at large in the Republican primary April 9. He did this after G. O. P. leaders sought to induce him not to run for the office he lost in 1944 to Emily Taft Douglas, Democrat. Stratton's action probably will cause efforts to be renewed to get Day out of the race. Both men were congressmen at large from 1940 to 1942, before Illinois lost one of these offices thru population shifts.

DOG POUND HEAD PIQUED: 'IT'S AN ANIMAL SHELTER'

Robert B. Forejt, head of the city dog pound, becomes piqued when people refer to the dog pound as the dog pound, and yesterday he told why:

"In the first 11 months of 1945 we had two horses, two pigs, two rabbits, two squirrels, two monkeys, five goats, 168 cats, a porcupine, a muskrat, and a hamster," he said. "It sounds a little like a landlocked Noah's ark, but actually it's the Municipal Animal Shelter." The capital letters are Forejt's.

But when pressed he admitted that dogs enter the picture—13,705 of them, to be exact. The pound—beg pardon—shelter master also admitted that the howling of 13,705 dogs, even when not in unison, is likely to drown out the assorted squeaking, meowing, caterwaulings, neighings, gruntings, and whatever noises a hamster makes.

"So people naturally call it the dog pound," he observed unhappily.

Trial of Wehle in Killing of His Boss Set for Feb. 4

Earl Wehle, 38, charged with the murder of his employer, Edgar Heywood, 53, will go on trial Feb. 4 in the Lake county Criminal court at Crown Point, Ind., Deputy Prosecutor Ben Schwartz said yesterday. It is expected that Judge William J. Murray will preside. Wehle has reputedly confessed slaying Heywood, in the latter's cabin at Cedar Lake, Ind., last July 2. Heywood ran an electrical shop.

"No, thank you. I'm just looking around—for my husband."

A THIEF FLASHES STAR; DRIVERS HAND HIM KEYS

Poses as Policeman to Sell Stolen Cars

Capt. George Teeling and members of the detective bureau's stolen auto detail sat speechless yesterday while an admitted master of the art of stealing automobiles recounted aspects of the business they had never dreamed about.

John L. Malley

The narrator was John L. Malley, 41, alias John L. Lotty, Martin Ferron, Earl Labodie, and other names, an ex-convict who admitted after his arrest that he had stolen nine automobiles since Sept. 29.

Uses Star and a Gun

Malley, who resides at 6307 Cottage Grove av., said he left a job as watchman for a loop store for the more lucrative one of car stealing. He was aided in his new job, he said, by the policeman's star he wore as a watchman and by a .38 caliber revolver which lent credence to his impersonation.

He also had a flashlight, Malley said, which enabled him to steal his first automobile. This occurred at a parking lot at 63d st. and Lowe av., Malley said, where he stood at the lot's entrance and with his flashlight waved a customer inside.

"Put 'er over here," he said he told the driver, "and give me the keys." When the driver was out of sight, Malley went on, he got in the car and drove it to Portland, Ore.

Sells Car for $600

In Portland he represented himself as a policeman, he continued, to a purchaser he found thru a want ad. He told the prospect that the car belonged to his prisoner, who wanted to convert it into cash. The title, he said, was on its way from Chicago. This car netted him $600, Malley said.

His second car, Malley said, was taken similarly from a loop parking lot. He took it to Detroit, Mich., sold it for $500, and stole a car there, which he drove back to Chicago and sold for $450, he said.

The Chicago sale was made to a used car dealer, who listened so sympathetically to Malley's story of the prisoner who needed money that Malley said he was moved to embellish the tale. He added that the prisoner's wife was ill in St. Luke's hospital and the dealer gave him $5 to buy flowers for her.

Takes a Loss of $300

After his next theft, Malley said, he drove to Seattle, Wash., where he visited his wife and sold the car for $700. His fifth car brought him $200 down with $300 more to be paid after the purchaser received the title. He said he wrote the $300 off as a legitimate business loss.

The sixth car, Malley related, was taken from 63d st. and Cottage Grove av. Nov. 25. A Negro, he said, pulled into a curb parking space, where Malley was standing.

"I told the Negro I was a police officer," Malley said, "and that I was expecting trouble around there, which would bring the paddy wagon.

Done on Spur of Moment

"The paddy wagon probably would want to park in that space, so I told the Negro he'd better give me his keys in case I had to drive his car out of the way. As soon as the Negro left I drove away."

Malley ascribed this theft to a spur of the moment inspiration and said he was quite proud of it. The seventh and eighth thefts, he said, weren't much to brag about. Purely routine.

Arrested with Mally was Harry Morrison, 36, of 6306 Drexel av., a foreman in a steel plant. Capt. Teeling said Morrison had aided Malley, by giving the right answers when Malley had a suspicious buyer call Chicago from out of town. All Morrison netted was $20 and a $29 suit.

5,000 German Prisoners to Go Home This Month

Sixth service command headquarters was notified yesterday to hold 5,000 German prisoners of war in readiness for shipment home about Dec. 28. The prisoners, not employed either on contract or army work, are in "surplus" status at Fort Custer, Mich. The departure of the group for the New York port of embarkation will be the first such shipment of Germans from this command, which includes Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

SEIZE VET, SEEK TWO GI PALS IN KIDNAP ROBBERY

A kidnaping victim's story of a terrifying 100 mile ride thru three northern Illinois counties resulted yesterday in the arrest of an ex-soldier and a search for two other men, both believed to be soldiers.

The victim, Stanley C. Anderson, 50, owner of a restaurant near Lake Geneva, Wis., told Lake county deputy sheriffs he was seized and robbed by two gunmen, one wearing an army uniform, who forced their way into his car Wednesday night at River and Rand rds., near Des Plaines, as he drove home from a Christmas shopping trip to Chicago.

He said the gunmen forced him to drive to an intersection north of Lake Zurich, where they robbed him of $9 and $58 worth of Christmas gifts.

Robbers' Nerve Wavers

One of the gunmen then took the wheel and, with Anderson still in the car, they drove to a wooded section six miles west of Wauconda, where they stopped at a cottage and picked up a third man.

The third man drove with them for several miles, pointing out taverns to be robbed, and then was taken back to his home, Anderson said. The kidnap ride continued thru McHenry and Lake counties, eventually reaching a tavern on Highway 14, near Barrington. Anderson said the gunmen forced him to enter the place with them, but they lost their nerve and left without committing a robbery.

They stopped at a filling station near Barrington and again lost their nerve, Anderson said. After that the gunmen drove with Anderson to Chicago, ejecting him at Wacker dr. and La Salle st. He reported his experience to Chicago police.

Arrest One of Men

Anderson led Deputy Sheriffs Herman Larsen and Edward Van Dien of Lake county to the cottage where the third man joined the kidnap party. There the deputies arrested Leonard J. Smith, 22, who said he recently was discharged from the army. He was charged with robbery.

Smith identified the gunman who wore civilian clothes as his brother, Robert Frederick Smith, but denied knowing his brother's companion.

Fort Sheridan authorities said Robert Smith, in the army two years, had been AWOL five times and is now AWOL. They listed his address as 4419 Greenwood av., Chicago.

Warrants charging robbery with a gun and larceny of an automobile were issued for Robert Smith and his companion, listed in the warrant as John Doe.

3 EX-CONVICTS HELD FOR QUIZ IN BURGLARIES

The detective bureau yesterday was holding three ex-convicts with alleged safe cracking backgrounds, for investigation in connection with a recent series of burglaries. They are Harry M. Steed, 65, whose police record began in 1896 when he was arrested as an alleged horse thief; Edward J. Meehan, 45, and James Evans, 44. All gave north side addresses. The three were seized Wednesday at Madison st. and Racine av. They were questioned about the $50,000 burglary at the Lincoln jewelry shop at 2419 Lincoln av. Monday, but denied involvement in that or any other crime.

MRS. MARTHA PRIPPS

The lure of Hollywood proved stronger than his home ties for Edward Pripps, 30, a musician, his wife, Martha, 28, of 1860 N. Clark st., told Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court yesterday. He was so wedded to his musical career, she said in response to questioning by Robert E. Cherry, her attorney, that he had no time for his family. Mrs. Pripps was awarded a divorce and custody of Caroline, 4, and Edward Jr., 2. Pripps, Mrs. Pripps said, is now somewhere in Hollywood.

WIDOW FACING SLAYING TERM WILL SEEK BAIL

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—Attorneys for Mrs. Annie Irene Mansfeldt, convicted of manslaughter for slaying Nurse Vada Martin, announced today they would attempt to obtain her liberty on bail so she could spend Christmas with her three young children.

Neither the defense attorneys nor the prosecutor were satisfied with the verdict, reached by a jury of six men and six women last night.

Atty. Vincent Hallinan declared Mrs. Mansfeldt should have been acquitted, contending she had acted with provocation when she shot the nurse in the belief Mrs. Martin was having a love affair with Dr. John H. Mansfeldt. Mansfeldt committed suicide shortly after the shooting last October.

Mrs. Mansfeldt also had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. She will undergo a sanity hearing next Wednesday and, if found sane by alienists, will be sentenced to a term of from one to 10 years, which customarily is reduced to a maximum of three years for good behavior.

MOTHER FREED AFTER LEAVING BOY IN NURSERY

Mrs. Alma Jones, 24, of 4531 Lake Park av., was freed yesterday of a charge of contributing to the dependency of a minor as a result of a social service report presented to Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Domestic Relations court. The report, based on an investigation made since the arrest of Mrs. Jones Nov. 27, showed she was working as a waitress and that her son, Dennis Casey Jones, 2, now was in legal custody of his father, Oscar Casey Jones of Waterloo, Ia. Mrs. Jones was arrested after she left her son in a nursery Nov. 24, became ill, and failed to return for him. A divorce suit is pending.

REVEAL $215,000 IN CLINE RICHES STILL MISSING

Investigation of the fate of Mrs. Delora Krebs Cline, 73, wealthy Chicago widow and suspected murder victim, who has been missing since October, 1944, swung back to Chicago last night. At the same time it was disclosed that a large portion of her estate—more than $215,000—is being sought.

The amount of missing riches was indicated by Gerald Ryan of Peden, Ryan and Andreas, Chicago law firm, on his return from San Francisco, Cal., where the widow's second husband, Alfred L. Cline, 56, an ex-convict, is under arrest.

Part of Wealth Missing

Ryan, whose firm represented Mrs. Krebs before her marriage to Cline in Chicago May 26, 1944, and which now represents her estate on the presumption that she is dead, said the bulk of her wealth has been accounted for, but an important part is still to be located.

Ryan was asked if $215,000 would be an accurate estimate of the amount being sought. "That would be pretty close to it and I think it will be found to be larger," he replied.

Ryan said a network of circumstantial evidence has been assembled against Cline in support of the theory that Mrs. Krebs Cline was poisoned and died in a Dallas [Tex.] hotel Oct. 27, 1944, leaving a will and deeds that would give her riches to Cline.

Attorney in Investigation

Cline identified the woman who died in Dallas as Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of St. Petersburg, Fla. Her ashes were sent to Bloomington, Ind. A woman who died in Portland, Ore., last Nov. 29, more than a year later, was identified by Cline as Mrs. Krebs Cline.

The San Francisco investigation, in which Ryan took a leading role, was said to have developed evidence that Mrs. Krebs Cline was not seen after the Dallas hotel death. The woman who died in Portland is believed to have been Mrs. Isabelle Van Atta, San Francisco widow.

Check Signatures Forged

Ryan's investigation also has disclosed that Mrs. Krebs Cline's furs were stored by Cline in Chicago after the Dallas death, that her signature was forged on subsequent annuity checks for $500 a month for a total of $6,500, and that Commonwealth Edison quarterly dividend checks for a total of $9,000 carried Cline's genuine signature and a forgery of Mrs. Krebs Cline's.

Investigation is proceeding in San Francisco into deaths of other women Cline married or with whom he was associated, and also into the poison deaths of at least two men Cline met in his coast to coast wanderings.

DR. MADDY, MUSIC CAMP HEAD, TO FACE UNION HERE

Interlochen, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special]—Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, member of the music department of the University of Michigan, today was notified to appear in Chicago on Jan. 15 before the executive board of the American Federation of Musicians to give his defense of why he should not be ousted from the union because of his association with the National Music camp here, of which he is the founder and director.

The union executive board placed the music camp on its "unfair" list last Jan. 19, climaxing a two year controversy with the school over the union's contentions that the school's student musicians were competing with professional musicians.

The board declared that any one who would "teach, coach, conduct, or play an instrument" at the school would be expelled from the union.

AUTO MAN DIES TRYING TO SAVE CARS FROM FIRE

Robert Griffith, 48, owner of the Roselle Motors agency in Roselle, 15 miles east of Elgin in Du Page county, lost his life last night in an effort to save customers' cars from fire in his establishment. The fire followed the explosion of a pressure grease tank. Griffith and his chief mechanic, George Stuerzebecher, 50, drove one car out, then returned to save others. The flames were intense, but Griffith remained despite pleadings by Stuerzebecher. Griffith later was found suffocated. Stuerzebecher was slightly burned. Seven vehicles were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Simmer Dried Beans to Put Back Moisture

BY MARY MEADE

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

It isn't always necessary to soak dried beans and peas overnight as formerly was the custom. The moisture which has been dried out must be replaced, and this can be accomplished in less time by simmering them in salted water. It takes about 1½ hours for split peas and about 3 hours for whole peas and kidney, Lima, and navy beans. Soybeans will take longer, 4 to 6 hours.

Since plain cooked beans and peas are mild in flavor, try adding more than just salt to the cooking water. Cook a piece of salt pork or bacon, sausage, or a ham bone with them.

Another way of dressing up plain cooked beans is to serve them with a tangy tomato sauce. Cook 1 onion, sliced, and ½ green pepper, sliced, in 2 tablespoons melted butter for several minutes. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour, and add 2 cups canned tomatoes. If desired, add a dash of tabasco sauce.

Here's a filling bean chowder that makes a flavorful main dish:

Bean Chowder
[Serves six]

- 1 cup dry beans
- 1 cup diced carrots
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 cup tomatoes, fresh or canned
- ½ cup green pepper, chopped
- 1 onion, chopped
- 2 cups milk
- Salt, pepper

Cook beans covered in a large amount of boiling salted water until they soften. The cooking water should just cover the beans when they are done. Add vegetables and cook until tender. Add milk, salt, and a dash of pepper. Heat to boiling point and serve immediately.

As much in favor today as it was in years gone by is this simple recipe for split pea soup, just like that made by grandmother, except for soaking the peas:

Split Pea Soup
[Serves six]

- 1 pound split peas, yellow or green
- 1 ham bone
- 1 onion, sliced
- 1 stalk celery, chopped
- 2½ quarts boiling water
- Salt and pepper to taste

Rinse peas in cold water and drain. Add peas, ham bone, onion, and celery to boiling water. Cook covered, boiling moderately fast, for 1½ hours. Stir from time to time to prevent scorching. Remove ham bone; force soup thru coarse sieve. Season to taste with salt and pepper and serve hot.

Lima beans which have been cooked as suggested are used in the following recipe. A finely chopped half pimiento adds color to the soup.

Lima Bean Soup
[Serves five]

- 2 cups cooked, dried lima beans
- 1 quart milk
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped carrot
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons bacon drippings
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 strips crisp cooked bacon, crumbled
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley

Grind or mash beans and add to milk, which has been heated in the top of a double boiler. Brown carrot and onion lightly in bacon fat. Add with seasonings to beans and milk. Cook 10 minutes and garnish with bacon and parsley.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Christmas Tree Coffee Cake
[Makes two cakes]

- 1 cake compressed yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ cup shortening
- ½ cup light corn sirup
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 6 cups flour, about

Topping:

- ¼ cup butter
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ cup light corn sirup
- 1 egg white, stiffly beaten
- Candied or maraschino cherries, optional

Soften yeast in luke warm water, scald milk, and add shortening sirup, and salt; cool. Add eggs, yeast, and 2 cups flour to milk mixture, beating well. Add enough more flour to make a smooth dough. Knead until light and elastic. Let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Divide dough into 2 portions and roll each into a thin long strip. Cut off about two inches from each to form tree trunks. Swirl remainder of each strip back and forth in the shape of a Christmas tree on a greased cooky sheet. Let rise until double in bulk. Combine remaining ingredients except cherries and coat each tree. Trim with cherries if desired. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, about 30 minutes.

Need for Fats Cited in Plea for Women to Continue Salvage

Housewives were urged yesterday to continue their war time practice of salvaging waste fats in order to meet the current shortage of industrial fat needed for the production of soap and other essential material.

Speaking for the American Society of Newspaper Editors, John S. Knight, publisher, warned that the removal of food fats from rationing in no way indicated improvement in the supply of industrial fats, particularly those for soap making. He said the supply of inedible fats and oils, from which soap is made, is seriously short and predicted it would remain so for several months.

Sponsors of the fat salvage program said the discontinuance of the red point bonus made the problem of collecting fats more difficult.

Supply of Meat for the Holiday Meals Is Ample

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

The composition of the Christmas meal this year can be altered almost to suit the fancy of the housewife. If she wishes, she can include more meat, particularly pork, than in any of the war time holiday meals.

Costs per pound, in this first peace time Yule season in five years, will run much higher than they did the last time American civilians sat down to a peaceful Christmas table. However, it is the first time in three years that housewives are able to prepare their holiday meal without worrying about red points or meat "stretchers."

Civilians will find more meat in the butcher shops during the holidays than they ever have found before, according to federal estimates of production and consumption for the remainder of this month. Vast gains in production of pork in recent weeks, which were instrumental in ending all point rationing of meat, also have returned the abundant holiday meal. Current production of pork is 150 per cent ahead of three months ago and about on par with last winter, while federal requirements are less than a year ago, when the size of the military forces abroad was much greater.

Prognosticators advise civilians to take particular joy in the generous meat supply, because tonnage available to Americans by next spring will not be as great. Huge 1946 commitments have been made for European relief, and prospects are that a seasonal decline in meat production will set in by March, when total tonnage usually tapers off as the winter's hog run decreases.

A price survey yesterday disclosed that the various cuts of meat, as based on live costs of animals to packers—which determines the overall level of costs to consumers—are selling from 10 to 40 per cent higher now than in December, 1941, and 50 to 175 per cent higher than in 1939, the year the war started in Europe.

Canned Citrus Juice Price Ceiling to Be Suspended Monday

Price ceilings on canned citrus juices and other processed citrus foods will be suspended for an indefinite period beginning Monday because of abundant supplies of the fruit, the office of price administration announced yesterday. The suspension is not expected to increase average prices because of the large quantities available.

The OPA said that citrus processors are expected to pack the largest crops in history and that government set-aside orders have been discontinued. Federal requirements from this year's marketings represent only a small percentage of the amount taken in recent years.

Products covered by the suspension order are: All fresh, canned, and frozen citrus juices; citrus pulp, citrus molasses, citrus marmalade base, citrus flavoring base concentrate, citrus flavor beverage syrup, crushed citrus fruit, and shredded, minced, sliced, or diced citrus fruit or peel.

Holiday Debut Whirl to Begin This Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS

DANCING slippers are coming out of their wrappings, corsage boxes are arriving in increasing numbers, and young people who are at home for Christmas from college or army and navy posts are finding fewer and fewer hours for sleeping—for with this week-end the holiday debut whirl is on with all of its pre-war intensity. Today's calendar for the buds and their beaux lists four debuts—those of Miss Nancy Madlener, Miss Penelope Harding Thompson, Miss Meredith Leverone, and Miss Elizabeth Ann Kerber—and several smaller parties.

The most inclusive of the parties is that of Miss Madlener, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., and grandparents, the senior Madleners, are combining the traditional old fashioned debut tea with the dinner-dance, which has become increasingly popular with debutantes in recent years, and are presenting her to society at two parties instead of one.

From 4 to 7 p. m. the bud and her parents and grandparents will receive four generations of family friends before the fireplace in the senior Madleners' home in West Burton pl. Assisting the bud will be the Misses Nancy Underwood, Joan Johnson, Winston Holliday, Ann Cornelisen, Kay Reynolds, Phyllis Winston, Lucille Ralston, Dorothy Wrigley, Margie Salsman, Cynthia Wirtz, Camille McDonald, and Ruth Lee. Also sharing in the festivities will be Miss Madlener's house guests, Miss Joan Etnyre and her brother, Robert Etnyre, of Oregon, Ill.

Between the afternoon and evening parties, Miss Madlener will change from a white brocaded satin gown with cap sleeves into a filmy ball gown of white organza, with a very full skirt and little flowers across the shoulder straps. The 8:30 p. m. dinner-dance will be given in the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club, of which the bud's mother is president. Christmas greens and white wreaths and trees will decorate the club for the festive occasion.

Other Debut News

There will be dancing also at the John Walker Thompsons' party from 4 to 7 p. m. in the Racquet club for their daughter. The bud and her parents will receive before a screen of white sprayed pine, flanked by two pyramidal trees sparkling with crystal snow. A snow scene with a Santa Claus and reindeer on the tea table will carry out the Christmas theme. The bud will carry a bouquet of white eucharist lilies centered in green with her white and pink gown, and her 10 assistants will be designated by gardenias in their hair.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone and their daughter will be at home to family friends from 4 to 7 p. m. in their Lake Shore dr. apartment. After the tea the Leverones will entertain at dinner in the Pump room for their daughter and her assistants, who include the Misses Rosalind Oates, Nancy Hough, Clair Curtis, Betsy Stone, Alicia Byrne, Laurel Anderson, Betty Stoll, and Ann Scannell. Miss Anderson, who was a Ferry hall classmate of Miss Leverone, is here from Toronto, Ont.

The only suburban debut today is that of Miss Kerber, whose parents, the Herbert Edmond Kerbers, will give a tea for her from 4 to 7 p. m. in the Exmoor Country club. Miss Jennifer Turner, Miss Grace Williams, Miss Joan Van Bergen, and Miss Ann Omara will assist Miss Kerber, along with her sister, Marguerite, and their cousin, Miss Barbara Jones. The assistants and their escorts will have dinner later in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone.

During the cocktail hour Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Welling will entertain for Miss Stone, who will be one of tomorrow's debutantes. Another small group will have luncheon in the Woman's Athletic club, where Mrs. Harry L. Drake will entertain for Miss Hough, and still another luncheon gathering will be Mrs. Raymond Smith's for Miss Lina Kimball. Miss Hough and Miss Kimball also will be week-end debutantes.

Other Parties

The younger set in Lake Forest will have a holiday party of its own tonight, when Mrs. William A. P. Pullman, Mrs. Charles Clarke, Mrs. Louis Hardin, and Mrs. Milton Morse will entertain at a dinner in the Onwentsia club for their high school age children. Afterward the young people will go to the Thomas A. Connors' home, where they will dance. Special guests will be Beverly Pullman, Patricia Clarke, Edith Hardin, Mary Rose Connors, and Milton Morse Jr.

Miss Clare Rolph of Honolulu, who is here from Pine Manor to spend the holidays with her fiancé, Lt. Leslie Wheeler, and his mother, Mrs. Clarence Prentice, will be introduced to many of Lt. Wheeler's friends at a dinner party which Mrs. Prentice and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler will give tonight in the Onwentsia club for their sons. Mrs. Wheeler's son, Morris Eddy, is on terminal leave from the navy. He and his wife and baby are living with his mother and Mr. Wheeler until they can find a home of their own in Lake Forest.

Members of the Fortnightly dancing series will have a Christmas party at 9 o'clock tonight in the Fortnightly club.

Prince and Princess Serge Belosselsky, who are here with their little daughter, Marina, for a Christmas visit with Princess Belosselsky's mother, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, are being entertained at several parties during their stay. Mrs. Crane is giving a tea for them today. Last night Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne gave a dinner party for them, and Wednesday Mrs. Crane's sister, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, will entertain at dinner at home, later taking her guests to see "St. Lazare's Pharmacy."

On the Calendar

Santa Claus will visit the Margaret Etter creche at 3:30 p. m. today when the board of the nursery gives a Christmas party, with presents for each of the children. The creche, which is at 2116 W. Chicago av. and is the oldest day nursery in Chicago, cares for up to 90 children each day.

The Cordon club will hold a Christmas tea in its club rooms from 4 to 6 p. m. today. Christmas music will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett.

The Cliff Dwellers will give a tea today in their club rooms following the Chicago Symphony concert. Children from the Civic Music Association choruses will sing carols.

Special guests at the English Speaking union's after-the-concert tea today will be students from Miss Faulkner's school, who will sing Christmas carols.

Miss Carol Gardner

Miss Carol Gardner's engagement to James Edward Thompson is being announced by her father, Albert Sellner Gardner, at a family gathering today in the home of his mother, Mrs. William A. Gardner, to celebrate her birthday. Miss Gardner and her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Leroy Thompson of Normal av., are flutists.

A debutante of 1941, Miss Gardner has resigned from her business career and as a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league to continue her music. She plays with the Chicago Civic orchestra. Mr. Thompson, who has been discharged from the army, was graduated from Wilson Junior college and is in business in Chicago. He plays with the University of Chicago orchestra and other ensemble groups.

Miss Gardner and Mr. Thompson will be married in the late spring. Her brother, William A. Gardner II., is serving his fourth year in the navy. He is on patrol duty in the China seas and so again will miss the family Christmas party in the Winnetka home of his uncle and aunt, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardner.

The Chocolate Cat

Do you remember Eugene Field's verse, "The Sugar-Plum Tree," and how "up in that tree sits a chocolate cat"?

Well, the Chicago public library White Collar Girls trimmed a beautiful big Christmas tree near the Randolph st. entrance. Each night now the pet cat of the library emerges stealthily from the basement, "goes cavorting around from each leafy limb unto that," and settles happily near the top of the Christmas tree till morning.

Nosey Rivals Santa Claus

Now about this labor situation: I want to say that when I am elected W. C. G. Vice President of the United States, we shall have no labor problem. A firm believer in keeping a finger on my constituents' pulse at all times, I have gone among my followers and made a survey. I find the young women want an eight hour day divided as follows:

9 a. m. to 10 a. m.—Comparison of notes on any subject for which the worker and her associates may have notes to be compared.

10 a. m. to 10:25 a. m.—Coffee downstairs.

10:25 a. m. to 12:45 p. m.—Production work in its various forms.

12:45 p. m. to 3:15 p. m.—Luncheon and/or shopping.

3:15 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.—Time devoted to the boss' interests if he is interested.

3:30 p. m. to 4:15 p. m.—More production work.

4:15 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.—Last minute cleaning up of any telephone calls to and from boy friends which worker was unable to handle during any production period.

4:30 p. m. to 4:42 p. m.—Personal preparations for leaving for the day.

4:42 p. m. to 5 p. m.—Remainder of day's shopping.

The girls tell me this makes as neat an eight hour day as any woman can wish, and, inclined as I am to agree, that's what I intend to see every woman get. [I forgot: double for overtime, too, by golly.]

Christmas Deferred

[For a boy still overseas]

The music box Santa that plays
"Jingle Bells"
The angels with creamy white wings,
The sweet little creche with the Mother and Child—
He always loved all of these things.

O, strange to his days is a tropical isle
With ships that sail far out to sea:
[He always did love the crackle of snow
And home—and a glittering tree.]

O, strange to his heart is a far away land
[It's hard with the holidays near
To dream of his home as he lies fast asleep]
O, Christmas is coming—next year!

Chicago Opens Its Heart; Santa to Visit Needy

Christmas is for children. Chicago knows it. It has opened its heart to the thousands of needy little children for whom Santa Claus would otherwise be a farce.

Hundreds of parties will be held for underprivileged children this week and next. Fraternal and civic organizations, nurseries, orphanages, and settlement houses have caught the Christmas spirit and are sponsoring yuletide gatherings at which jolly Old St. Nick will give away clothing, candy, toys, and other holiday gifts.

More than 1,000 women and men, all engaged in the advertising field, were present yesterday at the noon time Christmas party sponsored by the Chicago Federated Advertising club in the Continental hotel in behalf of the Off-the-Street club. The club, a charitable organization, is open to underprivileged children ranging in ages from 2 to 16.

Stars from various fields of entertainment, including Ole Olsen, Willie Shore, Marian Mann, the Vagabonds, Burl Ives, and others, lent their talent for the occasion. Twenty-five members of the Off-the-Street club also entertained with boxing and acrobatic exhibitions, Christmas carols, and dance routines.

Three hundred and fifty underprivileged children were the guests of the South Central Kiwanis club yesterday afternoon and evening in the Halsted Street Institutional auditorium, 1933 S. Halsted st. Movies and a variety show were followed by a turkey dinner and later Santa Claus distributed toys.

The Central Lions club yesterday entertained a group of needy children from the Salvation Army at its annual Christmas family party in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman. George Troteth, magician, and Karl Marx, clown, performed.

Santa Claus will visit 100 children at the Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5016 Drexel blvd., tomorrow afternoon with gifts and a tree. There will be a program of entertainment. The party will be sponsored by the board of managers, headed by Charles Sedgwick, president, and Mrs. Frank Newall, chairman.

A Christmas creche was erected yesterday in the front court of Hull House, marking the opening of the settlement's Christmas program. A Christmas play and a party were given for children between the ages of 5 and 14 yesterday afternoon and a neighborhood party in the evening. Tonight there will be a youth dance and a Christmas party.

Two thousand veterans' children, more than 800 in the Chicago area, will receive gifts and attend Christmas in public and charitable institutions thruout the state under the sponsorship of the American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. A. E. Seymour of Virden, child welfare chairman, said yesterday. In addition approximately 11,000 veterans in 21 Illinois hospitals, all of which are veterans administration facilities and state institutions, will be remembered with a gift. The gifts will be distributed at Hines hospital today.

More than 1,000 twinkling candles were lit yesterday by students at Mundelein college in two traditional Christmas candle lighting ceremonies. The student body took part in the afternoon ceremony in the college auditorium while the glee club sang Christmas carols and Sheila Finney, president of the Student Activities council, lit the all-college Christmas candle. In the evening a huge cross of candles was lit on the south side of the skyscraper college.

One hundred children of the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum will sing Christmas carols at the Christmas service of the Chicago Sunday Evening club Sunday in Orchestra hall. The youngsters, ages 6 to 12, were trained by the Civic Music association.

Yuletide Cards of '90s Sing of Spring, Tra La

The Victorians seemed to have had spring fever at Christmas time. Instead of sending greeting cards depicting crisp, snowy scenes, in the last decade of the 19th century they pelted their friends with cards decorated with spring flowers, plump blue birds, and green meadows. Maybe it was impolite to remind others it was cold outside.

At least so it appears in a current exhibit of 1890-'95 Christmas cards in the Chicago Historical society. The exhibit, which will continue thru Jan. 8, was lent to the society by Mrs. George Herbert Simpson of Winnetka. For contrast, Mrs. Simpson also lent the society a choice selection from her last year's greeting card harvest.

Extravagant sentiment was the mode before the turn of the century. One card decorated with a single ivy leaf and a few puny purple flowers exclaims:

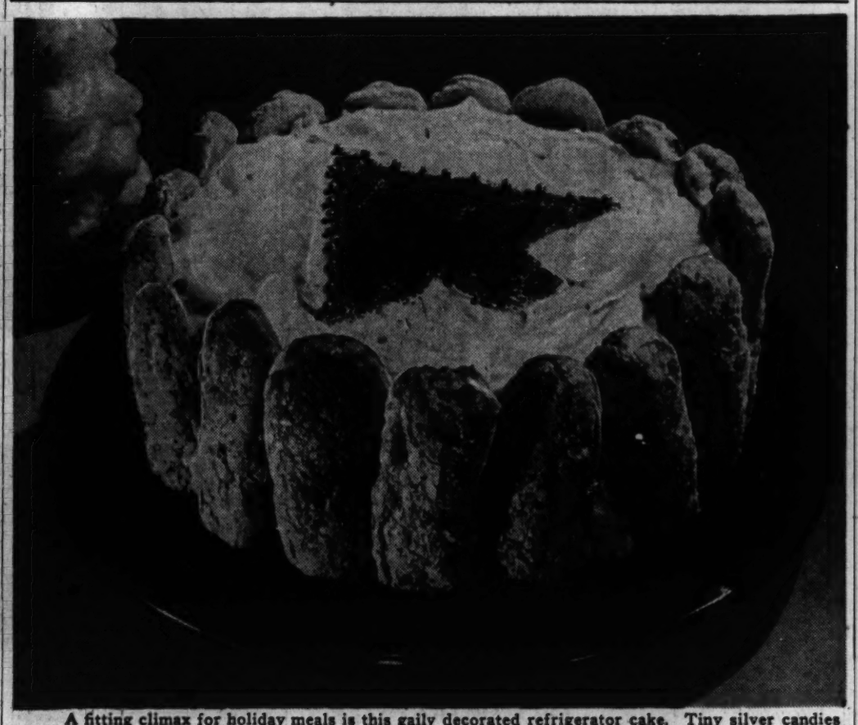
A happy Xmas may round thee twine!
True love caress thee!
Pure peace be thine
And heaven bless thee.

None of the antique cards, all heavily embossed, even hints at a religious meaning. Not even one fat cherub can be seen. Cherubs probably were indelicate; not so, the card with the pressed violets sent by some delicate soul, nor the lady-like card with a flowered teapot and the verse:

With fondest wishes
I send this card . . .
A trifling thing . . .
It bears my regard
And it comes
From my heart to you.

There isn't a good hearty wish in the entire collection. Daisies and violets, lace and blue birds! To all appearances, Christmas for the Victorians merely meant that "if winter comes spring cannot be far behind."

Refrigerator Cake Gaily Decorated for Holiday



A fitting climax for holiday meals is this gaily decorated refrigerator cake. Tiny silver candies outline the tree, which is shaped by sprinkling green colored sugar thru the opening of a paper pattern. To make:

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

Cream ¾ pound sweet butter and 1 pound powdered sugar until light and fluffy. Add ¼ cup orange juice, ¼ cup lemon juice, and 3 egg yolks. Mix well. Arrange lady finger halves around sides and bottom of a spring form pan, round side out. Cover with a thin layer of filling; add a layer of crushed macaroons, a layer of filling, then a layer of broken ladyfingers. Repeat until all ingredients are used, having a layer of filling on top. For the crumb layers, allow ¾ pound macaroons and the ladyfingers remaining from a 1½ dozen package after lining the pan. Cover with 1 cup whipped cream. Cut a paper the size of the cake top and cut a tree shaped opening in the center. Lay paper on whipped cream carefully and fill opening with green colored sugar. Gently remove paper and trim cake with tiny silver candles. Chill in refrigerator overnight. Serves 16.

Bright Costume Jewelry Makes Hit as a Gift

BY REA SEEGER

Sure-fire gift hits will be those tiny boxes containing jewelry. Just as much enthusiasm welcomes the costume jewelry pieces as the precious real gems studded in platinum or gold, for the costume jewelry this year rivals the costly stuff for beauty and unusual design.

Bracelets unquestionably are the smartest and most effective, as they come in a range from thread thin sizes to wide barbaric chunky models, some a good two inches in width. Many bracelets can jingle from wrist to elbow on the smartest collectors, thick with the thin, flexible with the rigid, bangled affairs with the filigree, and engraved beauties copied from old fashioned originals.

Silver and gold are mixed with a fine lack of discrimination. Shiny and dull sheened metals are paired, the big idea being to have noise and more noise just so it is musically achieved with decorative bracelets. King size clips, if big enough, are worn alone, but if there's any reasonable doubt about the size, two, three, four, and even five and six clips are worn massed together, pinned securely to chest or on wide lapels, and, newest of all, pinned in a slanted row down the sleeve or up the cuff of one sleeve only.

Never have our earrings been so flamboyantly decorative, so outsize, or so visible. Big blobs of gold or silver metal in filigree or formalized florals or abstract modernistic motifs serve a shiny contrast purpose, one in each ear lobe. But if you wish to really glitter and shine, wear the sequined, paillette, or beaded earrings, the most festive masses ever clipped to the ears. These, too, are significantly huge in diameter and size.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 20—An advance copy of "Arch of Triumph" reveals that Erie Remarque, either consciously or subconsciously, had Marlene Dietrich in mind when he built up his lead feminine character. She's a show girl, with blonde hair, hollow cheeks, legs, and a terrific ability to get along with guys. Could be that Eric's trying to write his old flame back into the movies; or could be he's using that author's trick of writing her up in a book to forget her. Psychologists, I believe, call that mental catharsis. "Triumph" won't hit the stands until February, but it already has been selected by book clubs here and in England. Cary Grant, who bid heavily, but unsuccessfully, for the screen rights, may get the lead. . . . George Murphy won't get to do that Broadway play after all. When Metro heard he was being paged, it said, "Nothing doing! We have a fine part coming up for you"—but didn't tell him what the part was. This time, however, I hope the studio means what it says. The big city would have given George a reception to remember.

Gold Rush in the Making

When I saw David Selznick making tracks for his father-in-law, Louis B. Mayer's office at Metro, I knew something was up. Sure enough, David wants Metro to release "Duel in the Sun," which I hear is something really special. David's a member of United Artists, but after Harry Gold left that organization to go with Howard Hughes, David seems to lose interest. Gold lives up to his name. That's what he gets for any picture he handles. "The Outlaw" will be the Hughes organization's first release. It will be followed by "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock." . . . After Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone were divorced, the courts took an adopted baby away from Joan. I wonder if the same thing will happen now that she and Phil Terry have separated. In our state a woman can divorce at least a dozen times, but the courts are pretty strict about what happens to adopted babies.

Just a Family Affair

When Mayor O'Dwyer of New York came here to visit his brother, he never saw one of his old friends—not even Pat O'Brien, who loves the guy. Just the same Pat is going ahead with screening O'Dwyer's life story as he'd planned two years ago. . . . Peggy Knudson turned down a Broadway role in "Lie Down in Darkness" to play John Garfield's sister in "Humoresque." . . . It was Paramount which backed Elmer Rice's Broadway hit, "Dream Girl," which stars Betty Field. . . . At Christmas, for the first time since the war, the British royal family will assemble at Sandringham. As part of their entertainment, Metro has been requested to furnish "They Were Expendable" and "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes."

Eliminate that Negative, Bing

Bing Crosby will throw a whale of a party in New York for his writer, Barney Dean. Bing expects to stay back there until the trouble with his radio sponsor is settled. It looks to me as tho they're thinking of Eddie Duchin and Frank Morgan. Even sponsors weary of hearing the world "no" too often. . . . Sam Wood leaves Sunday for a New York Christmas with his family. Before returning here, he'll go to England for "Tatiana" and "Turnip's Blood." He'd give his right arm—as who wouldn't—to have Ingrid Bergman for the latter.

Life Goes on in Hollywood

Joe Schenck tells me he had a super vacation. He went to Mexico City, Palm Beach, Bermuda, and New York. Then he got in his car and drove to Palm Springs for a real rest. . . . Just as every American singer dreams of making her debut in the Met, so does every picture star dream of making New York's Music Hall. With "Adventure," Greer Garson has her ninth opening in that famous theater. Not bad for a girl who did nothing the first year she came here and cried when she went back to England, thinking "Goodbye Mr. Chips" wasn't right for her. That one opened in 1939, and baby, has Greer been in the chips ever since. . . . Lana Turner stopped Christmas traffic at a milliner's when she showed there to have some new bonnets tried on her baby. . . . John Emory is taking a week off from the Tallulah Bankhead play to spend Christmas here with his wife, Tamara Geva.

Thru the Looking Glass

There's one thing that simplifies the life of a feminine shopper in this era: It's now definitely established that men, of all ages and types, like toiletries. Some like them fancy, some like them simple—but now we know that men get just as much satisfaction out of fine toiletries as women do.

There are lots of men's lines—and more coming up. Most of them are excellent, but it's our modest opinion that a lot of the items might be lower priced. However, among the lower priced ones we particularly like some preparations that are put up in handsome—not pretty—pottery containers in a deep maroon shade, topped with bright red plastic stoppers on which is imprinted a finely detailed, arresting compass.

We show a picture of one of these sets today; this is a trio of shaving lotion, shaving soap, and talc, but you can buy the items separately if you prefer. The cost of the trio is $4.50 plus tax.

These, the men tell us, are the kind of preparations they enjoy using. The soap is quick to lather and is mild. The talc is flesh tinted, so it doesn't give the dreaded powdered look, and the shaving lotion is refreshing. All are scented with an un-perfumey, clean fragrance the most masculine of men will approve.

Brailowsky Plays Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto with Chicago Symphony and Defauw

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw, conductor; Alexander Brailowsky, pianist. Presented in Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Dec. 20, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Overture, "La Scala di Seta" . . . . Rossini
Music for a Scene from Shelley . . . Barber
Tone Poem, "Thus Spake Zarathustra" . . . . Strauss
Concerto for Piano, No. 2, C minor . . . . Rachmaninoff

Alexander Brailowsky's Rachmaninoff is a plausible argument for those who label the composer's music decadent, for tho he is a gifted pianist whose Chopin is unsurpassed in contemporary performance, he lacks the richness of tone and feeling, the breadth of line and climactic power to carry his compatriot's concertos to the triumph they once achieved with Rachmaninoff himself, and still do with Vladimir Horowitz.

Playing the C-minor concerto in Orchestra hall last night with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw, Mr. Brailowsky gave it fluent performance on a rather small scale, and tho most of it was highly agreeable listening, the hint of decadence crept in because the very lack of backbone and splendor let the music slip into a kind of morbid musing that sometimes threatened to swoon of sheer indulgence in the darkly lyric. But perhaps you insist Rachmaninoff is like that, and if so, you were satisfied. The accompaniment took Mr. Brailowsky on his own terms, with smooth and friendly results.

Taking the concert as a whole, the orchestra seemed ready and willing to do some of the best playing of the season last night. In Rossini's Overture to "La Scala di Seta" the strings had a truly silken quality at the opening, tho the ladder sagged before it reached brilliant finale. Barber's charming "Music for a Scene from Shelley" told its murmurous tale pleasantly until bombast marred the crescendo and jarred the quiet aftermath, but even that crescendo was a whisper compared to the ear splitting gong that introduced the finale of "Thus Spake Zarathustra." In that case, Zarathustra let out a yell and most of us leaped in our chairs.

Time was when our orchestra probably played better Strauss than any of its American rivals, and some of that remembered brilliance seeped thru last night. But Mr. Defauw was concerned solely with effect and he sometimes missed the cause. The drama of the work was lost and in place of the immaculate freshness of a true "Tanzlied" he gave us schmaltz. Where the Rachmaninoff was decadent, the Strauss was fustian, and if you disagreed with the labels, you heard a disappointing concert.

Grant Park Changes

After looking over the scale models for the new home of Grant park music, the Chicago Park District has decided to build a stage suitable for theatrical as well as concert performance. Instead of a bandshell, the new amphitheater will have stage facilities for opera, ballet, and pageant, as well as for the usual orchestra with guest conductors and soloists.

Change in Elsinore

Considering that his GI "Hamlet" omits the gravediggers' scene, Maurice Evans may find himself sued by Whitford Kane, whose most dependable job for many an acting year has been the role of First Gravedigger. But Mr. Evans' overseas audience found poor Yorick's skull corny, and its omission takes care of one of the most misquoted lines of Shakespeare. Nine out of 10 people say "Alas! poor Yorick, I knew him well." Hamlet said, "Alas! poor Yorick, I knew him, Horatio."

Cast Puts New Life Into Old Movie Comedy

"GETTING GERTIE'S GARTER"

Produced by United Artists, directed by Allan Dwan, featuring Dennis O'Keefe, Marie McDonald, Barry Sullivan, Bimbo Barnes, Sheila Ryan, J. Carrol Naish, Jerome Cowan, Vera Marshe, Donald T. Beddoe, Frank Fenton, and Richard Le Grand. Presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée

Gertie and her garter are back with us again. Marie Prevost and Charles Ray made it in 1927, and the old cast also lists Sally Rand, of all people. This trip Marie McDonald, delicately nick-named The Body, plays the blonde menace whose gaudy little keepsake starts such trouble. While you're never exactly unaware of her famous torso, Miss M. has learned to give a little life to her lines as well, and her performance is not bad.

In fact I was agreeably surprised by the whole film, which I had not anticipated with eagerness, and it proved to be a pleasant if giddy comedy, which generally had the good taste to restrain its slapstick tendencies. Much of the credit goes to a smart cast and some clever dialog every now and then, both sturdily bolstering a pretty weak plot.

Dennis O'Keefe is the absent-minded scientist who gave an expensive little memento to Gertie. It was a garter Napoleon was reputed to have given Josephine—and, unfortunately, the professor also offered all his love, in writing, as a part of the gift. The affair is all over, Gertie is about to wed, and her former love has been happily married for several years, when a jewelry clerk is arrested for thievery and the professor is expected to testify that he paid him $500 for the little trinket, proof that the culprit had pocketed same.

Bent on destroying the memento, its donor pursues the lady to the scene of her wedding, the bridegroom's sister's home, where he does a good deal of chasing in and out of Gertie's room, arousing the suspicions of his wife, Gertie's fiance, and the host and hostess.

Binnie Barnes, Jerome Cowan, Sheila Ryan, and Barry Sullivan all enter the chase with good will and energy and there are times when they all offer some fetching comedy. The film also boasts some attractive sets—even the barn is handsome—and if you like your entertainment light and giggly, you'll probably have fun with this.

"With Bated Breath"

INSTALMENT XLI.

AN APOLOGY

Tho he fancied Miss Bolles had flinched slightly, the inspector kept an immovable face, merely unpocketing his notebook and inviting a full account of the two alleged attempts on her life. Her, story he knew, would by now be ably prepared. She gave it baldly, more or less as he had heard it from Bruce.

"I confess that hitherto I have had unfortunate ideas. These shoes have disposed of them. My ill-wisher is alive. In my house."

"Can you suggest, Miss Bolles, any cogent reason for the removal of both your sister and yourself?"

"Not," she hesitated, "in the order indicated by my sister's dying first. It could profit no one."

Not another syllable could he get out of her.

"Very good, Miss Bolles. And now I will get you to hand over your keys."

"My keys? O, to search the house. By all means, do so."

She got the jangling bunch of keys from her handbag and thrust them on him.

Outside on the landing the inspector buttonholed Sgt. Budworth and sent him off on a commission. "It's beginning to get light. I'll stick on this floor while you're gone."

He tapped on the second bedroom door. "It's Inspector Headcorn."

"You, is it?" Mrs. Marks called. "Come in."

She had been standing by the window overhanging the gorge. Smoke from her cigaret still fogged the cold pane. Her height would be a good 5 foot 7, he estimated. Roughly the same as that of Miss Bolles and Agatha Trimble. All these three women could have worn each other's clothes.

"Last night?" she repeated. "Not much I can tell you, except that some time or other I woke up feeling most horribly sick. Crawling back from the bathroom I heard my hostess making rather odd noises and looked in to see if she'd got my complaint. But she seemed only to be talking in her sleep, so the other vague rustlings went out of my mind. I tumbled back into my bed and that was that, till your sergeant barged in on me. Miss Marriott may be able to tell you the time. I ran into her outside these doors."

"What sort of rustlings had you heard?"

"O, you know, as tho some one were moving about. Chiefly overhead. May have been Avis."

"I see. Where, Mrs. Marks, did you go last evening shortly before the dinner hour?"

"Me? Over to The Bull. I had a drink with a man."

"Were you driven back to Turrets?" he demanded.

"Well—not quite to the door. Here, inspector, what am I supposed to have been up to before dinner? Is this part of the plot?"

Her flippancy didn't deceive. Her chest had risen quickly. She could, he figured, have stolen in and up to the top floor in time to listen in on a certain crucial conference. Perhaps her anxiety concerned the question of her presence up there having been reported. Or had she taken steps to see it was not reported?"

"Am I a widow? I am." Negligently she lit a fresh cigaret. "I was expecting you'd ask me that. Because my late husband was a first cousin to Erica and Maud."

"Next of kin was he?"

"Absolutely. Only the money doesn't pass to relicts, worse luck—so the quite incredible chance of both my cousins-in-law dying intestate couldn't affect me! You've dug out that fact, haven't you? Then you'll also know that as things are the combined Bolles shekels are booked—or would be, if Maud hadn't made her will—for some wholly incog collaterals out in Saskatchewan or the goodness knows where."

A knock on the door brought a look of swift reprieve. Sgt. Budworth announced a telephone call for the inspector.

He had decided to put thru a call to the Yard to see what could be learned of Harry Marks' presumable decease.

Turning, Inspector Headcorn saw the police surgeon. He asked about the coffee analysis. There was luminal in the flower water.

"Smaller quantity than before, but enough. The tablets could have been crushed to powder, slipped into the separate cups."

A small gasp came from the foot of the stairs. The two men moved silently upon Avis, and Bruce announced vehemently that he proposed taking her away now.

"No, doctor," the inspector firmly vetoed. "I'm afraid I can't permit Miss Marriott to quit the premises. Pending an actual arrest——"

"Pending! You've said it. And suppose you find you can't make an arrest? You can't go on camping here, sooner or later you'll be obliged to release these suspects. A murderer will then be at large."

"O, it's too utterly silly!" Avis urged. "You don't seriously imagine that shot last night was intended for me?"

"I don't know," Bruce said doggedly. "What I do know is that a brutal and calculated attempt was made to stop you from passing out information to me until it was too late to matter. You've been given the sack, haven't you? We can take that as a warning. Headcorn, I insist on putting this girl into a train, sending her right away, to her aunt."

"Would that insure her safety, doctor? Far from it—in the unlikely event of no arrest being made. Let me assure you that the one place I can personally guarantee that nothing will happen to our sole reliable witness is here, in a police guarded house, under my own eyes. I have need of Miss Marriott and I shall watch over her with care. No one must leave Turrets. Not even the maid."

"Cam," she whispered. "I don't want to go. Not now."

Her lips parted despairingly. Her cheeks were white as a voice spoke her name from above. At the inspector's nod she went up to meet Miss Bolles, who held out a pencilled slip.

"At a suitable hour," Maud said evenly, "will you, Miss Marriott, be so good as to telephone Lady Barkdale for me, explain the trying circumstances, and beg her to discharge my immediate duties? Here they are. I have written them all down. Infant Welfare—Girl Guides—Altar Benefit—Penny-a-Week Fund!

"One moment, Miss Marriott. If, my judgment concerning yourself was hastily formed, I apologize. To find police officers making free of my house was naturally a thunderbolt. Still, you will readily understand that the necessity for your services no longer exist?"

"Perfectly, Miss Bolles. The minute I'm allowed to I'll go. I suppose you'd like me to give you back Miss Erica's necklace?"

"That? Certainly not. If it was my sister's gift, then it is yours to retain."

Mrs. H. L., Hibbing, Minn.—When my radiators get dusty—and this happens often in cold weather—I place a damp cloth over them and then use the vacuum cleaner. This blows the dust onto the cloth.

Harriet S., Chicago—I made myself some festive window shades by mounting flowered chintz on old shade rollers. These have livened up a couple of our bedrooms, and they are easy to keep clean.

Mrs. Tom B., Chicago—In stormy weather I protect my suede shoes from "galosh damage" and soiling by slipping old stocking tops over the shoes. Galoshes slip on and off easily, too, when the shoes are covered this way.

Select a Gift to Aid Child's Manual Skill

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your Christmas shopping for the children isn't finished, there still is time to buy a few of the things that no child's holiday should be without.

Among these be sure that your young son or daughter has at least one "do" present.

Now, in a sense, any plaything can be that. I mean, practically anything can serve as a taking-off place for a child's imagination: A doll, furry animals, blocks, books, or innumerable things around the house.

But when I say I hope your child will receive at least one "do" present I mean one present which gives him—or her—a chance for manual activity; a chance to do. Such presents may not look as festive to your eye, but they will provide a wealth of fun, interest, or happy occupation after Christmas day is over.

Who hasn't heard a boy say, "I'd like to make [this or that], but I haven't the right kind of wood?" Lumber is a fine gift. Assorted wood, that is planks thin and thick, threeply veneer, dowels, moulding, and odds and ends. Just go to a shop or yard and look around. That's one "do" present.

The hardware store, too, is suggestive for this kind of gift.

Small cans of paint and brushes and turpentine for the young carpenter or cabinet maker are stimulating as a "do" present.

A doll house, either not furnished or only partly furnished is a wonderful "do" present, and not only for the young daughter, but perhaps for her brother too. The completion of its furnishing can go on indefinitely.

A substantial scrap or stamp book for the collector of pictures or photographs or stamps is another "do" present.

Wools and crochethooks or knitting needles for the daughter who likes to crochet or knit and loves color, too, are another suggestion.

The possibilities are many and varied; such as: Clay for modeling, soap for carving, soft wood or balsa and wood carving tools—the list goes on. Your observation of your own son or daughter's interests will help to guide you.

Goren on Bridge

By Charles H. Goren

[Copyright: 1945: By Charles H. Goren]

North and South vulnerable and have 60 part score. West deals.

	NORTH ♠ J 10 7 6 2 ♥ 9 6 4 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ 9 4
WEST ♠ None ♥ K 8 5 2 ♦ J 10 9 7 6 ♣ K J 7 2		EAST ♠ A 8 5 4 ♥ Q J 10 3 ♦ K 2 ♣ Q 10 6
	SOUTH ♠ K Q 9 3 ♥ A 7 ♦ A Q 4 ♣ A 8 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 spade	1 no trump
2 diamonds	Pass	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: jack of diamonds.

While there may be nothing new under the sun, our fancies can be captured by variations of the old, especially if they have a neat twist to them. Contrary to general belief, the most brilliant plays do not involve a complicated series of maneuvers, but are conceived in the essence of simplicity.

One that especially appeals to my fancy is today's morsel perpetrated by the great Howard Schenken against another life master, Sam Fry Jr., who submitted this hand to me as an illustration of his own susceptibility to the "shell" game. It is my choice for the best deceptive play of the year.

Some readers may take issue with the bidding, with which we are not at this time primarily concerned. With the advanced part score the vulnerable overcall of one no trump is surely sound and West's nonvulnerable bid of two diamonds was a desperate attempt to stave off the loss of the rubber. While it is true that a contract of three spades could have been fulfilled by North and South, Fry's light third hand bid made it very difficult to reach, inasmuch as North was too weak to venture a free bid in spades, tho he suspected sabotage by East.

The jack of diamonds was opened and the king went to declarer's ace. It will be seen that the contract cannot be fulfilled without assistance from the opposition, since the long spade which would be the eighth trick cannot be cashed if East holds up for three rounds and shuts out the dummy. If spades are attacked at once it will all be clear to East. Schenken's one hope was to induce Fry to let go a small spade. This he accomplished in an almost naive manner.

At trick two he returned the four of diamonds. West won with the 9 and with two potential entries decided to establish his suit. On this trick Mr. Fry had to make a discard, and finding it awkward to part with a heart or a club and not at the time realizing the importance of the fourth spade let go the four of that suit. It was now a simple matter for Schenken to clear the spade suit by conceding the Ace, and claiming eight tricks. The hand once again proved quicker than the eye.

The usual weekly quiz will appear tomorrow.

Highland Park Party to Seek Togs for Vets

One of the first thrift shops in the country is the Highland Park Thrift shop, which was organized in 1917 to raise money for the wounded French thru the resale of articles. Mrs. Samuel Slade was its first president and the 60 women who were active in its management in June of that year also started one of the first army and navy clubs, similar to the service men's centers of today.

Since then the shop has turned to helping local charities, but it has not forgotten the service man, and on Sunday the Thrift House board will give a "Civvies for Service Men" Christmas breakfast from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Zischke. The suits, coats, shirts, and other items which husbands of members of the three organizations supporting the Thrift shop, and their friends, have been asked to bring to the party will go on sale shortly in the shop to aid discharged veterans in their search for civilian clothes.

The board is made up of representatives from local groups of the Infant Welfare society, Northwestern University settlement, and the Highland Park Hospital auxiliary. All shop proceeds are divided among the three organizations. The breakfast was organized after the many daily inquiries at the shop for men's wear.

Many of the men who will carry gifts of clothing to the party are veterans of World War I. who will be doing their bit to help veterans of the past war solve their clothing dilemma. The house will be decorated with Christmas greens, and every one will be invited to join in Christmas carols, with Mrs. Howard Detmer at the piano.

Mrs. Roswell Swazey is president of the Thrift House board. Among those welcoming guests Sunday will be Mrs. Francis Knight, president of the hospital auxiliary; Mrs. Ralph C. Archer, president of the Infant Welfare Junior group; Mrs. William Bangs, head of the settlement's local branch; Mrs. Zischke, a member of the board, and their husbands. Warm clothing in good condition is requested especially by the board.

FASHIONS

By Angela

There is still time to pick up an ideal novelty gift for the favorite nieces from 7 to 14. Cold weather accessories are the current fad, and the more extreme and colorful the better pleased they are.

The enormous shaggy wool mittens at the upper left have soft felt palms. They are available in green, red, wine, and blue in small, medium, and large sizes.

The crocheted cap and mitten set at the upper right is made of soft wool in bright stripes. The backs of the mittens are in the colors of the cap and the palms match the tassel.

An ideal set for a youngster includes the hat, mittens, and strap purse below. The hat is dark green, decorated with a red heart and gray leaves. Gray leaves accented with red trim the green mittens. The flap of the purse has gray and red motifs surrounding the red heart, covered with tiny flowers.

A favorite with the young hatless set are the brilliantly colored fur ear muffs at the right, with fur head band stretching from ear to ear. They are available in red, green, rose, and blue. White ones are worn with white bunny fur mitts which have red, green, or white pigskin palms.

Catholic League Juniors to Give Party at Nursery

A yuletide tree at St. Mary's Day Nursery, 656 W. 44th st., will be decked with baubles and candy canes in time for the children's party to be given there Sunday afternoon by Juniors of the Catholic Woman's league. Before the festivities, the Juniors will meet to fill stockings for the youngsters, and they also will present the nursery with three small Mexican chairs. Santa will be on hand to distribute gifts at the party.

Pleas by Sally Are in Keeping with the Season

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Perhaps among the unused possessions of our readers may be found items mentioned in the appeals presented today, which would bring Christmas joy to the recipients.

A teacher in a hospital writes:

"There is an 11 year old boy here who recently had part of one leg amputated. He has neither parents nor brothers or sisters, has been in a cast for eight or nine years, and has lived in an institution all of his life that he can remember. He has asked for a guitar for Christmas, and I wonder if some one who has one would send it to him."

From a south side social worker:

"We wonder if any of your readers has a medium sized right handed wheel chair with adjustable leg boards, which they would be willing to give to Mrs. T. While still a young woman, she was stricken with paralysis, involving her left side. The doctor believes she would benefit greatly from being able to get around in a wheel chair."

Mr. J. writes:

"This is a plea in behalf of a lonely, cultured old gentleman, a widower over 80 years old, who lives alone in a room on the north side. He has no friends, takes little interest in what is going on around him, and the world takes even less interest in him. Shut off and lonely, a radio would be a great source of joy and blessing to him, as he is a lover of the works of the immortal composers and would enjoy listening to symphonies."

Aid Will Give Party for 600 Children of Lower North Center

Around 600 youngsters of the Lower North Center will be entertained at a series of parties sponsored by the race relations committee of the Chicago Woman's Aid today in the center's new quarters at the Eli Bates Settlement house, 621 W. Elm st. There will be a party and puppet show for primary grade children from 3:30 until 5:30 p. m., an intermediate group will be entertained from 6:30 until 8:30, and a program for teen agers has been arranged for 9 o'clock. The Aid women are collecting gifts of second hand and usable chairs, tables, and desks for the center, much needed since its recent move from 1001 N. Franklin st. to the larger quarters in the Bates Settlement. Mrs. Edward S. Dauber is in charge of the project. The Center is supported by the Community fund, neighborhood contributions, and donations from the Lower North Neighborhood League.

ILLINOIS QUINTET DEFEATS NEBRASKA, 62-51

BYRON NELSON VOTED YEAR'S NO. 1 ATHLETE

Blanchard Second in Close Race

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Golfer Byron Nelson, winner of the National P. G. A. and 18 other tournaments was named the world's No. 1 male athlete of 1945 today by sports writers across the country who voted the honor to the Texan for the second consecutive year.

Byron Nelson

The 33 year old Nelson encountered tougher opposition in the annual Associated Press poll to select the best competitor in all sports than he did in most of his battles on the fairways—battles that fattened his bankroll by $66,600 in war bonds. This time his competition came from Doc Blanchard, Army's all-America full back.

Gets 36 First Choices

Of the 82 sports writers participating in the poll, 36 placed Nelson at the top of the list, while 30 of them picked Blanchard as the best. On the basis of three points for a first place vote, two for second, and one for third, Nelson scored 161 points to Blanchard's 150.

Thirty-one athletes from all fields of sport were mentioned in the voting, but Nelson was placed first, second, or third on 70 of the 82 ballots and Blanchard on 65.

And 19 points landed Glenn Davis, Blanchard's speedy teammate, in fourth place, while First Baseman Phil Cavarretta of the Chicago Cubs, most valuable player in the National league, placed fifth with only 14.

HE IS "OVERWHELMED"

Texarkana, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP)—Byron Nelson, golf's top money winner, said here tonight he was overwhelmed that sports writers thruout the nation had named him the world's No. 1 male athlete of 1945 in the annual Associated Press poll.

"I did not know I was in the running and it is certainly a distinct honor considering the number of great athletes," Nelson remarked.

Nelson said he will make a trip to South Africa for a tour with Bobby Locke, South African ace. In making the trip, the golfer will accept an offer from Norbert Ereleigh, mining magnate, of $10,000 and expenses. Previously Nelson had said he would not go to South Africa.

He will leave New York via Pan American Airways April 15, for England and will go from there to Capetown. Mrs. Nelson will accompany him. Before April Nelson will compete in west coast tournaments.

TRAINER SMITH AWAITS WORD OF APPEAL IN WEST

Arcadia, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—Trainer Tom Smith, whose appeal of a year suspension for horse doping is being considered by the New York racing commission, arrived here today to be near the Maine Chance farm's stable, now at Santa Anita.

The Main Chance string quartered here includes Magnific Duel, the horse Smith was accused of stimulating with an ephedrine solution. Smith said that both he and Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, Maine Chance owner, would rest on the testimony given at last week's appeal hearing in New York. The trainer said Mrs. Graham had refused a proposal to conduct an ephedrine spray test on Magnific Duel.

SOME notes on Lawrence [Pops] Harrison, coach of the University of Iowa's defending Western conference basketball champions: Pops is strictly a hometown product. . . . Born in Iowa City in 1906, he recalls that he was ousted many times from the old fieldhouse when he and his boyhood pals sneaked in to practice shooting baskets. . . . The nickname, "Pops," by the way, grew out of his childhood fondness for lollypops. . . . Harrison played his first competitive basketball as a guard and forward for the University High school team. . . . He won a varsity job, altho he was only 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed 145 pounds. . . . At the University of Iowa, he was a forward on the team which shared the Western conference title in 1926 with Indiana, Purdue, and Michigan, all with 8-4 records. . . . He was graduated in 1928, and after coaching at Westminster college in Pennsylvania in 1929-'30, returned to his alma mater in 1931 as assistant coach in basketball and baseball. . . . He took over the head coaching job at Iowa when Rollie Williams entered the navy and was a conference standout in two of his three seasons. . . . One saw the Hawkeyes tie for second place in the conference with nine victories and three defeats and the other produced the 11-1 showing with which they won the 1944-'45 title. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Harrison, Pops' parents, were born in England.

They Dreamed of Home

They dreamed of home when across the foam,
But now, alas and alack,
They haven't stayed quiet a single night
Since the moment they hit the home track.

They dreamed of home in far off Rome
Or down in Nagasack,
But they haven't styed IN for more than a minute,
At a time—It's a pretty "sad sack."

"So long, Mom, So long, Dad,
I'll see you tomorrow, you know—
Gee, I wish I could, but I told Joe I would Meet him and see a show."

Aren't we mortals a funny lot?
We're meek when we're on the rack,
But when everything's right, "Where TO tonight?"
Just the same, kids, it's swell that you're back.

Pet Peeve

Men with long hair and side burns.—H. M. W.

Birthday of a Pal

She's only four feet nine or so
And wears a shoe size three;
A mighty little atom, tho,
Reliant, keen, and free.
Her hand [size six in gloves, my friend]
Was strong and hit the spot
I learned this early . . . [in the end],
When I was just a tot.

But, now, we speak as women do,
Of children, life and ills,
And seek each others counsel, too,
About the household bills.
Small wonder then I feel it's time
These special words to say—
Mom, you're my pal . . . accept this rhyme
To celebrate YOUR day!

This Is Important

When I look back on 1945 I see the Cubs losing the world series—in the first inning of the seventh game, before any one was out. . . . And the Bears dropping seven while winning three. . . . And then there was that horse that ran out in the fifth—with my entire roll on its nose. . . . Any other day I could have sunk a four foot putt, but not this time—and I could have been the club champion! . . . And that split in the 10th frame. Any kind of a mark and I had a chance for the sweepstakes. . . . These things seemed awfully important at the time. . . . But the other evening I wandered down to the drugstore and there was a bunch of kids I hadn't seen for three or four years—kids my kids grew up with—a little uncomfortable, maybe, in their civvies and all wearing bright new ties—every one talking at once. . . . And I couldn't help saying to myself—this IS important.

STAR SWIMMERS REJOIN TEAM AT MICHIGAN STATE

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special]—The Swimming Seibolds of Jackson are going to be represented on this year's Michigan State college swimming team, after all. Coach Charles McCaffree Jr. today disclosed that Paul Seibold expects to reënter Michigan State in time for the Spartans' opening dual meet Jan. 5 with Northwestern.

Seibolds' 18 year old brother, Dave, last summer paced Michigan State to the national A. A. U. team championship at Akron before going into the army. Paul is a breast stroke star, as is his younger brother, who holds national A. A. U. indoor and outdoor individual titles.

N. U., DE PAUL FACE STADIUM TESTS TONIGHT

Wildcats to Play Broncos First

Undefeated Northwestern and De Paul will open the season of Chicago Stadium basketball double headers tonight. The Wildcats, seeking their third victory, will meet Western Michigan college and De Paul will attempt to make Oregon State its eighth victim.

The Wildcats and Broncos will take the floor first at 8:15. Northwestern has defeated DePauw and Marquette, but the Kalamazoo quintet, tall and fast, is conceded an excellent chance of winning. Featuring an all-freshman starting five the Broncos have beaten St. John's of Brooklyn, Utah and Calvin college, and lost to Michigan, 69 to 49.

Bronco Center Is Tall

Northwestern will start Max Morris, Big Ten conference scoring champion of last season who tallied 39 points in the triumphs over DePauw and Marquette, and Freshman Chick Lindgren from Rockford at the forwards, 6 foot 7 inch Leroy King, at center, and Bud Carter and Buzz Wheeler at the guards.

The Broncos will have Melvin Van Dis, 6 foot, 4 inch team captain and Bob Fitch, at the forwards; Don Boven at center, and Andy Moses, and Bob White at the guards.

De Paul, with George Mikan, who scored 37 points in the final game of the De Paul tournament against Indiana State in the Stadium last week, leading the way, will go up against a tall team in the Oregon State Beavers.

Beavers Boast Power

The Beavers have a high-scoring, agile center, in Ephraim Rocha from Honolulu, who stands 6 feet, 8 inches. He scored 225 points in 16 league games last season. The northwestern aggregation has a 6 foot, 6 inch high-scoring veteran forward in Ted Hennigsen, two regular guards in Bernie McGrath and Johnny Moore, and a star freshman all-state forward in Jerry Krafve, who is 6 feet 3, to round out the opening lineup. Backing them up are other capable veterans and star newcomers.

De Paul will open with its usual lineup. Gene Stump and Ted Furman will be at the forwards, George Mikan at center and Jack Allen and Chuck Allan at the guards. The latter is the only freshman on the team.

Loyola and T. C. U. Fives Meet Tonight

Loyola university's basketball team, winners of four games in the young season, will meet its first major foe on its comeback into big time collegiate competition tonight when it plays Texas Christian in the Loyola Alumni gymnasium.

A victory for Coach Tom Haggerty's Ramblers will be classified an upset since the Horned Frogs will have experience, height, and speed that Loyola lacks. Of nine players on the traveling squad, only two hail from Texas. Four of T. C. U.'s starting five are Indiana products—Frank Kudlaty, Bob Hendricks, Robert Young, and Leroy Pasco. The first three are freshmen. Pasco won a major letter last year while Clyde Chronister, the fifth starter, won freshman numerals.

The quintet averages over 6 feet 3 inches as compared with Loyola's 6 foot height. Kudlaty, at six-five, will be the tallest player on the floor.

The game will start at 8:15 p. m. Probable starting lineups:

Loyola		Texas Christian
Bill McCarthy	F	Frank Kudlaty
Ray Berns	F	Robert Young
Bernie Carman	C	Bob Hendricks
Jack Dwan	G	Leroy Pasco

CHANGE SITE OF SKATING MEET

Peirce Derby Shifted to Waveland Rink

Officials of the Chicago Park District yesterday notified Fred Gohl, director of the Peirce playground's annual ice skating Derby, that despite zero weather, the ice in Humboldt Park is not thick enough to hold the large number of skaters expected for Sunday's meet. Gohl immediately transferred the Derby to the Waveland av. rink in Lincoln Park.

The new site of Sunday's meet is a flooded area and has been used on many occasions when ice was not available at the lagoons. A six lap championship course will be laid out for the races, which are expected to attract more than 300 skaters representing every club in the Chicago area.

The Peirce Playground Skating club is expected to score heavily in the younger age classes. It developed many midget, juvenile, and junior skaters last season. Glen Ellyn skaters also are expected to pile up many points in these age classes, as the site of the state championship meet is a hotbed of the sport.

The senior and intermediate classes are dominated by entrants from the C. Y. O., George F. Barrett Athletic club, Northwest Skating club, Elgin Skating club, and the Glen Ellyn A. A.

Missouri to Play Opener at Ohio State on Sept. 28

Hawks Aim to Get Blades in Detroit Jinx

BY EDWARD BURNS

Manager Johnny Gottselig and his sharpshooting Chicago Blackhawks will depart for Detroit today for further research designed to determine what odd property of the Red Wings' ice slows their otherwise rampant blades. The Hawks consider the Detroit rink an equitable setup, much like their home pond—but they rarely win there, records thru several years reveal.

They'll play the Wings tomorrow night in a National Hockey league match after which the two teams will hie to Chicago for a game Sunday night. There seems to be a note of false pepper when they promise to break the Detroit jinx, tho they are convincing enough when they make dire threats in re Sunday night's battle on their own rink.

Has All Earmarks of Hex

We could take you farther back in the archives to prove the story of the wicked properties of the Detroit ice. Suffice it to say, however, that the Hawks did not win a National league game in Detroit during the entire 1943-'44 season, tho they did eliminate the Wings in the Stanley Cup play-offs. In the last two seasons the Hawks have lost in Detroit eight times, fought to two ties and won once. That once was in the last game last season, when the lads were out of Stanley Cup contention.

During the last two seasons the Wings have outscored the Hawks, 51 goals to 24, in games played in Detroit, which is a ratio something less than hospitable.

Not So Fearsome in Chicago

The main hope for Hawk victories in both games rests with what the current Hawks did to the Wings last Sunday night, tho the feat was executed in Chicago where the Wing jinx never has been quite so devastating. Sunday the Hawks were on the short end of a 4 to 2 score going into the final period. They scored four goals to the Wings' none in the third period for a surprise 6 to 4 victory and think they might steam up some similar surge in Detroit tomorrow. They think the Wings will never be ahead of them in the match here Sunday night.

After the game Sunday night the local hockey bugs will not be seeing much of the Hawks for quite a spell. Their next home game thereafter will be with Toronto on New Year's night and the next home appearance after New Year's will be on Jan. 20, when the Rangers appear here.

During the time Sonja Henie is using the Stadium ice the Hawks will play seven road games.

8 p. m.—St. Philip vs. Mount Carmel.
9 p. m.—St. Patrick vs. St. Leo.
10 p. m.—St. Gregory vs. St. George.

Quarter-finals in the 12th annual St. George High school senior preseason basketball tournament will be played in the Dragons' Evanston gym tonight following the conclusion of the second round last night, when the host school defeated St. Ignatius, 36 to 35, in an overtime contest which featured the evening's play.

The game was closely contested thruout. St. Ignatius held a 34 to 32 lead in the waning moments of the regulation period, but Jim Conley's basket tied it at 34-all and forced the game into extra minutes. Conley scored two free throws in the overtime.

In the first game last night, St. Patrick, defending titleholder, easily defeated St. Elizabeth, 42 to 30, in the Shamrocks' first start.

Leo staved off a late De La Salle rally to win, 31 to 29, while the small St. Gregory five created a minor upset by rallying to beat St. Rita, 40 to 31.

Tonight's card starts at 7 p. m., when Joliet Catholic meets Weber. St. Philip then plays Mount Carmel, St. Patrick meets Leo, and St. George meets St. Gregory.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 20 (AP)—The touring University of Illinois basketball squad overcame an early advantage set up by Nebraska to win tonight, 62 to 51.

The Illini will climax the trip by meeting the University of Iowa, defending Big Ten champions, in a conference game in Iowa City Saturday night. Illinois, which has won five out of its seven starts this year, lost to Ohio State in its only conference test to date.

Sparked by high scoring forward Joseph Brown, who hit the net for 18 points, the Huskers led for the first 13 minutes, but then Illinois got a 16 to 15 lead and stayed ahead the rest of the game. Illinois led at the half, 27 to 20.

ROSE BOWL FANS SPEND NIGHT IN TICKET LINE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—Football fans started lining up today more than 24 hours ahead of tomorrow morning's Rose bowl ticket sale at Memorial coliseum and the Pasadena civic auditorium.

By nightfall, more than 100 persons had braved threatening rain clouds to line up. Only 7,500 tickets—3,750 at each office—will be sold to the general public at 9 a. m., limit two per customer.

The football fanatics—most of them backing Southern California's Trojans against Alabama in the New Year's classic—came prepared for their overnight vigil, with blankets, pillows, folding chairs, lunch pails, containers full of hot coffee or other beverages—and umbrellas.

MILLER OF REDS CAPTURES FIFTH FIELDING CROWN

Three Cubs Outclass League Rivals

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Eddie Miller of Cincinnati was the top fielding shortstop in the National league in 1945, outshining Marty Marion of St. Louis, to win his fifth title in the last six years.

Backers of the Reds' infielder in the countless Miller vs. Marion arguments can point to the record books that show Miller tying the league record of five titles, set by Joe Tinker of Chicago and Cincinnati.

By topping Marion in the official National league percentages released today, .975 to .967, Miller reversed the 1944 result when he was nosed out of a fifth successive crown by a single point.

Three Cubs Top Rivals

Chicago's pennant winning Cubs swept three of the seven individual fielding championships with Stan Hack leading the third basemen, Andy Pafko showing the way to the outfielders, and Claude Passeau continuing his errorless streak in the pitching department. Not since Sept. 16, 1941, has Passeau made a misplay in a streak that now has run to 265 chances, establishing a new record.

An all-star fielding infield would have Babe Dahlgren of Pittsburgh at first, Emil Verban of St. Louis at second, Miller and Hack. Ken O'Dea of St. Louis was the high man among the catchers, altho he appeared in only 91 games. It was the first time in the modern history of the league that no catcher caught as many as 100 games.

Verban, Miller Tie Records

Verban and Miller each tied a major league mark for their respective positions by taking part in five double plays in a single game and Al Lopez of Pittsburgh established a new record for games caught in a lifetime, 1,805. This broke the old mark held by Gabby Hartnett of Chicago and New York.

Kermit Wahl, Cincinnati infielder, established a new standard he would just as soon forget when he committeed three errors in a single inning, the 11th, of a game with Boston.

The Cubs led in team fielding with a .980 average, three points better than St. Louis, and the Phillies wound up in the cellar with most errors, 234, and lowest percentage, .962. The Braves showed the way with 160 double plays and, for the fourth season in its history, there were no triple plays in the league.

AMERICAN GEARS FACE KAUTSKYS FIVE TONIGHT

The American Gears will make another bid for a .500 rating in the National Basketball league tonight when they meet the Indianapolis Kautsky's in Cicero stadium, 1909 S. Laramie av., at 8:30 o'clock.

Early in the season the Kautskys surprised the Gears here, 40 to 35, but last Sunday the Chicagoans evened the series with a 48 to 43 triumph in Indianapolis.

SHEBOYGAN WINS, 53-43

Sheboygan, Wis., Dec. 20 [Special] — Led by Ed Dancker, star center, who tallied 18 points, the Sheboygan Redskins defeated the Indianapolis Kautzkys, 53 to 43, in a National professional basketball league game tonight.

ZELLER REACHES END OF 42 YEAR BASEBALL TRAIL

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20 (AP)—Jack Zeller, a baseball figure for 42 years, bade farewell to the serious end of the game today and took with him a gold watch to remember the old days.

Owner W. O. Briggs and employes of the Detroit Tigers, a club he served seven years as general manager, chipped in to buy the watch. Zeller is going to retire to Fort Worth, Tex. He said he would keep in touch with baseball by serving as a talent scout in the East Texas and Evangeline leagues.

WHITE SHIRTS BEAT MONARCHS TO CUT MARGIN

Daumit's White Shirt Colognes shaved a game off the Monarch Beers' lead in last night's Classic league action at Gateway Recreation by taking the odd game. Their high total of 3,123 included the top single game of 1,081. Jules Sowa sparked the Colognes with a 674, but Wally Freitag of the Monarch's topped him with a 703, which helped the losers roll up a neat total of 3,075. Scores:

BOBBY RIGGS IN CHICAGO ON PRO TENNIS BUSINESS

Bobby Riggs, one of the national professional tennis champions, arrived in Chicago last night and immediately set about looking into business prospects for the coming net season.

Bobby, recently discharged from the navy after almost two years of service, announced he plans to mix pleasure with business and renew acquaintanceships he established during his residence in Chicago before entering service.

Whatever business and pleasure Riggs can combine will be a whirlwind affair, for he plans to spend Christmas day back in the sunshine of Los Angeles. Under present travel conditions, this may be Christmas, 1946, Riggs said. His train was almost 24 hours late arriving from the west coast.

Riggs defeated Donald Budge in the finals of a professional tournament in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

MAN MOUNTAIN, 54 AND DOWN TO 260, OUT OF ARMY

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 20 (AP)—Frank [Man Mountain Dean] Leavitt, his face supporting only a token force of the beard he once wore in the wrestling arena, arrived here today, discharged from the army. The 54 year old 260 pounder, only a shadow of his former self [he weighed around 330 in his wrestling days] was with Gen. Patton's 1st armored corps. Leavitt plans to return to his farm at Norcross, Ga.

Trainers Open Legal Attack on Doping Law

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 20 (AP)—The American Trainers' association asked Baltimore city Circuit court today to declare unconstitutional a rule of the Maryland Racing commission making trainers solely responsible when evidence of doping of horses is found.

Judge Joseph Sherbow signed an order giving the racing commission 10 days in which to reply.

Drastic Action Threatened

The petition, filed under the declaratory judgments act, said that the rule which provides a minimum suspension of one year for a trainer whose horse is alleged to have been stimulated affords no opportunity to interpose a defense to the charge of the currupt practice specified in the rule.

Janon Fisher Jr., owner-trainer and former president of the Maryland Horse Breeding association, said that the doping rule as interpreted by the commission had "demoralized racing in this state and created an intolerable condition," hinting that some owners and trainers might blacklist Maryland tracks if the rule is not modified.

Eight Trainers Suspended

Eight trainers have been under suspension in Maryland this fall in connection with stimulation charges at both Laurel Park and Pimlico.

The Trainers' association petition declared that in Maryland stabling space was furnished by the tracks which were under the commission's regulations.

"The conditions under which horses are stabled at such tracks are such that it is impossible for trainers effectively to control and prevent access by third parties to horses trained by them. The rule . . . serves to protect and shelter the parties actually guilty of the corrupt practice by making a scapegoat of an innocent person," the petition states.

LUCKMAN SIGNS WITH BEARS FOR 2 MORE YEARS

Sid Luckman, veteran quarter back and forward passing star, yesterday signed a new two year contract with the Chicago Bears of the National Football league. Luckman was quoted by George Halas, owner of the club, as saying he started his professional career with the Bears in 1939 and expects to finish it with the same club.

Luckman tied Sammy Baugh of Washington for the National league passing leadership in 1945 in the matter of efficiency. Sid threw 14 touchdown passes, and in that respect was tied with the Cleveland Rams' star, Bob Waterfield. In the matter of yardage gained by passes, Luckman had it all over both Baugh and Waterfield, his aerials netting 1,725 yards in 10 games. He had 117 completions out of 217 attempts.

FORT SHERIDAN FIVE WILL MEET M'COY TONIGHT

Fort Sheridan's basketball team will seek its 10th straight victory of the season tonight on its home court against Camp McCoy, which has won 11 straight games.

It will be a contest between two high scoring teams, for McCoy, in running up its streak, has averaged 53 points per game while yielding only 33. Fort Sheridan, however, has an even more impressive scoring record, for it has averaged 78 points per game against opponents' 25.

JEFFERS GIVES UP PRESIDENCY OF UN. PACIFIC

Successor Will Be George F. Ashby

George F. Ashby, associated with the Union Pacific railroad since 1911, on Feb. 1 will succeed as president William M. Jeffers, who started his career with the road almost 56 years ago as a call boy. Jeffers, who served as rubber director for a time during the war, will leave under the road's retirement plan. He will reach the retirement age of 70 on Jan. 2.

George F. Ashby

Announcement that Jeffers would end his long active railroad career was made after a meeting of the road's board of directors in New York yesterday morning. Jeffers lives in North Hollywood, Cal. F. W. Charske, chairman of the road's executive committee, said the board was accepting Jeffers' resignation only with the assurance that he would continue on the board and act as an adviser.

Pioneer in Streamliners

Jeffers, who was noted for his bluntness and pepperiness among blunt railroad men, and the late Carl Gray, were pioneers in the development of streamlined trains. Gray was a president of the U. P. Jeffers was a familiar figure on test runs of the road's streamliners, which are operated in conjunction with the Chicago & North Western.

William M. Jeffers

Among the most successful train operations with which Jeffers was identified was the Challenger—all coach train to Los Angeles—which has catered especially to women and children.

Jeffers' life story has followed the pattern of many other American leaders in industry. One of a family of nine children, Jeffers was born in North Platte, Neb. He left school at the age of 14 to take a job as call boy in the U. P. shops and from then was on his own. He became operating vice president of the road in 1928 and president on Oct. 1, 1937.

Headed Rubber Program

When the nation's rubber situation was in a muddle during the war after the Japanese had cut off supplies from the east, Jeffers was put in charge of the government's program to expedite the production of synthetic rubber. The number of automobiles and trucks still rolling attests to his success.

Ashby was born in Mount Airy, N. C., on Sept. 3, 1885, and entered railroad work in January, 1906. He joined the Union Pacific in its engineering department in 1911. He has served in various departments and in 1934 became assistant to the executive vice president. Ashby, who is described by associates as a "work horse," was elected a vice president on Aug. 1, 1941, and executive vice president Dec. 1, 1944.

Standard Oil Chairman to Resign Soon

New York, Dec. 20 [Special]—The resignation of Ralph W. Gallagher, 64, as chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the executive committee of Standard Oil company [New Jersey], was announced today "with deepest regret" by the board. The resignation is effective Dec. 31. Gallagher, who became a director in 1933, spent his entire 49 year business career with the company and its affiliates.

Frank W. Abrams, a vice president and director, was elected chairman. Eugene Holman, president, continues as chief executive officer and succeeds Gallagher as chairman of the executive committee. J. R. Suman, a vice president and director, was named a member of the executive committee.

Haslam Elected Vice President

The board also announced the election of R. T. Haslam, a director since 1942, as a vice president, and S. P. Coleman, head of the economics and coördination department, as a director.

Going to work at 16 as an oiler in a pumping station, Gallagher rose thru the gas and petroleum industry to one of the world's most responsible industrial positions. He was elected a director of Jersey Standard in 1933, vice president in 1937, and chairman of the board Nov. 23, 1942.

He was born in Salamanca, N. Y., in 1881. He left high school because of the illness of his father, a hardware merchant, to take his first job as an oiler with the New York Transit company at Olean, N. Y. He studied engineering at night.

Held Big Jobs as Young Man

At 21 Gallagher was assistant superintendent of a gas pipe line construction job in Ohio. Six years later, in 1908, he moved to Cleveland to supervise all of the East Ohio Gas company's properties. He was elected president of East Ohio Gas in 1926.

Abrams, the new chairman of Standard Oil, was born in Rockville Center, N. Y., in 1889 and has been with the company since 1912. He was named head of all refining operations of the company in the New Jersey area in 1926. He was elected to Jersey Standard's board in 1940 and vice president in 1944.

EARNING ABILITY OF AURORA ROAD TOLD TO COURT

Annual income of the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroad for the next 10 years was estimated at $350,000 by William M. Hammond, economist and analyst, yesterday at a hearing before Federal District Judge John P. Barnes on a proposed plan for reorganization of the road. With such earnings capitalized at 6½ per cent, Hammond said he believed the company was worth 2 million dollars.

The plan, prepared by Arthur L. Schwartz, trustee for the road, provides for formation of a new corporation with a board of five directors. It would exclude all securities holders except first mortgage bondholders and refunding bondholders who would receive 100 shares of new common for each $1,000 in bonds held.

RFC CLARIFIES VETS' POSITION IN SURPLUS SALE

The widespread belief among war veterans that the government is acting as a retail merchant in selling surplus goods is confusing both the veterans and the government, a spokesman in the Reconstruction Finance corporation's consumer goods office said yesterday.

The government's function is strictly that of a wholesaler or supplier, he said. A veteran may not buy a pair of shoes for his own use, but he may purchase a quantity of shoes with which to stock a shoe store.

The veteran first must convince the Smaller War Plants corporation the item he wishes to buy is necessary for a business. After he is certified by the SWPC, he can arrange his purchase with the consumer goods office of the RFC's surplus property division.

Sonora Radio Completes War Contract Termination

Complete termination of war contracts of Sonora Radio and Television corporation was reported yesterday by Joseph Gerl, president. More than 80 per cent payment has been received and final payments are expected by Feb. 1.

BUILDING BOOM SPREADS THRU FLORIDA TOWNS

Material Funneled from North

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 20—Florida resort towns are enjoying a building boom while shortages of material restrict construction almost everywhere else in the nation.

A survey discloses three main reasons for the building activity here:

1. Concrete blocks produced from local sand and gravel are used to circumvent the shortage of materials.

2. There has been an influx of construction labor seeking warmer climates for their winter work.

3. Because it is easy to build here in the winter, construction material is being funneled from the north where weather restricts building activity.

Money No Object

Because money is no object in getting supplies, the building being done is on houses valued between $15,000 and $65,000, and in expensive alterations on night clubs, hotels, and apartment buildings. Black market prices are paid for materials in many instances.

In Palm Beach, 15 houses ranging in value from $15,000 to $65,000 are being constructed. The future owners, with war swollen earnings, want their houses built quickly and are willing to pay accordingly. Edward Ehinger, chief building inspector, said it is not uncommon for a man to pay two or three times the market price for a carload of bricks just to speed construction of his home. Palm Beach has a population of 3,596.

"The wealthy people building homes and the rich syndicates operating hotels and clubs have the right connections along with enough money to get what they want," Ehinger said.

L. Philip Clarke, West Palm Beach architect, said construction in the next year would run into millions of dollars. There also is an enormous amount of work on architects boards awaiting the easing of the material shortage.

Clarke said an influx of labor from the north was helping building activity. This was confirmed by building inspectors, real estate dealers, and architects in other towns.

Bank Deposits Skyrocket

In West Palm Beach $1,758,757 of building permits were issued this year with $1,118,400 going out in the last three months. This is a town with a population of 40,599. Deposits in seven banks in Palm Beach county totaled $3,788,000 in 1930 and $103,595,000 in 1945.

In Hollywood, population 10,000, permits for the construction of $808,462 worth of buildings have been issued since October and 85 per cent of the construction will be of concrete blocks, according to William Viton, building inspector. Houses valued as high as $30,000 now are being built.

In Miami Beach there has been four million dollars worth of construction in the last three months. About 60 houses valued between $20,000 and $40,000 now are going up in this town of eight square miles, according to J. J. Farrey, building inspector.

A survey of seven out of 60 architects in the area reveals they have 17 million dollars worth of building scheduled for next summer. Construction costing slightly less than 18 million dollars was built in 1925 during the peak of the old Florida land boom.

Night Clubs Are Improved

A large amount of building material is being drained from the market by night clubs, restaurants and hotels. Farrey estimated that each of the night clubs packed in Miami Beach spent a minimum of $10,000 getting ready for the season. One reportedly spent $150,000 to alter its building, plunking out $25,000 for carpeting alone. Another spent $60,000 to lift its face for the tourists.

While residents searched in vain for new bathtubs, one hotel near here received three carloads of them recently. Hotels released to their owners by the army have undergone extensive remodeling which has absorbed a good deal of material, builders said.

CURTISS GIVES CORNELL U. ITS AIR LABORATORY

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Curtiss-Wright corporation said today it will present its research laboratory and wind tunnel, built at Buffalo in 1942, to Cornell university for a coöperative research-educational program supported by several eastern aircraft manufacturers.

G. W. Vaughan, Curtiss president, said the plan would promote wider use of the laboratory, train graduate engineers in specialized aeronautical fields and help maintain United States air supremacy. He said continued use of the laboratory "by one company could not be justified."

Dr. Edmund E. Day, Cornell president, expressed gratitude for the gift and termed the laboratory "an instrument of service to the aircraft industry, to education, and to the public at large." Dr. C. C. Furnas, director of research for Curtiss-Wright since 1943, will remain in Buffalo to direct the activities of the laboratory for Cornell.

CHICAGO STOCK YARDS 80 YEARS OLD; SOLD 950 MILLION ANIMALS

The 80th anniversary of the opening of the Union Stock yards, the world's largest cash market for live stock, is Christmas day. The yards, known thruout the world, are Chicago's biggest industry, with an average of 1 million animals, valued at 24 million dollars, processed monthly. No special ceremony has been planned.

Since the yards were opened Dec. 25, 1865, nearly 950 million animals—cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses—have been sold for approximately 24 billion dollars.

Shortly before the Union Stock yards were founded, seven rival yards were scattered thruout the city. In June, 1864, the Chicago Pork Packers association proposed to consolidate the seven markets, calling on the railroads to help. The railroads agreed and the Illinois legislature granted a charter for the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company of Chicago in 1865.

The railroads put up $925,000 and the packers $75,000. A 320 acre tract of land was bought from John Wentworth, one of Chicago's mayors, for $100,000. About 25 acres have been added since. On Christmas day, 1865, the stock yard was formally opened and the next day the first train of 15 cars of hogs arrived on the Burlington railroad.

Farm Bureau Asks Balance in Price Plan

Maintenance of industrial production and urban income at high levels will not assure prosperity to agriculture, the American Farm Bureau federation said yesterday in a resolution adopted at the closing session of its annual convention in the Hotel Sherman.

"We have learned thru bitter experience that we cannot have a prosperous agriculture without an effective national farm program to maintain a fair balance between farm prices, industrial prices, and wages," the resolution said. "We insist that a prosperous agriculture is essential to maintaining a high level of employment and a prosperous nation. Under the parity principle, parity prices for farm commodities will be reduced or increased in direct ratio as industrial prices are reduced or increased."

Entitled to Fair Price

The federation said it was "unalterably opposed" to plans which propose unlimited production at ruinous prices and force the American farmer to depend permanently on government subsidies. Farmers are as much entitled to a fair price in the market place as the industrial worker is to a fair wage, or industry to a fair price for industrial goods, it said.

The federation also went on record opposing "any efforts to amend, repeal, or circumvent, either by legislation or by administrative interpretation, the spirit of any agricultural law directed toward the support of farm prices during the post-war period." Support price programs should be announced sufficiently in advance to enable farmers to plan production accordingly, the resolution said.

Ask Parity for Live Stock

The federation said it would support the present parity formula as applied to the six basic crops until a new formula is developed that is fairer and more defensible. It urged, however, that steps be taken immediately to develop a plan for live stock, live stock products, dairy products, and any other agricultural commodity not fairly treated under the present formula.

Another resolution, reporting concern over the "alarming amount of governmental control and the further expansion of the land acquisition program," opposed any further acquisition of privately owned lands by any government agency.

Postpone Senate Hearing on Silver Sale Extension

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—The senate banking committee today postponed until after a Christmas recess hearings on legislation authorizing the treasury to continue to sell government held silver to industry. Western senators on the committee have protested a provision which would permit sales to manufacturers at 71.11 cents an ounce, the price at which the treasury buys all domestically mined silver.

DECEMBER RYE BREAKS 5 CENTS, WHEAT IS FIRM

Late selling of December rye contracts caused a break of 5 cents a bushel in the last few minutes of trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, and the close was at the bottom. Trading in December grain contracts ceased at the close and any contracts remaining open can be liquidated only by a tender of the actual grain. December wheat and corn closed at ceiling prices, but the uncompleted contracts were heavily reduced by spreading with the deferred deliveries. December oats lost 1⅛ cents and December barley was unchanged at the ceiling.

Action of the December contracts had a moderate effect on the deferred deliveries. The distant months of rye lost ½ to ⅝, oats were down ⅜ to ⅝, wheat unchanged to ⅛ higher, corn unchanged, and barley unchanged to ⅜ higher.

STOCKS SLIDE; SALES DROP TO 4 MONTHS LOW

Accounts Trimmed for Long Holiday

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Prices declined in today's stock market, altho dealings were among the slowest of the last six months and a handful of favorites closed with small gains. Closing losses ranged to more than 2 points, but extreme declines were pared in most cases.

The ticker tape frequently was at a standstill after a quiet opening. Transfers totaled 800,000 shares, compared with 970,000 yesterday, and were the smallest for a full session since Aug. 22.

Strikes Dampen Enthusiasm

Strike stalemates continued to dampen bullish enthusiasm. Accounts were trimmed for protection over the forthcoming long week-end and numerous customers were absent for an early get-away on their holiday. Tax selling persisted, and some offerings were attributed to the belief an extension of the technical correction was likely.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was off 0.4 at 74.4. Only 875 issues were traded, of which 526 closed lower, 195 higher, and 154 unchanged.

Advances were retained by American Water Works, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, American Smelting, Union Carbide, and Consolidated Vultee.

BOND CHANGES SMALL

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Price changes were mostly in fractions either way in today's bond market. A few rails held minor gains, but others closed unchanged or down fractions. Utilities and industrials were almost at a standstill and listed United States government securities were down about ¼ point on extremely light offerings.

The overnight snowstorm contributed to pre-Christmas absenteeism in Wall st. Sales fell to $4,270,000, smallest for a full day since Sept. 17, and compared with $6,740,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO'S LIST LOWER

Prices closed lower in turnover of 35,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. More active issues included Oak Manufacturing, down ¼, and Miller and Hart, Gibson Refrigerator, and Asbestos Manufacturing, all unchanged. Two 1945 peaks were set.

JACK & HEINTZ MOTOR TO GO TO BIG AUTO MAKER

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20 (AP)—William S. Jack, president, today told 1,400 Jack & Heintz, Inc., associates [employes] at the company's annual Christmas party that the new Jahco engine would be used by one of the nation's largest auto makers and that within the next four months daily production of the engines would reach 1,500 units.

Jack said the new engine would be the first completely diecast engine ever produced and that it develops one horse power for each cubic inch of piston displacement. He said tests had proved it could carry an auto full of passengers around the world at 75 miles an hour.

By the end of 1946, he estimated, between 15,000 and 20,000 persons will be employed in the plant's several branches here. Jack said the concern's new policy would be to distribute 50 per cent of profits to associates in proportion to their "take home" pay.

DAVEY ASSAILS FEDERAL PRICE, WAGE POLICIES

The administration's wage-price policy has placed the 40 million employes of nonwar industries, pensioners, and others with fixed incomes in a spot where they cannot boost their income and may lose what they have, Martin L. Davey, former governor of Ohio, charged in a letter addressed to President Truman and made public yesterday.

If wages are boosted without an increase in prices, companies not engaged in business which brought a high war income will have to close down, throwing 40 millions out of work, Davey said.

If prices are raised, millions on old age pensions, insurance annuities, and other forms of fixed income may be deprived of a bare living.

Furnishings Show Stocks Will Be Light

Offerings of merchandise at the 13 day winter home furnishings market opening Jan. 7 in the American Furniture Mart and the Merchandise Mart will be short again, market spokesmen said yesterday.

Buyers in record numbers are expected at the market's opening to compete for merchandise tho manufacturers have said they will continue to allocate merchandise to their customers as they did during the war time markets. Attendance is expected to exceed 25,000.

Manufacturers have spent more than ¼ million dollars in modernizing their displays since V-J day in preparation for their first peacetime market. The last market was held in January, 1945. The regular summer market, usually held in July, was called off because of travel restrictions.

Lumber, Fabrics Scarce

Factors restricting furniture output include continued shortage of lumber and fabrics, said Lawrence Whiting, president of the Furniture Mart. Actual lumber consumption during the war exceeded production, he said, with the result mill inventories are extremely low. Production this year was hampered by weather and the lack of man power. Output of floor coverings has improved, but remains far below demand.

Almost half the exhibitors will show something new in designs and styles, Whiting said.

Emphasis will be placed on the appliance section, he said. The section will be the largest in the market's history, with almost two full floors devoted to such products. Most leading manufacturers will be represented.

Prospects for war veterans and others getting home furnishings in desired quantities before next June are unfavorable, said Roscoe R. Rau, executive vice president of the National Retail Furniture association.

First Enthusiasm Lost

"The full flush of enthusiasm among furniture manufacturers last fall over reconversion and rapid mass production of new lines and models has faded with the pricing situation still not spelled out in detail for manufacturers by the office of price administration," Rau said.

A price increase order for manufacturers of wood and upholstered furniture is expected to be issued prior to the market's opening, said a spokesman of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers. The increase, first mentioned by OPA Nov. 29, is expected to range from 4 to 20 per cent over present prices. The largest increase will be in the low price brackets.

The question of who will absorb the increase granted manufacturers is unsettled. OPA wishes retailers and wholesalers to absorb up to 12 per cent of the increase, said Rau, but distributors contend such an absorption would be unfair.

HOUSE EXTENDS WAR POWERS TO MIDDLE OF 1946

Truman Signs Bill to Revamp Units

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—The house today passed and sent to the White House war powers legislation continuing rationing and priority allocation authority until July 1, 1946.

Final action came in agreement by a voice vote to minor changes asked by the senate regarding immigration restrictions. The legislation also makes changes in several parts of the second war powers act.

These changes include a section directing the treasury to resume use of nickel in making 5 cent pieces and a section authorizing continued overloading of ships until troops overseas are returned.

One Year Extension Sought

The administration has been seeking a one year extension of various authorities covered in the second war powers act, but the house cut the extension to six months and the senate concurred in this reduction yesterday by a vote of 31 to 30.

The extended war powers authorize treasury sale of up to 5 billion dollars' worth of securities to the federal reserve system without going into the open market; disposal of property seized for war purposes; waiver of navigation and inspection laws to speed movement of troops, and exemption of volunteer employes, such as ration board members, from the Hatch act banning political activity by federal workers.

Signs Branch Measure

President Truman meanwhile signed legislation giving him authority to reorganize executive branches of the government.

The reorganization, which advocates say will bring economies and simplification of administration procedure, was one of the "must" proposals submitted to congress by Mr. Truman last September.

Six agencies are exempted from reorganization, except that additional duties, agencies, and employes may be shifted to them. These are the interstate commerce commission, the federal trade commission, the securities and exchange commission, the national mediation board, the national railroad adjustment board, and the railroad retirement board.

Truman Extends FEPC

The President also issued an order continuing until June 30, 1946, the authority of the fair employment practices committee to investigate and report on discriminations in employment occurring in private industry engaged in military or "effective" reconversion production.

FEPC officials said previous executive orders had continued its power in this respect only for the duration of the war, and since the end of the war its jurisdiction has been questioned.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM

How do current prices of United States Gypsum company common stock compare with the previous range?—N. E.

Wide price swings have characterized the trading in the common stock of this leading manufacturer of gypsum and other building products. It rose from 12⅛ in 1921 to 209 five years later, declined to 10⅛ in 1932, and recovered to 137 in 1937. The subsequent low of 40¼ in 1942 compares with a 1945 peak of 115.

Expectations of a residential building boom and the popularity of gypsum building products have been a factor in the market for the shares this year. In connection with inflationary trends the issue is sometimes classed as a "raw material stock" because of the company's extensive gypsum and limestone deposits. The $2 common dividend at recent prices yields less than 1.8 per cent.

U. S. Gypsum came thru the depression of the 1930s with a profit each year, altho in 1932 it dropped to 86 cents a share [88 cents after Canadian exchange adjustment]. In the first nine months of 1945 the share earnings on 1,197,511 shares were $2.62, compared with $2.32 a year earlier. By years common share earnings were: 1944, $3.07; 1943, $3.75; 1942, $4.27; 1941, $5.42; 1940, $5.44 1939, $5.71 [$5.62 after exchange adjustment]. Consolidated sales rose from $43,334,697 in 1939 to a peak of $63,455,661 in 1941. Last year they amounted to $62,329,753.

NEW FRONTIERS FOR TELEVISION FORECAST IN '46

President of Farnsworth Tells Outlook

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Greater radio frontiers lie ahead in 1946, particularly in television and communications for railways and highways, and also in frequency modulation and standard broadcasting, E. A. Nicholas, president of Farnsworth Television & Radio corporation, Fort Wayne, Ind., said yesterday in a year-end statement.

"Highly improved home television is at hand," he said. "It is technically ready to go forward on a commercial basis as soon as transmitters can be installed and receivers distributed."

Nicholas asserted that the purchaser of a 1946 television receiver would have no need to fear its early obsolescence. [His view is in contrast with that expressed by some other authorities in the television field.]

Altho production of new television receivers by his company will not get under way substantially until spring, Nicholas said that 200,000 sets would be sold in 1946 and that a half million sets would be distributed in the first full year of production. Only a few thousand pre-war television sets were distributed, mostly in New York, Philadelphia, Pa., and Hollywood, Cal. Several hundred were marketed in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Nicholas said that his company will be telecasting by mid-1946, the visual programs suplementing those of its sound station in Fort Wayne.

Broadcasters seem to be developing a trend toward the married couple [or about to become so] type of audience shows. Mutual for a considerable time has had The Better Half, in which husbands and wives compete. W-G-N recently introduced one called Mr. and Mrs., in which married people tell what's wrong with their mates—but in a nice way. Then ABC came up with one called Bride and Groom. This one features trips and fancy gifts for the lucky newlyweds chosen to appear on the show. And now NBC is joining the parade with one called Honeymoon in New York. Besides honeymooners, newly engaged couples and folks celebrating anniversaries are eligible to make application for appearance on the show.

Mutual's Break the Bank show was almost broken the other evening by a contestant who answered all eight questions put to him. He garnered $2,900 in all. The last question, worth $1,000, was: "In what book is found the quotation: 'It all comes out in the wash?'" He nailed that one—from Cervantes, "Don Quixote."

ALDERMEN FILE PLEA TO REPEAL TAXI ORDINANCE

A resolution by Ald. Keenan [49th] to repeal the present taxicab ordinance, which limits the number of cabs in Chicago to 3,000, was placed on file yesterday at a meeting of a council subcommittee on cabs when Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman said the measure was a contract ordinance which cannot be broken.

Keenan's resolution was introduced in the city council to open the way for issuing of additional cab licenses for the benefit of ex-service men.

A second proposal, by Ald. Merryman [45th], which would permit the issuance of 500 extra licenses to veterans, was held in abeyance pending a report on a survey now being made by a committee headed by Edward J. Gorman, public vehicle license commissioner. The survey is intended to show whether more cabs are needed and is expected to be completed Jan. 20.

Keenan charged at the meeting that the present ordinance establishes a monopoly because the two principal cab companies, Yellow and Checker, have interlocking directorates.

CATTLE PRICES WEAK DESPITE LIGHT SUPPLIES

Cattle demand was lighter yesterday and despite smaller receipts buyers bought at the $18 a hundred pounds ceiling more reluctantly. They paid the top price only for strictly prime longfed steers.

Heifers slipped another 25 cents and best offerings were quoted 50 cents below the $18 ceiling. Beef cows were slow and weak at recent declines.

Christmas Bonus Paid by A. & P. Food Stores

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—A Christmas bonus totaling $1,500,000 was distributed to all employes six months or more with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, John A. Hartford, president, announced today. A similar distribution was made last year.
